RAILROAD TO BOSTICKS MILL.

The suggestion of our Ellerbe correspondent that Rockingham should bestir itself to secure a railroad from this place to Bosticks Mill is one that deserves the serious consideration of our Rockingham people, and of our business men especially. We understand that the kaolin mine operators are anxious to guarantee about two car loads of freight a day to any line that will run to them. Hauling wood to our mills would from a considerable business for such a road. There are great quantities of timber of different kinds that would furnish business for such a road in addition to the regular freight and passenger business that such a road would receive. Ellerbe Springs could easily be popularized as a resort to furnish a good passenger business. It would put new life and vigor into the farming interests of that whole section of country. The good little town of Roberdel would furnish considerable business to sustain such an enterprise, and all this would contribute to the growth and of the volume of business Rockingham.

There are two ways in which this might be accomplished. The officials of the Seaboard might be interested in the matter and induced to build the road, or the Southern might be induced to extend its line from Troy to Rockingham or the Coast Line to extend its line from Gibson by Rockingham. Or it could be done as an independent enterprise without the assistance of either of the roads. We are informed that a capitalist wrote recently to a citizen of this place that he would take 60 per cent. of the stock in any line from here that the citizens of this place had enough confidence in to take the other 40 per cent. The townships through which it would run would probably subscribe stock in such an enterprise, as it would double the value of their farm property.

And all this suggests further the need of an organization of our business men to put forth united effort to secure new enterprises for the town and promote its interests in various ways. Why could not Rockingham have a "Board of Trade"? We know it is frequently the case in towns no larger than ours that there is too much of petty jealousy among business men for successful co-operation in the general interest, but we believe our business men are too broad-minded for such considerations to hinder them.

But at any rate, what do you think of the railroad?

When the elder Czolgosz was told that his son had been sentenced to death he wept and said: "I am sorry for my boy, but it cannot be helped. He must be punished, for he is guilty. I am sure that he was not alone responsible, even though he has said he had no accomplice. There were others in the plot, and if I had been permitted to talk with him in Polish when I was at Buffalo I believe he would have told me about it. I will bring my son's body to Cleveland for burial, after he has been executed. He is my son, and I must see that he gets a Christian burial."

Steeles Mill Road.

As is generally known the road known as the new road to Steeles Mill has been impassable for some months on account of the two creek bridges being washed away. Two propositions will be made to the Board of County Commissioners next Monday in regard to it. One is to rebuild the bridges on the present road. The other is to make an entirely new road running between the old road and what is called the new road running past Midway. Those who want the bridges rebuilt have it in their favor that that road is about the prettiest road after it leaves the creek that there is in the county. Those who favor an entirely new road have it in their favor that it will not require any bridges, whereas the other road requires two creek bridges which may be washed away any year. They make the further point that the proposed new road would run through a more elevated section of country and could be expected to develop into more of a "residence road." This is one contest in which the ANGLO-SAXON does not feel called upon to take part except to say that that's a mighty pretty stretch of roads on the Midway road after it leaves the creek.

A Prince or Duke.

"What particular advantage is it, Mr. Angell, to be the wife of a prince or duke?" is a question asked us to-day and we are obliged to answer that really we do not know. Our impression is that an American sovereign, with money enough to pay his bills and a reasonable provision against misfortunes and old age, occupies about the most desirable position that can be found in this world. We remember how a European prince, calling one day upon Rothschild, and finding him busy with another caller, was requested by Mr. R. to take a chair, to which he replied very haughtily, "I am the prince of—." "Ah," said Rothschild, "take two chairs!"

We remember quite a discussion we once had in England with an English gentleman, to convince him that his blood was quite as good as that of the Prince of Wales. We think no intelligent American gentleman would have any doubt on that point. When we started our Bands of Mercy in America we secured the assistance of an English clergyman, who was almost every day telling us about his queen, until one day, after freely admitting that she seemed to be a very respectable woman, we added: "but we have right here in Massachusetts forty thousand women just as good and respectable." No intelligent American would have any doubt on that point. Still it must be admitted that we have some people in America [not distinguished, perhaps, for their brain development] who, seemingly unconscious of the greatness of their own country, where every citizen is a sovereign, seem to be wonderfully stirred up whenever a prince or duke comes over to see us, and whose sayings and doings on such occasions, as reported in our newspapers, forcibly remind us of Puck's famous aphorism: "What fools these mortals be."

In the palmy days of ancient Rome the proudest title in the world was: "I am a Roman citizen!" So in our days let us strive in all peaceful ways to make the proudest title in the world "I am an American citizen!"

Anarchy, however, is not the only "organized in New Jersey" infamy that must be wiped out—The Commoner.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dread disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that they fail to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

TRINITY COLLEGE NOTES.

Thursday, October 3rd, is Benefactor's Day at Trinity College, and will be observed as a holiday. All College work will be suspended during the day, and at night a public meeting will be held in the Craven Memorial Hall. To this meeting the public is cordially invited. Many visitors are expected from various parts of the State. An address will be delivered by delivered by Bishop E. R. Hendrix, of Missouri. After the address, announcement will be made of all the gifts made in the College during the year ending October 3rd. The music will form an attractive feature of the occasion. In addition to the orchestra, an excellent program of vocal music has been arranged, in which the best musical talent of Durham will take part. The speaker of the evening is a man of national reputation as a speaker and preacher. Bishop Hendrix is the most versatile of the Southern Methodist Bishops. Being a man of long business experience, he has a knowledge of men and affairs that has given balance and proportion to his work. He has travelled extensively in all parts of the world, thus amassing a fund of information that few men have. He has been a very careful student of literature and history, and in recent years especially has put himself in touch with the best thought of the world. Lately he has written several stimulating books, notably "Skillful Work for the Master," in which he has made an effective plea for a more cultured ministry. As a preacher, he has been in demand in England, and the leading universities of the North. With all of his accomplishments, he is a man of magnetism and personal charm, a delightful man in social life, and a most interesting public speaker.

A Suit Involving A Whole Town.

W. S. Douglass, Esq., will leave Monday for Montgomery court where he is interested as counsel in several cases. A notable one is that of Christian Smith vs. A. Leach, et al. The suit is really an effort on Mrs. Smith's part to recover real estate which includes practically all the town of Starr, Montgomery county. In the suit the plaintiff sets up the plea that her husband, now deceased, disposed of the property soon after Star was first made a railroad station and while she was a feme covert and that she was not privately examined, and indeed that she did not sign the deed at all. The further plea is made that she was powerless to proceed in establishing her rights, and that she has taken steps just as soon as, by the death of her husband, she had a right under the law to proceed in the matter.

Considerable property is involved in the fight, and there are a multiplicity of interests.

A considerable amount of the property has changed hands several times since it was originally sold by the plaintiff's husband, and much of it has been considerably improved.

Old People Have Their Troubles.

Mr. Francis Little of Benton Harbor, Mich., over eighty years of age. Since 1865 he has been troubled more or less with indigestion and constipation and has tried almost everything in use for those ailments. Last August he began using Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and was soon feeling much better. In a recent letter he says, "I have used three boxes of the Tablets and now think I am well." These Tablets improve the appetite and invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. For sale by Richmond County Drug Company.

Southern Pine Bananas.

Free Press.
"Do bananas grow here?" is frequently the first question of the juvenile resorter from the North after he arrives in Southern Pines. He has heard that bananas grow in that land of sunshine called the South and he expects to find them when he gets here. Heretofore, Young America has been disappointed when told that banana land was still further South. But his disappointments are over on that score.

Dr. W. P. Swett has settled all that by providing for an affirmative answer to his question. The doctor does not have a whole plantation of the luscious species of the genus Musa, but he has about one dozen plants, one of which is now in bearing. About three series of the bunch or cluster are fairly well developed, about four to five inches long and well proportioned. The other series are still wrapped in their purple sheath, but will burst out and develop with a short time. The plants stand on the lawn in front of Dr. Swett's residence on Railroad street and are well worth the attention of all who have never seen this plant in bearing.

Getting Even.

Silver Cross.
"Haven't you got anything solid to eat?" said a traveler, discontentedly eyeing the profusion of pies and cakes on the counter of a restaurant at one of the way stations.

"Shall I give you some beans?" asked the proprietor, with his most persuasive smile.

The traveler assented, and making short work of them asked:

"How much?"

"Twenty-five cents," was the bland response.

"What!" cried the traveler.

"Twenty-five cents for a spoonful of cold beans?"

The proprietor continuing firm to his price, the man paid it and departed. But later that afternoon a telegram was handed in to the restaurant keeper, for which he paid twenty-five cents. It ran thus:

"Don't you think your price a little high on beans?"

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within the radius of thirty miles to many whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of those, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For sale by Richmond County Drug Company.

Beware of making your moral staple consist of the negative virtues. It is good to abstain from all that is sinful or harmful. But making a business of it leads to emaciation of character unless one feeds largely also on the more nutritious diet of active, sympathetic benevolence.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

MOTHERHOOD

The greatest ambition of American men and women is to have homes blessed with children. The woman afflicted with female disease is constantly menaced with becoming a childless wife. No medicine can restore dead organs, but Wine of Cardui does regulate derangements that prevent conception; does prevent miscarriage; does restore weak functions and shattered nerves and does bring babies to homes barren and desolate for years. Wine of Cardui gives women the health and strength to bear healthy children. You can get a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui from your dealer.

WINE OF CARDUI

148 Market Street, Memphis, Tenn., April 14, 1901. In February, 1901, I took one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Theobald's Black-Draught. I had been married fifteen years and had never given birth to a child until I took Wine of Cardui. Now I am mother of a fine baby girl which was born March 21, 1901. The baby weighs fourteen pounds and I feel as well as any person could feel. Now my home is happy and I never will be without Wine of Cardui in my house again.
