"It's the one I keep my husband under," retored Mrs. Heftywate.

Education

A young boy asked his father "Hey, Pop, how does electricity go through wires?"

"Don't know, son. Electricity's always been a puzzle to me."

"Then, pop, can you tell me what makes thunder and lightning?"

"Tell the truth, son, I never did exactly understand the thing myself."

"Hey, pop," said the son after a little thought... "Oh well, never mind."

"Go ahead, son," cried the father. "Ask questions. Ask lots of questions. How else are you going to learn?"

Strictly Professional

Harry: "He's what's known as a cross-word puzzle fighter."

Jerry: "What do you mean by that?"

Harry: "He goes into the ring vertical and comes out horizontal."
