PRINCE BERTIL SMILES FOR OUTLOOK

The youthful heir to the throne of Sweden was photographed yesterday after he had completed a round of the Mid Pines course in 88 strokes.

Royal Swedish Visitor Shies At Political Questions

Although evading with dexterity other questions about the international situation, Prince Bertil of Sweden, a guest at the Mid-Pines, admitted that the activists movement in Sweden had become stronger since several weeks ago when he came to this country. The Swedish activists group are in favor of sending direct military aid to Finland.

Declaring he knew nothing about the recent bombing of the Swedish town of Pajala by Russian planes, except what he had read in the papers, Prince Bertil said, "As I told the New York newspaper men, I am no politician." He said that the recent bombing incident would not hasten his return to Sweden.

When asked if he thought his country could maintain its neutrality, Prince Bertil said only that he hoped so. He concurred with the statement of Mr. Folke Wennerberg, of the Swedish Legation, who, on a visit to Pinehurst in the fall, said, "Sweden has been a neutral country for over 125 years, and I have every hope that she will be able to remain so during the present war."

Prince Bertil and his party left the Mid-Pines Club yesterday evening after a two day visit. He was accompanied by Assar Gabrielson, head of the largest Swedish automobile company, and Gunnar Hagglof, Chief of the Trade Department of the Swedish foreign office. The Prince is visiting this country as head of a Swedish commission to buy raw materials from the United States.

A handsome six-footer and an excellent athlete, Prince Bertil is the grandson of Gustav V, and son of Crown Prince Gustav Adolf, and is an heir to the throne of Sweden.

The Outlook reporter managed to catch the Prince and his two companions on the 18th hole as they finished an afternoon of golf. Prince Bertil expressed his liking of the Mid-Pines course. With diplomatic aplomb he offered willingly to answer any questions about golf, even though he could not make any statements as to the European situation. His score for the afternoon, he admitted, was an 88.

KENO BENEFIT

A keno party, benefit for the Sandhills Woman's Exchange, is scheduled for this evening at The Carolina at 9 o'clock. Cash awards of $100 will be made, and an Eastman camera will also be a prize.

The party, being for a truly deserving cause, is expected to draw a very large attendance.

SPRING RUSH BEGINS

With Washington's birthday on Thursday this year, many people are taking advantage of the fact to enjoy an "English" week-end, and Pinehurst is beginning to get its foretaste of the spring season rush.

The Carolina Hotel has had 150 arrivals in the past two days, the Holly Inn is filled practically to capacity, and the other hotels are filling up rapidly.

There were over 200 registrations at the Pinehurst Country Club, yesterday.

PINEHURST POLOISTS SCORE 7-4 VICTORY AGAINST FORT BRAGG

Army Men Make Good Showing, but Teamwork of Victors Counts; Second Game to be Played Here Sunday.

Pinehurst polo club scored a 7 to 4 victory over a Fort Bragg four in a spirited contest on Pinehurst's No. 2 field yesterday. Weeks of hard training by the Pinehurst players told effectively, as good teamwork was responsible for the decided edge the locals held over the army men. A good crowd witnessed the match.

The winners played a uniformly smart game of polo, while the Fort Bragg outfit had Capt. Dave Erskine as star performer, with two goals to his credit. Erskine, who has been training with the Pinehurst squad, has had a bit more experience than the other three army players, and his performance yesterday did credit to the hard workouts the Pinehurst practice matches

Boxing Fans Will Sit In On First Formal Fights

The first "formal" fights ever staged in Pinehurst will be presented tomorrow night at nine at The Amusement Center in the Pinehurst Printing Company building. Promoter Ray Johnson has lined up an attractive card, with plenty of local color.

The preliminaries will probably cause more excitement than the wind-up, for in the short three round bouts many boys who reside in the Sandhills will be in action.

Young Leland Daniels, son of Dr. L. M. Daniels, Southern Pines, will meet James Arthur of Andover, in the 135 pound class. Arthur is employed at the Pinehurst race track.

Another Pinehurst race track lad on tonight's program is Red Houghton, who will box with Ellis McKenzie of the Pinehurst laundry in the heavyweight class.

There will be four preliminary bouts and a final of ten rounds between two colored lads, Ralph Terrell, Rome, Ga., and Ham Braboy, Hartsville, S. C.

A limited number of reserved seats are for sale. The general admission will be for unreserved seats.

British Warships Near, Scandinavians Worried

An undetermined number of British warships are lying off the coast of Finland's Petsamo district, it was learned from reliable sources last night. This was the first confirmation of reports circulated Wednesday that British men of war were in northern waters.

Reports published in Scandinavian papers that both British and French warships were cruising in the direction of northern waters, brought new worries to the Scandinavian countries. From London, reliable quarters said there was reason to believe that British naval detachments were near the Murmansk region.

British Trawler Sunk In Nazi Bombing Raid

A battle between German bombing planes and several small British trawlers gave concrete form yesterday to the warning issued last week by Winston Churchill that all British vessels plying the war tossed north sea waters henceforth would be armed for protection against German air raiders.

Two Nazi planes were downed in the battle by machine gun fire from the trawlers. One trawler, however was sunk when it was bombed and raked with machine gun fire from a German attack. Two officers and 19 men were lost, and only one crew man believed saved.
