STATE MAYGET HIGH HONORS

"North Carolina will probably be honored by having one of the big new battleships named after it, so I notice in the newspapers," said R. K. Baird, formerly of Edenton, but now holding a department government position in Washington. Mr. Baird is in Asheville for a brief vacation.

"Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels will probably designate battleship No. 39 as the U. S. S. North Carolina." Work on the big sea fighter has just commenced at the New York navy yard. With the Pennsylvania, its sister ship, recently started at the Newport News ship yards, it is the largest battleships yet laid by the navy. North Carolina is at present represented by a cruiser but its name will be changed to one of the cities of the state, Asheville, Charlotte or Winston-Salem, according to the information that we have in Washington.—Citizen.

SYLVA SCHOOLS.

The Sylva High School opened for it's fall session Monday with a large enrollment under an excellent corps of teachers. Prof. Brothers is principal, G. Taylor Hampton assistant Principal, and the teachers are Misses Inez Cathey, Inez Weaver, Bertha May Henson and Gertrude Wilson.

WEBSTER.

The Webster school opened Monday with a very good crowd of pupils and the prospects are bright for a good school this year. Rev. Chas. H. Utley of Cooleemee is the principal and is assisted by the following well known teachers of Jackson; Mr. J. C. Moore who has taught in the Schools of Jackson for several years giving perfect satisfaction, Miss Lillian Stillwell who is well known for her ability as a teacher, Miss Nannie Frizell who promises to be one of Jackson's most efficient teachers. With this splendid corps of teachers there is no reason why we should not have one of the best schools in the county.

The farmers out this way are beginning to take their fodder and prepare for the winter. Crops are very good in this section and it seems that most every one has tried to make something on the farm this year.

We have had several summer board thers is year and they are welcome guests; we hope to have more of them next year.

Joseph D. Self is at home for a short stay.

Ramsey Buchanan has returned to school at the A. & M. College at Raleigh.

Rev. G. N. Cowan and family are spending some time with home folks.

Mrs. Eugene Bearden has been spending several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Moore.

Hon. W. E. Moore has been at Brevard on legal business for the past week.

Little Miss Bessie Lee Moss who has had her leg taken off is doing nicely and we hope for her a speedy recovery.

Uncle Daniel K. Moore, who has been confined to his bed most of this summer and who had the misfortune to fall the other day and throw his hip out of place, is improving slowly.

The county commissioners held their regular monthly meeting Monday and several people attended.

Albert Moss and Pole Higdon captured a still Monday morning and brought it to town. They also caught a man by the name of Mason; he was in the still house; he is now in jail waiting trial at the next term of court.

Editor Dan Tompkins was in town Monday—

MAKE YOUR VARIETY THE BEST

Where fowls are confined to small yards they need very careful attention, particularly in hot weather, to keep them from contracting some disease.

When the weather gets very hot the odor from a lot of filthy surroundings is not very conducive to health. If the house is well cleaned every few days, as it should be, that is not all. The yard should be spaded or turned over in some way in order to have the tainting from the continued droppings scattered over the yard turned under where they will be dissolved and taken care of by the contact with the fresh earth. Then you have the fresh ground on top ready for the fowls to work on.

It is really an advantage to grow some crop upon the ground, as the the growth of the crop takes up all the impurities in the soil.

This is so easily done unless you have double yards that you can use one while the other is being seeded down. Then there is the movable run which some have used with success. It is the plan of seeding the yard, having a wire n tting run say, four by eight feet and two or two and a half feet high, according to the kind of fowls kept. This yard is kept in one place two or three days and then moved to a fresh place. Allowing all the rest of the yard to be vacant for the growth of the green stuff.

A good dust bath place is a very essential thing at any time of the year, but specially so in hot weather. Where you are turning over the ground for the sake of getting the droppings under and not raising green stuff, the mellow dirt freshly plowed or spaded makes a regular play ground for the hens or chickens of all ages and sizes.

Where it is not possible to raise any quantity of green stuff at a time, it is a good plan to make a frame of 1x6 boards 3x6 feet into which sow a half bushel of oats after having soaked it overnight in water enough to cover it. Have your frame located upon smooth hard ground; cover the oats with about one inch of loose soil and water well every day. When the sprouts show through well it is ready to feed.

When you wish to feed it take a garden hoe and slip the blade of it under the oats and all and lift it straight up and you can carry to where you wish to feed it. This not only makes the finest green food you can obtain, but it will as a rule be full of worms, too, which will give them something to work on for some time.

When your fowls' combs have a very dark red look on them it is a sign that they have some form of liver trouble or indigestion, and they need more of this good green stuff regularly all the while, and it should be provided or they will not do well. Do not pay any attention to the other fellow; let him run his business the way he chooses, but you want to stick to the breed that you have and make it the best breed on earth and there will soon be many others who will be thinking the same way and want your stock. I have known a good many breeders who have made themselves leaders and that, too, with what many people supposed was an unpopular fowl. They simply showed people that it was as good as the

NEW CITY OFFICERS.

At a meeting of Aldermen and a mass meeting of the citizens Wednesday night, M. Buchanan was nominated for Mayor by the Citizens and elected by the Aldermen. C. C. Mason was appointed Marshall.

We have excellent town officers now and it is up to the citizens of the town as to whether we will have the law enforced in the town. The officers no matter how efficient cannot preserve order and punish the offenders unless they have the moral support of the citizens. They must be upheld by public opinion. We believe that the people of Sylva will stand behind the new officers in the discharge of their duty and if they do a few blind tigers and other animals can be put entirely out of business in this locality.

ALLISON-DYERS.

J. Claude Allison formerly of Sylva and a Jackson County boy, son of Mr. S. C. Allison of Barkers Creek and a brother of Chas. L. Allison, of Sylva was married to Miss Florence Dyers at Hotel Multhamah in Portland Ore., July 4th. The young couple returned to their home in Oak Point Washington where they now live. All of Claude's old friends in Jackson wish them long, happy and useful lives.

best for all practical purposes and the show room, too. A breed is pretty near what one chooses to make it. One man will take it and with his shiftless and careless way of handling it lead observers to think that it is of but little use, and he will eventually drop it for something not as good.

If you really think that the breed that you are handling is not as good for you at least as some other one would be, sell it off and make a change for the one that you are sure will have confidence in, for you will never do much with a variety that does not suit you. It is a good deal like telling every one with whom you talked that your wife was no account. Such a procedure would soon be the means of making her really no account to you. There is nothing like having things matched up right. You should take an intense interest in the hens you are keeping and then they will "Johnny on the spot" for you, if you will allow the expression.—Southern Ruralists.
