The major upset of the day came when Alex Guerry of Sewanee, Tenn., unseeded, defeated Harris Everett of Jacksonville, Fla., in the longest match of the week. The sets went at 6-4, 1-6, 12-10, after both players had held match point several times.

By Douglas Doak

A Pinehurst visitor to whom the recent coup of the Nazi government strikes closely home is Ake Sjolín, attache to the Royal Swedish Legation in Washington.

"My presence here," said Mr. Sjolín, "is an indication of how sudden and unexpected the recent Scandinavian crisis was to my legation. At first I thought I should have to return immediately to Washington, but I have talked with the legation over the telephone and it will be possible for me to remain until the end of the week."

Mr. Sjolín, a guest at the Holly Inn, came here Monday to snatch a week's rest and relaxation from the press of diplomatic affairs.

He has been in this country for a year and a half, having first come here as a member of the staff at the Swedish consulate in Chicago. He has been in Washington for the past four months. This is his first vacation since coming to America, and he chose Pinehurst because of the excellent facilities it offers riding enthusiasts.

Norwegian minute men—armed with nothing more than shot guns—joined the nation's army of regulars last night in resistance to German invaders, dislodging them, it was reported, from the port of Bergen and throwing them back in an attack on Elverum, the temporary capital. A late afternoon radio report from the Norwegian commandant at Bergen said his forces had retaken the city from the invaders, and were massing for an attempt to recapture Trondheim, farther up the west coast.

Subsequent advices reaching Stockholm said Bergen was in Norwegian hands, but the fortress at the entrance to the harbor.
