It was the terminal examination, and a budding philosopher concluded his essay on Mother Earth with this startling statement: "The earth revolves on its own axis 365 times in 24 hours. This rapid motion through space causes its sides to perspire; this is called dew."—London Tit-Bits

RALPH DUNBAR'S BELL RINGERS

It is doubtful if any musical feature has ever been presented to the American public which has won greater favor or obtained a wider following than that of musical bell-ringing.

The art was brought to America first in the forties, by the late P. T. Barnum. While touring England, he heard a group of a dozen church bell-ringers practicing upon hand bells and he conceived the idea of using a larger peal of bells and playing more elaborate music. These bells were made in England, as the world's best bells always have been; but in conformity with his unflinching originality as an advertiser he dressed the players both men and women, in the costumes of Swiss peasants and called the company "The Swiss Bell Ringers." For many years this company toured the United States in wagons before roads were at all general. The art at that time was so successful that our grandfathers recall most vividly the visit of "The Swiss Bell Ringers" to their native towns.

It seems that thereafter the art fell into disuse, and it was not really perfected or revived in any worthy way until 1898, when Ralph Dunbar and his brother founded the famous Dunbar Bell Ringers, at St. Joseph, Mo. These brothers went to Europe, and, seeing the really artistic possibilities, they went to England and had made, under their personal supervision, a peal of 200 bells, which are undoubtedly the most complete and most perfect set of bells which were ever cast. These bells were made under their own personal supervision by the same bell foundry that cast the great bells of Westminster Abbey and St. Paul's Cathedral, in London, as well as practically all of the well-known church bells of the world. The peal embraces more than five octaves chromatic, and through the middle register there are as many as six bells of the same note. The voices of the Dunbar Bell Ringers is the most notable of any similar company which has appeared on the American concert platform. They gave more than 2500 concerts up to 1912, when both Harry and Ralph Dunbar resigned their places in the quartet to others. The company, up to then, had traveled 490,000 miles in America and Europe. The Dunbar brothers have collected hundreds of pages of newspaper material published regarding their tours, but the patrons of the Chautauqua system are sufficiently familiar with this widely known concert company to recall the marvelous musical effects which this quartet of players obtains from this splendid peal of bells.

It may be interesting to know that the largest of these bells weighs twenty-five pounds and measures sixteen inches in diameter. The size of those proceeding upward in the scale, diminishing until the tiny bells of the upper registers are reached. In selecting the repertoire due attention is paid to the selection of music which is really appropriate for bells. There is none of us but what has thought of the important place which bells play in our mental activities due to their association with so many epoch-marking events in our lives. Perhaps no contributor to our literature has so vividly brought out this fanciful use of bells as has Edgar Allen Poe in his poem entitled "The Bells."

The feature which characterizes the programs of the Dunbar Quartet is the absolute blending of their programs into the complete whole. There is a consistency in these programs which have distinguished them among all Chautauqua attractions of the last double decade. No feature will be remembered longer than the beautiful chimes and harmonies which are introduced in their sacred selections.

Mrs. W. T. Glover, Mill Section, Roanoke Rapids, gave the following statement June 8, 1918: "A good many years ago I was troubled a lot with my kidneys and bladder. When I bent I had a hard time straightening again. I was nervous and suffered from terrible headaches. Doan's Kidney Pills, however, brought me wonderful results and I can recommend them with pleasure, as being a great kidney remedy." On December 30, 1921 Mrs. Glover added: "It has been several years since I used Doan's Kidney Pills but I certainly found them good when I took them. It is a pleasure to confirm the statement I made in 1918."
