Capital Clipboard Majority Of Legislators In Favor Of Speaker Ban Law

By EULAN GREENWOOD
NO HOPE. . . The brightest day of this year's Legislature came last week when the Governor said he would not ask the lawmakers to kill the speaker ban law.

When the news reached them, they went around grinning at each other like a horse eating briars. Here and there you could find one who actually looked like the old almanac drawing of the full moon. This marked a giant step to adjournment.

Had the Governor asked that the law be overturned, he would have met certain defeat in the face of a fist-full of victories. Not only were the majority of the legislators in favor of keeping the law, those who were not enthusiastic about it saw a speaker-ban-law argument big enough to keep them in Raleigh until July. They have been here now since June 2 without pay.

ECC To Print Essay Series

GREENVILLE — The East Carolina College history department has announced plans to publish a second volume in its "East Carolina College Publications in History" series it launched last year.

Dr. Herbert R. Paschal, department director, said Volume II, "Essays in Southern Biography," will be ready for release by about October 1.

Following the pattern of Volume I, "Essays in American History," this book will be a paperbound volume of approximately 200 pages, containing eight biographical essays by ECC historians.

The new volume has been prepared for publication under the direction of the series' editorial board, composed of Drs. Coleman, Ellen, Paschal and J. F. Steelman and Loren K. Campbell.

So, as it turned out, the matter came to a head too late.

HOW HE STANDS. . . Does the Governor want the Speaker Ban Law rescinded? Only he knows. There are many people here who believe he does. After all, he was not the Governor when it was enacted. He had nothing to do with its enactment. Of course, neither did Governor Sanford.

Belief here is that he is worried about possibility of some of the State schools being knocked off the accredited list. They think that if this had come up a month earlier than it did, Governor Moore might have asked that the Speaker Ban Law be knocked in the head.

Booklet Offered About Arthritis

CHAPEL HILL — The Arthritis Foundation has just published a new booklet "The Facts About Arthritis" which contains the latest facts and medical conclusions about the disease which afflicts 12 million Americans and 200,000 Tar Heels.

Mrs. W. Kerr Scott of Haw River, honorary chairman of the Foundation in North Carolina, announces that the newly published booklet is free upon request. Persons desiring a copy may write North Carolina Chapter, The Arthritis Foundation, Chapel Hill, North Carolina 27514. The booklet is offered as a part of the national arthritis education campaign. The booklet contains a foreword by Dr. William S. Clark, president of the Arthritis Foundation.

Seniors Will Need Social Security No.

ROCKY MOUNT — "High school seniors are urged to obtain a social security account number card before starting to look for summer jobs," N. A. Avera, social security district manager in Rocky Mount, stated. "One of the first things a new employer will ask for is your social security number."

Mr. Avera explained that while social security may seem unimportant to a young man or woman just out of school, social security credits provide the basis for future benefits under the program. An account is established for each social security number, and over the years the worker's earnings are credited to the account.

An application for a social security number may be obtained by writing or visiting the nearest social security office located at Rocky Mount or Greenville.

Easter Seal Camp In Second Year

SOUTHERN PINES — Camp Easter in the Pines, the North Carolina Easter Seal camp near Southern Pines, is one of the few camps in the country built specifically for the benefit and enjoyment of the physically handicapped.

This facility, owned and operated by the North Carolina Society for Crippled Children and Adults, has all the features of the best general camps, plus special features which enable the handicapped to have the finest of camping experiences.

That's an important "plus" and it includes love and understanding which went into the making of Camp Easter.

It includes also the trained staff, close nursing and medical supervision and regular visits from a physical therapist with understanding of the special problems presented.

Camp Easter, built entirely with contributed funds, opened for its first summer season last year on its pine-forested 70-acre site, where the five-acre lake had already been built.

With 32 campers accommodated in the four rustic sleeping-cabins — eight campers, with two counselors, in each — Camp Easter served 85 children in two two-week camping periods. A week for adult campers later in the summer brought the total to about 100 last year.

With facilities expanded this summer through construction of a central lodge and dining hall, more campers can be served. Starting June 20, three two-week sessions are planned, for children and young people from seven to seventeen, with a fourth session, August 1 through August 12, for young adults, eighteen to thirty-five.

The new lodge is large enough to provide plenty of work and play space when weather or campers' wishes keep them indoors. The former small dining hall and workshop have been remodeled to provide more beds. It is expected that Camp Easter will continue to grow in this manner, from season to season, as funds are available and the need expands.

ever-increasing press paraphernalia. He, like Terry Sanford, loved a press conference. . . seemed to, Cooper continues. . . "He greeted newsmen with a smile. . . There were many questions about the speaker ban law. . . Moore's head and hands."

"YOUR HOME NEWSPAPER" trembled during the first 10 minutes or more of the questioning. . . adds to the Governor. . . told several newsmen they were upset by the sharpness of the questions passed to Moore."
