The weather the past week has been cold but pleasant.

With the next number of the STAR & RECORD will have closed its first year.

Married on Thursday, the 21st, by Rev. Carter Burnett, Esq., Alexander McClure, to Miss Elizabeth Albright, all of this Township.

The next quarterly meeting, for this circuit, will be held with the church at Kistler's Chapel, one mile North of Poors Ford, on the Spartanburg road.

We have been a little behind in getting out this number of the STAR, and only able to issue a half sheet. It is not necessary to give the reason, we all have our weak points.

A petition is to be circulated we understand, asking the Commissioners to order an election in this Township, as to whether or not liquor shall be sold in the Township—go it friends you are on the right track.

On Tuesday, the 23rd of next month, Mr. John Lynch proposes to sell to the highest bidder, his stock of goods at his store, on Broad river, 9 miles North of this place. Between now and that time persons wishing to buy goods, can get them at 20%.

On last Friday, Saturday, and Sunday was held the first quarterly meeting for this circuit, at this place. Dr. Birkhead, the presiding Elder, was here, and delivered three very interesting discourses, the one on Temperance, Saturday evening, was pre-eminently able discourse.

Hon. Jos. W. Holden, Mayor of Raleigh, died last Wednesday evening of Dropsy, at the residence of W. W. Holden, his father.

There were but few young men of our State who were his superiors in intellect, and who have filled with honor to themselves and their State the positions which he had. Though quite young, he had been speaker of the House of Representatives in the Legislature, and at a time when party spirit was high, yet he discharged his duties as a presiding officer to the satisfaction of all.

He was a member of the Baptist church and it is to be hoped has gone to receive the welcome plaudit of the great architect of the Universe, "come up higher."

Last Saturday night, about four miles from this place, on the Shelby road just after dark, James McFarland who had been to Shelby, and was on his way home, was halted by a "knight of the road", and his money or life demanded, and James not handing over his money soon enough a pistol was fired, the ball passing through the brim of James' hat.

He then handed over his money, about three dollars, and the robber allowed him to continue on his way.

We can not learn that any one is suspicious of the act; nor could it be told whether it was a white or colored man who done this deed.

We advised our citizens to be on the lookout, as we fear that there is an organized band of robbers in this county, as this is not the first attempt of the kind in this county lately.

The Postmaster General.

At home, in Hartford, Mr. Jewell is an active and consistent member of the Asylum Hill Congregational Church; and for a time, while he was Governor, he acted as precursor in leading the congregational singing at the church. He carried his religious ideas with him to Russia, and instead of devoting the Sabbath to festivity, or visiting the theater, he was accustomed, with his family, to attend the little Protestant church. He was told, on arriving at St. Petersburg, that all members of the court were accustomed to play for money, and he would have to learn or risk the loss of social position. Mr. J. replied that he never had learned to gamble, and did not think it best to commence now, and furthermore, the Secretary of Legation was quietly informed by the gentleman who filled that office, during his ministry must not be a gambler. This was strange doctrine for St. Petersburg, but he did not lose social position by its avowal, and retained the respect of the Emperor and court.

He found that Americans, visiting St. Petersburg, had no place where they would be likely to meet each other, and access to the American Minister was not so easy as desirable. So he established a free reading room at the legation, supplied with American and other newspapers, where American visitors could freely meet each other, and had his own office there, where he could readily be found by his countrymen.

Mr. Jewell has been actively interested in every public enterprise in his own city and State; is a director in the old Hartford National Bank, and in the Phoenix Fire Insurance Co. He was also interested, actively and pecuniarily, in the organization of the Travelers Life and Accident Insurance Co., and has been on its board of directors from the start. He has large executive and business ability, a boundless capacity for work, and a sunny flow of animal spirits. When examined for a life policy, a few years ago, he said, he had never been sick in his life; but once while riding across the Arabian desert he one day had a bad headache. Bringing this tireless ability to bear on our national postal service, it would seem that the President could scarcely have found a more capable man for Postmaster General.—Phrenological Journal.
