

Report Heavy Artillery Action In Saar Sector

Firing Indicates Resumption of Bombardment After Sunday Layoff; Air Battles Fought

Results of Fighting Not Yet Known, But All French Planes Return Safely; Britain to Strike Hard at Norway Ports Route.

PLAN CRIPPLING BLOW

(By the Associated Press)

Heavy cannonading reverberated yesterday in the wooded valleys of the Saar River sector on the Western front, accompanied by sharp fighting in the air.

The French high command said artillery fire was particularly heavy west of the Saar valley.

The longer firing told of a resumption of bombardment after a Sunday lay off. At the same time Germany and allied forces fought several air battles, the results of which were not yet known. All French planes returned safely. However, two of their single seater fighters went down in a dog fight with a much superior German force, but one of the French pilots bailed out to safety.

It was indicated in diplomatic circles last night Britain is preparing to fight as hard as possible against the sea route along Norway's ports through which Germany imports iron. Hitherto German ships carrying ore to the Reich's armament factories have been protected by Norway's six-mile limit. The forces of both the British and French empires were being primed for a crippling blow against Germany's economic bastions.

GEORGE DUNLAP 75

Grover Poole Jr., 17, a Duke University freshman, was well satisfied with his score of 33-35-68 which he made yesterday on the number two course in winning the medal in the 40th North and South amateur golf championship.

Poole lives in Raleigh and is commuting between that city and Pinehurst.

He played yesterday with two old timers, Paul Hyde of Buffalo and Charles R. Scott of Greenfield, Mass. Both scored 81 and are included among the eight who will compete in a "sudden demise" contest this morning for one place in the championship match play.

Mr. Hyde and Mr. Scott looked young Poole over very carefully and decided he would do. Mr. Hyde even suggested to Grover that he should be captain of the Duke golf team. As a freshman he is not eligible for the team, which is a tough break for Duke this year.

Mr. Scott reports that Grover did everything right. The lad himself said he was afraid of his putting and therefore had decided to play this part of the game "safe."

At the second hole Mr. Poole astonished his companions by knocking his ball within three feet of the flag and holing the putt for a three. The old timers passed favorable remarks about Grover's golf.

By the time Grover had reached the 15th and laid an iron six feet from the hole and dropped his putt, Mr. Hyde and Mr. Scott agreed that Mr. Poole would be a big help to any college golf team, including their alma mater. When a Williams player scores a 69 over that tough college course, he goes to North Adams to celebrate.
