ANOTHER DISCRIMINATION.

Editor Journal—We read frequently of the results obtained by the "Greater Western North Carolina Association" organized some two years ago for the purpose of advertising the advantages of this section to the outside world, and while we are all glad to hear of anything good concerning our neighbors we people of Sylva are sorry to learn that although Jackson County is a member of the Association and has paid its assessment of $400 as her share of the advertising fund, most of which was paid by the town and has been actively represented in its conferences, Sylva has not yet gained a place on the map of resort towns in its territory through its efforts as shown by the fact that it is impossible to buy a round trip summer excursion ticket to Sylva at any point in the world, so far as we know.

People who have been induced, through other influences that the efforts of the G. W. N. C. Association, to come to Sylva having been denied the convenience of buying a round trip ticket to Sylva and having been forced to buy their tickets to Dillsboro as the very best they could do have naturally formed the opinion that Sylva is only a wide place in the road or at best a flag station.

A conductor on one of the Southern, main line, trains almost had nervous prostration when during last year he was presented with a straight ticket from Danville, Va. to Sylva and it was only after the most elaborate explanation of the location of the town that he reluctantly accepted it for the passage of this article.

It is hoped that the attention of the Greater Western North Carolina Association having been called to this matter that its efforts may secure for Sylva the advantage of being one of the towns entitled to the round trip privilege.

OBITUARY OF DAVID GREEN.

David Gseen was born March 9 1843, died July 6, 1913. He was married to Eliza Quilliams August 1, 1861. He was the father of seven children, six living, one having died in infancy; 36 grandchildren and 4 great grand children. He joined the Baptist church at Old Savannah when a boy and lived a faithful member until his death. He was also a confederate veteran.

He was liked by all who knew him. He was a kind and affectionate father, but it has pleased God to call him from his earthly home to a home beyond where he will await his loved ones to join him.

Dear father, so brave, so good, so true:

So patient all his sufferings through
To death's dark tide;

So sweet, so pure, without a stain,
So noble that through days of pain
He soothed our fears with hope's refrain;

And yet he died.

As time still goes his weary round
There's left to us but the little mound

We kneel beside;

And as we wet it with our tears,
And talk about those happy years—
Ere father died.

And thus the days must come and go,
Till borne on time's unceasing flow

Beyond the tide.

We see him wave with angel hand
Our welcome to a fairer land

And then perhaps we'll understand
Why father died.

Father, thou art gone to rest;
Thy groans we'll hear no more;

And sorrow, pain and suffering now

Shall ne'er distress thee more.
Father, thou art gone to rest;
And this shall be our prayer,
That when we reach our journey's end
Thy glory we shall share.

Through all pain at times he'd smile,
A smile of heavenly birth,
And when the angels called him home,
He smiled farewell to earth.

Heaven retaineth now our treasure
Earth the lonely casket keeps,
And the sunbeams long to linger
Where our sainted father sleeps.

It looks as though there is something radically wrong somewhere, when John Jacob Astor's widow will spend between forty and forty-five thousand dollars for medical attendance for her baby at birth, and the good old State of North Carolina can not afford to spend but forty-two thousand dollars annually on the lives and health of its two and a quarter millions of babies, children and adults. When forty-two thousand dollars is used to fight tuberculosis, typhoid, malaria, diarrhoea, diseases of children, hook-worm, diptheria, etc., among two and a quarter millions of people, of course it has to be spread out rather thin.

A vast amount of ill health is due to impaired digestion. When the stomach fails to perform its functions properly the whole system becomes deranged. A few doses of Chamberlain's Tablets is all you need. They will strengthen your digestion, invigorate your liver, and regulate your bowels, entirely doing away with that miserable, ifeeling due to faulty digestion. Try it.
