On July the 18th, 19, and 20th, the Club Encampment will be held at Cherokee for the boys and girls from Swain and Jackson counties. Club Encampments are held in practically all organized counties in North Carolina, as a recreational feature to club work.

In addition to the recreational side of our program, special courses will be given to the girls in clothing, canning, and jelly making. This program is the one which is being given at the Girl's Short Course in Raleigh this week. Mrs. Estelle T. Smith of Goldsboro will assist me in putting on this program.

Judging from the interest which has been shown, we expect to have a banner attendance.

Special instructions will be sent to each club member the latter part of this month, giving definite plans for the Encampment.

Strawberry Preserves

2 lbs. berries. 1 1/2 lbs. sugar. 1 cup berry juice.

Pick over the fruit and put together all firm, perfect berries, slightly heat, crush and strain enough to make a cup of juice. Make a sirup of sugar and juice, bring to the boiling point, remove from the fire, and cool before adding the berries. Add the berries a few at a time. Place again over the fire and heat slowly to boiling. Cook until berries are bright and transparent. Cool and pack cold in jars which have been previously boiled. Place the jars in a kettle with a rack or a towel in the bottom. Fill kettle three-fourths full of water and process pint jars at simmering temperature 1/2 hour. Other berries may be preserved in the same way.

This method of preserving is much better than soaking the berries and sugar over night. When the sugar is added to the berries several hours before the preserves are to be made, the process of osmosis takes place, or the drawing out of the juice of the berries. After the sugar extracts the juice, the berries will be dark and tough after they are preserved. In addition to making an inferior product you have a very small quantity in comparison to the amount produced under scientific methods of preserving.
