NAVY PICTURES EXHIBITED HERE

A navy recruiting station stopped over a couple of days this week, pitching their tent on the vacant lots just beyond the Glover building.

SIX MORE LOAFERS LODGED IN JAIL

Set up for Stealing and Receiving Stolen Goods. One for Indecent Conduct.

Chief Dobbins broke up what appeared to be an organized bunch of negro loafers who gained their livelihood stealing from various warehouses, when he arrested, Eugene Martin, Regional Martin, Richard Harrison, Will Ingram and John Blackwell. The first three for house breaking and stealing, and the other two for receiving stolen goods.

Martin was convicted on the charge of breaking into the S. A. L. Warehouse and Harrison and Ingram the warehouse of the L. G. Shell Co., all five were placed under $500 bond, in default of which they went to jail.

Marrie Mills was convicted of indecently exposing his person and went along with the others in default of a $500 bond.

HOW PRICES ROSE—AND FELL

Interesting conclusions may be drawn from a recently completed analysis of wholesale and retail prices and wages for the years 1860 to 1872 in which tendencies strikingly like those of the present day are revealed, showing finally a slump in prices which, economists and students of market conditions say, soon may be expected if history is to repeat itself.

The figure of 100 is taken as the basic level of all three in 1860. There was a gradual rise during 1861 and 1862 and 1863, and at the end of the last year wholesale prices were at 150; retail prices at 140; and wages at 130. During the year 1864 came the sharpest rise and wholesale prices jumped to the 210 mark, reaching the peak in January, 1865. Meanwhile both retail prices and wages had taken a more gradual rise, the former standing at 165 in January and wages being at 150.

In April, 1865, the war ended and there came a sudden drop in wholesale prices, which fell to 160 in July of that year and then rallied up to 180 by the end of the year. Retail prices and wages continued a steady rise throughout the year, not being affected by the end of the war and reached the respective levels of 170 and 165 at the end of 1865.

In the year following the close of the war, or 1866, there was a marked variation in the trend of the three. Wholesale prices fluctuated rather violently but with a constant downward trend, and they continued this downward course with occasional sharp rallies for seven years following the war, scoring a net loss of from five to ten points a year, until in 1872, just prior to the great panic, they were at 130 or just 30 points above the pre-war figure.

If history is repeating itself the man who now denies himself useless luxuries and puts his money in government securities or in other standard investments will be on a sound financial basis when the present troublesome days are over.

UNIVERSITY NEWS LETTER

With attendance sweeping up to the 1200 mark, a limit fixed only by the capacity of the University to accommodate students, the 33rd session of the University of North Carolina summer school swung into its second week facing a more varied activity than Chapel Hill has ever known in any one summer.

In addition to the more than 700 North Carolina teachers who are studying courses in education and the 400 students taking regular college courses, a series of institutes has been announced lasting almost to the very opening of the University for the 126th session next fall. The public welfare institutes, conducted jointly by the University and the southern division of the Red Cross for social workers of all kinds, will continue until September 13, the last two weeks consisting of field work away from Chapel Hill.

A special child welfare institute will be conducted July 5-10 under the auspices of the National Child Welfare Association, with Mrs. Ira D. Hasbrouck field secretary of the association, in immediate charge. The commercial secretaries of North Carolina, secretaries of chambers of Commerce, boards of trade, and other industrial and civic bodies, will hold an institute, August 9-14, the first of its kind in this state.

Overlapping that institute will come another, the community service institute, at which W. C. Crosby, secretary of the North Carolina community service bureau, will have his 40 field agents for a conference and discussion of their problems. At the same time the second meeting of the state and county council will be held, August 17-19, with representatives from many of the state and county departments which are closely connected, present for a rehashing on both sides of the difficulties of their work.

The new public welfare institutes, the beginning of the school of public welfare in the University, have attracted a large number of social workers. Commissioner Roland F. Beasley has brought over almost his entire office force, including Mrs. Clarence Johnson, director of child welfare work, Mr. Harry G. Newman, of the state board, and Mrs. Powell, his own secretary, all of them attending classes. Twenty county superintendents of public welfare are here now for work and a number of social workers from outside the state.

A lot of attention is being paid this summer to music and dramatic productions in the summer school. Professor Paul J. Weaver, assisted by Williams Beach, director of community singing in Winston-Salem, will direct the production of a musical cantata and a chorus; and Professor Frederick Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers, will have charge of a production of some of the original North Carolina folk-lore plays written by University students. He will be assisted by Miss Grace Griswold, director of the Theatre Workshop in New York.

SANITARY LAWS TO BE RAPIDLY ENFORCED

To enforce strict compliance with the State sanitary law the engineering division of the State board of health is placing additional inspectors in the field for the purpose of checking up communities which have previously been inspected by the regular field men of the health department. Where previous instructions for the construction and maintenance of sanitary privies have not been followed, prosecutions under the law are being made.

Owing to the large territory contained within the State it has been an impossibility for the inspectors employed to complete the work of inspection throughout the State since the law became effective. This work is going forward, however, as rapidly as it can be efficiently done. This reinspection just begun is for the purpose of checking up and making sure that the law is obeyed.

Laurinburg was the first of the towns to receive a reinspection, and this was officially requested by the local authorities. Spring Hope, Jamesville, Robersonville, Plymouth, Henderson, Nashville and Norwood are among others visited. From all these reports indicate the desire of the people generally to follow the provisions against the spread of typhoid fever, colitis and other diarrheal diseases the germs of which are distributed by flies.

Among recent prosecutions were three of the largest property holders in the town of Henderson. Each defendant entered plea of guilty and judgment was suspended for thirty days pending their compliance with the law. At Norwood six property owners were convicted for failure to provide sanitary privies.

R. B. Wilson.
