FELIX E. ALLEY CONGRATU-
LATES ZEB WEAVER

Honorable Zebulon Weaver,
Asheville, North Carolina.
My dear Sir:

The tragic and untimely death of my brother on the night of June fifth has so completely overwhelmed me that I have had no earlier opportunity to extend to you my congratulations upon your decisive victory in last Saturday's primary election.

You knew my brother well, and I am sure you will agree with me that until I became a candidate for congress he was one of your loyal supporters.

For forty years it was his custom on each election night, to carry the returns to the County site so that he might rejoice with his friends who had won and console those who had lost. This was his mission when the light of his life was snapped out and truly may it be said of him that "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

His virtues were many; and two of them were particularly outstanding, which I have sought in my small way to emulate—fidelity to friends, and unshaken faith in the ultimate triumph of Democratic principles.

In obedience to these sentiments I am writing this letter for the purpose of tendering to you and the entire Democratic ticket my hearty support and co-operation in the coming campaign.

For the past twenty-five years, in every political contest that has been waged in this section, at my own expense, and at the sacrifice of my own time and business, I have done all I could to cause the Democratic banner to stream triumphant above the field of battle; and if my life and health shall be spared for twenty-five years longer I will continue, without reward, to fight for the triumph of the Democratic faith, because I believe that the institutions of our country can be made to endure only by the application of Democratic principles in government.

On a number of occasions since you have been running for Congress, where our speaking appointments conflicted, we have spoken from the same platform in behalf of the Democratic cause; and I suggest that we make the campaign together this fall.

It appears to me that this arrangement would have several advantages. Since we are in complete accord on the political issues of the day, we would, at the same time, present to the same audience, from the same viewpoint, the Democratic side of every question against the Republican position. The arrangement would insure us larger crowds, with less inconvenience to the public; with less expense to us, at the same time we'll demonstrate complete harmony and cooperation between us for the success of our party in the fall election.

If this suggestion meets your approval we can work out the details later on.

With best wishes for your success, and trusting that you will at all times be able to improve the opportunity for service which this nomination afforded you for the good of our District and State, I am.
