Local girls are being offered an opportunity to win fame and fortune through education and proper guidance in building a successful career for themselves by participation in the Miss Columbus County Pageant which will take place in the Tabor City school auditorium on May 5. The date for the pageant was originally set for April 29.

A sponsorship, amounting to several hundred dollars, will be awarded to the year's winner. All committees have been appointed and are now working on what they believe will be the most interesting pageant yet held in this part of the state. Miss Robin Williamson, from Conway, S. C., and a winner of numerous beauty contests throughout South Carolina, has been named to direct the pageant.

A long list of celebrities will be invited to attend the pageant either in an official capacity or as guests. Included will be Miss Ann Herring, 1961 Miss North Carolina; Miss Judith Kiptel, 1960 winner of the title, who made a tremendous hit with last year's Miss Columbus county audience.

Among the girls lined up for the new queen will be an exquisite dress from a local department store.

Sponsors of contestants are asked to contact either member of the entries committee—Harold Ward, Jimmy Garrell, Roger Mills or Richard Cox.

Yam Contest Plans Are Taking Shape

A meeting of individuals who are promoting the big sweet potato yield contest in this area met here last Thursday and outlined plans for the contest, Jimmy Garrell, announced today.

Sponsored by the Tabor City Marketing Company, the contest will offer three prizes to the farmers of Columbus and Horry counties who produce the greatest income per acre of yams harvested this fall. The winners of the contest will be honored at a banquet, presented plaques and all expenses paid trips to some undetermined area.

Sales tickets will be required of the growers in the contest to determine the actual cash income off each acre. Yams will have to be sold to dealers or canners represented by the Tabor City Marketing Company.

All entries in the contest will have to be made in writing by July 15, 1961 and all income reports filed by December 1, 1961.

A three man team of judges will determine the winners. Garrell said that the goal of this contest is to encourage the highest possible yield and quality of the yams in this area to show to growers that good profits can be made from yams when they get good yields.

Last Thursday discussion revolved around good seed for this year's crop, split application of fertilizer, early thorough cultivation, proper rotation, use of clean soil and planting in light, mellow type soil.

BIBLE SCHOOL CLINIC

Thurs. Wrecks Number Two In Tabor Area

Cecil Wayne Norris, 6, was treated in Loris Community hospital Thursday after being struck by a 1955 Pontiac driven by Lucille Thomas Blue, 30, 2610, on the Emerson road four miles north of Tabor City, according to the investigating patrolman, L. H. Baker.

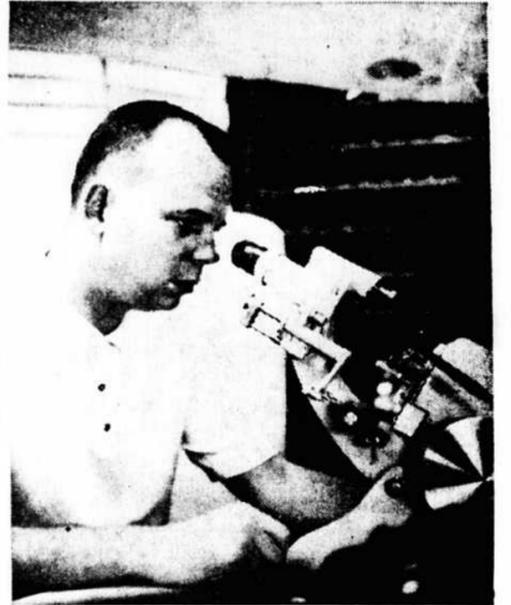

Baker's report suggested that the child ran from behind the back of a pickup truck into the path of the automobile. The child's condition was reported as satisfactory by a physician after multiple bruises.

A second accident in the area, and on the same day, happened at 9:15 a. m., and was investigated by the same trooper.

At the intersection of highway 701-A and old NC 904 near the South Carolina line, a 1957 Chevrolet driven by Junior Earl Norris, 21, Tabor City R2, collided with a 1956 Chevrolet driven by Joseph Wayne Todd, 16, also of Tabor City.

Three occupants of the Norris car were taken to the Loris hospital: Mrs. Norris, 19, suffered lacerations of the head; Sallie Thompkins, 74, Tabor City R1, lacerations of the face; and Cora Fowler, 63, Tabor City R3, bruises on the left leg.

Damage to the Norris car was approximated at $250, and $150 to the Todd car, said Baker.

DR. ROBERT L. SWEeley operates the only optical laboratory in this area and plans to open a second office in Whiteville. He is shown using one of the ultra-precise instruments with which his laboratory is equipped.

Big Easter Egg Hunt Set For Next Week

HIRAM FOWLER

They reside on West Fifth Street.

The big adult "Golden Easter Egg Hunt" in Tabor City scheduled for Friday, March 24, at 2:00 p. m. is taking shape and one of the most novel spring promotions in many years is on its way.

Already the Merchants Association has procured 100 ping pong balls and each of these balls is now being prepared with a gift certificate attached to it. March 31, all of these balls will be dropped from a low-flying airplane on to the streets of Tabor City and those persons in town for the promotion simply must receive one or more of these "Golden Eggs" in order to claim a reward of one of the many prizes participating in the promotion.

John Lovell, executive secretary of the association, has been busy for the past several days soliciting a list of prizes and the various items wanted to be given during the big event. More than 700 prizes had already been obligated early this week and Lovell expects no difficulty in raising the full 10,000 prizes.

When the "Golden Easter Eggs" are dropped, any and all will be eligible to try their best at getting some of the ping pong balls and thus the free gifts. However, those procured by children will not be returned in the stores unless the youngsters are accompanied by their parents.

Lovell pointed out that this is an "adult" Easter egg hunt, and while children are invited to come to town and help round up the free gift "eggs," they will have to have their parents with them when they redeem their catches for prizes.

Mayor Howard Harrelson presided over the court.

THE AVERAGE STUDENT may seldom make her school's honor roll, but principals believe that other assets are more important in the making of a good, successful citizen. Angella Powell, a Williams Township student, was chosen by her principal as a typical "average" student who could better benefit from State-given funds than those who will be aided if proposed "Gifted Children" legislation is passed this year. She is pictured (far right) with the bus drivers' club of which she is president.

Special Attention For Gifted Students Not Entirely Fair?

BY WRAY THOMPSON

An ambitious program for improving the public schools through the appropriation of $106,000,000 in the next biennium will be introduced to the 1961 Legislature, and includes the enactment of a law establishing a statewide program for gifted children; cost of the latter program is placed at $444,000 for 1961-62 and $504,000 for 1962-63.

Could this money not be better used to develop programs for average students, some local educators are asking.

As the money to pay for the proposed bill will be paid for by the general public, in all fairness, should not the children of the common taxpayer share equally in educational improvements?

"The world evolves around average people," one teacher thinks. "There are very few superior people in the world; most people are average, and these people are the ones for which the world is geared," he added.

An example of an "average" student was asked of several Columbus County principals. From the number submitted by Clayton Lewis, Williams Township school, the qualifications of a good student were studied, and reasons for her chances for success over those of the above-average were evident.

The student whose record was chosen for survey is Angella Powell, a senior about whom her principal commented, "I had rather depend on her to do a task well than many youngsters for whom the 'talented children' legislation will be created.

"She is the type who works very hard and gets along well with her fellow students," Lewis believes. He also thinks that children with above-average aptitudes are resented by others who are not so fortunate.

While one of Angella's teachers commented that "She has to 'dig' for all she gets," and that she is "slow but sure," another knows her to be "In-dustrious, courteous and persistent."

Although she is ranked average as a scholar, usually averaging "B" on her report cards, this fact is overpowered by the fact that she ranks highly in the domestic sciences and for extra-curricular activities.

Proof of this was that she has received a trophy for her (Continued On Page 4)

Four Convicts Escape Prison

Four convicts who escaped from the Horry County Prison Camp early Monday morning were being sought by County police officers Tuesday afternoon after some 36 hours of freedom.

The four, identified by police as Frank Rivers, Will Cox, Bernard Hickman and Jim McRae, reportedly escaped after sawing out bars in the cell in which they were housed in the Negro detention building.

Prison workers said it was presumed that the men later climbed the high woven steel double fence which surrounds the prison camp.

Officers lost track of the men Monday morning when they apparently moved into a swamp near the home of Chalmers Small west of Loris.
