SPEEDWELL.

The writer witnessed the closing exercises of the Bible Conference at Sylva and is very much impressed with the movement. Many able men of different denominations addressed the Conference. These addresses were a treat to the people who heard them.

We are proud of our original mountain talent, and hope that Western North Carolina will soon develop in such a way that it can afford as great opportunities to hold among us our mountain talent as any other section of the country. Our wealth and population are increasing rapidly and soon North Carolina will be the Mecca of the South land. Arrangements are under way for another Bible Conference at Sylva next year.

Cullowhee townships has garnered over 5000 bushels of wheat for its 1913 crop, and its corn crop is fine. It seems to me, that with an abundant crop of every thing growing and a free treatment for Hook Worm, every body could be prosperous and happy.

Mrs. Steve Smith and children from S. C. are visiting Mrs. Smith's "son Henry" for a few days.

L. C. Pressley of Piedmont S. C. is shaking hands with old friends at Speedwell for a few days.

Joe Davis, his mule and his dog were water bound over night at Speedwell last week.

Homer Smith and family from S. C. are visiting relatives and friends at Speedwell.

Mrs. Fannie Pinion of Texas is visiting her mother Mrs. Bettie Knight.

Mrs. Nellie Hooper, who is in the hospital at Asheville, is improving and we hope she will soon be able to return to Speedwell.

J. H. Alley has gone to Glenville and Franklin on business.

Hawley Powell of Sylva was on our streets Tuesday.

WINTER COVER CROPS.

Ten Thousand Farmers Wanted to Form a Cover Crop Club.

The Farmers' Co-operative Demonstration Work is asking for the names and addresses of all farmers whom it can induce to join a Cover Crop Club. It wants the names of farmers who have never grown a cover crop and of those who will increase their acreage of this crop. There are no fees or dues attached to the work. All that is asked in return for the assistance rendered is that the farmer give a report of the crop. In counties where there is a Demonstration Agent, application should be made to him. In other counties names should be sent to the State Agent at Raleigh. Be sure to state the number of acres you propose to add and the kind of crop or crops which you wish to grow. Instructions will be sent to all those who apply for them.

VALUE OF COVER CROPS.

A few of the valuable features of a cover crop may be named as follows—

1. It prevents loss of soil fertility by washing. Lands that lie bare during the winter may lose more plant food by leaching than is used by the crop that grows there during the summer.

2. It furnishes grazing to stock at a time when food of all kinds is scarce. It also produces health and vigor in animals and keeps up a good flow of milk of dairy cows. Any successful system of live-stock production is largely dependent upon winter as well as summer grazing.

3. If we ever establish an enduring and prosperous agriculture in the State we shall have to get humus (vegetable or organic matter) into our soils. Growing a winter cover crop is one of the ways of doing this. All farmed lands should grow at least two crops per year,—a sale crop and a soil-improvement crop whether this is left on the land or first fed to stock and then returned there. A decline in soil fertility is not always due to a lack of nitrogen, potash or phosphoric acid. It is often due to the absence of humus.

There are ten or plants that are suitable for winter growing in North Carolina. One or more of them is adapted to the various soil types and sections of the State. We shall be pleased to enroll all farmers who will help carry forward this important movement.

Cordially yours,
Raleigh, N. C. C. R. Hudson,
July 25, 1913. State Agent, Demonstration Work.

Within the past week storms have visited this immediate section almost daily, causing considerable damage to the crops and the floor's which resulted damaged a number of property owners. Academy street here has been washed by the water which followed the rains until great piles of stone used in paving that thoroughfare were heaped up at the intersection with Main street. The town has been put to some expense in repaving the street and it is believed that some action will have to be taken in order to prevent a recurrence of the damage.—Gazette

ZACHARY REUNION

The Zachary Monumental Association, will meet in Cashier's Valley, the last Saturday in this month (August) that being the day fixed for their annual reunion.

To those of the relatives who have not seen Bob Zachary for more than the age of a generation, I wish to say that he stated, in a letter to me, last week that he would attend the coming reunion.

Respectfully,
R. H. Zachary.
