

Uncle Eli

I learned somethin last week I sure was surprised at, and from what I could gather it's been a goin' on for about five years now. The funny part about it is I still wouldn't know about it, I don't guess, if it hadn't been for old Nancy, our brood sow. Bless her heart, she's brought us 43 pigs in the four litters she's farrowed since we've had her, but blame her time, she still gits out of the pasture ever once in awhile.

I'd jest come in the house after rumm' her for about 30 minutes before fixin her back in the pen and fixin the fence. I was so near give out that I set down to sort of catch my breath. Fannie had the radio on a listenin while she was doin some patchin, so while I was blowin' I turned one of my ears to what was being said over the radio. It weren't but a minute though before I had both ears tuned in.

Yessir, when I heard this feller Tower a sayin that people weren't eatin as many eggs as they used to, I thought either he's a lyn or he don't know what he's a talkin about, one or the other. By the time he got done talkin though, he had pretty well made up my mind that what he was sayin was the truth. He let go with a whole string of figures about how many eggs is been laid in the state each year now and how many are been eat, but I can't remember none of 'em. One of 'em that did stick with me though was one he used in tellin about the difference in the number of eggs we're eatin now against what we were eatin 5 years ago. He kept talkin about some kind of per-capita, per capita or somethin like that, Fannie said he was a sayin per capita, which she says is one person, but I don't know whether she knows any more about it than I do.

Anyhow, if that's what it means, then each per capita is eatin three dozen less eggs than he was a eatin five years ago. That's what surprised me so. Way, I bet I'm eatin three dozen more than I was five years ago and Fannie, why she eats that many every month in egg-nog alone.

It's funny how people's habits change. Accordin to Mr. Tower, and he ought to know what he's a talkin about cause he's one of them marketin fellows with the Agriculture Department over at Raleigh, a lot of people ain't eatin no breakfast a tall now. Them's bound to be people who work in a office or who don't work, one or the other. By Ned, if they spent most of their days a doin what I do, I promise you they'd start the day off with a good breakfast in their stomachs.

Why, I don't even go out to feed my stock of a mornin until I've had least one egg to eat. These people who can drink a cup of coffee, eat a piece of toasted light-bread and call that breakfast ought to come stick their legs under mine and Fannie's table one mornin. Ever once in awhile we'll have some oatmeal or mush, and maybe on a Sunday mornin we'll have some pancakes, but regardless of what else we have there's always some eggs on the table. They may be boiled one mornin, scrambled the next and fried whole the next, but they're eggs just the same and they're always ate.

Just as Mr. Tower finished talkin and they told us what the weather was goin to do for the rest of the day, I turned off the radio. Fannie asked me what I did that for and I told her I wanted to talk to her while I was eatin. So, I asked her what she thought about people a eatin down on their knees eatin Fannie a right outspoken sort of person and she upped and said, "Well, everybody's got a right to their own opinion but since my life I can't understand why people who can have a good breakfast of eggs ever mornin don't eat 'em."

SAVE REPLANTING! INCREASE YIELDS!

KILL WIREWORMS with CHLORDANE IN TOBACCO TRANSPLANT WATER!

Wireworm larvae damage tobacco transplants by feeding on the roots and stems. Unless wireworms are controlled, it may be necessary to replant large areas, or settle for greatly reduced yields. It's easy to control wireworms, though. All you have to do is add Chlordane to your transplant water. No extra work is required. The cost is just a few cents per acre, and increased yields more than pay for it. All principal tobacco growing states recommend Chlordane for wireworm control. Use it this year to protect your crop!

NO EXTRA WORK / SAFE / VERSATILE / ECONOMICAL LASTING RESIDUAL ACTION / NO OFFENSIVE ODOR!
