beetle. "This insect became established inAlabama about 1919-and has spread chiefly to the northeast, with some indications of a preference for rather high cool climate. It invaded our counties of Cherokee and Clay in 1921 and by the end of 1922 was in some six or eight counties. Meanwhile it spread across north Georgia and into South Carolina, and also through Tennessee and into Kentucky. During 1923 it has spread into the southwestern part of Virginia and into Ohio.

"Messrs. Mitchell and Harris of our force have just returned from a sconting tour to determine the limits of its spread in our State for this year. They have found it in portions of the counties of Polk,Rutherford, Cleveland, and Gaston, this presumably representing its northward spread from South Carolina. We also know it to be in Madison which evidently is a result of spreading up the French Broad River from State-bred beetles are spreading from county to county through our girom county to county through our mountains. family, and can both crawl and fly freely. It is about one-fourth inch long, yeller or brassy with small black spots. A closely related species with larger spots is often found on pumpkin and squash. This new-comer has a decided preference for beans, especially the table varieties.

"On a recent trip I went into Cherokee County to sense the attitude of the people who have now had it in full force for two years. Some think it has been less destructive than last year. In many gardens early beans were 'eaten up' but later plantings, though damaged, have made a fair crop.

"It looks to me as if it will present as serious an issue, with regard to table beans as the common potato beetle did with regard to Irish potatees fifty years ago."

The Executive Board of the Tuck assegee BaptistAssociation will meet in Sylva on Saturday, November 10. All requests for AssociationalAid must be presented to the chairman or secretary of the Board before that date in order to be passed upon by the Committee.

HITS BILLBOARDS

Speaking before a meeting of the Florida Development Board, Karl Lethmann placed newspaper advertising ahead of every other form and the value of the calves from scrub declared that "one hundred dollars spent in legitimate newspaper advertising is worth more than $1,000 spent in sign posting along the high-Ways."

As the third step in the program of state highway beautification he deelared that "unsightly signs along the highways must come down; they are poor advertising and have no right on the public highways.

"It is better to save an old tree than to plant a new one, and a sentiment can soon be created that will save many fine old trees from destruction. A fool can cut down a few minutes what it took God a century to grow," said Mr. Lehmann .-American Press.

The need is better bulls, and many farmers want these bulls now, but the matter of purchase price, feed and care makes many of them hesitate.

The remedy is to form cooperative bull associations as practiced by the dairymen. Mr. Lewis says, "Most of Western North Carolina cattle cows. For one farmer to purchase care and feed a good bull for the entire community is not going to work as the service fees are small and many of them remain unpaid.

"Many farmers are asking what is a good bull worth? How much can I afford to pay for one? The car of common 800 pound steers in the Spruce Pine sale brought $4.60 per 100 pounds while the good steers of the same weight brought $6.25 per 100pounds-a difference of $1.65 per 100 pounds, or $13.20 per steer of 800 pounds. Now, by using a sire properly fifty calves may be secured from him in one year. When one calf as a coming two year old-dropped in spring and sold in the fall of the year following-is worth $13.20 more than the common calf, we may state that the good bred bull is worth$660.00 more than the that the scrub, as well as the purebred, is to have feed and a certain amount of attention and the $660.00 represents an income over and above animals. "The sensible thing to do then is to form bull associations similar to the plan worked out by the dairymen whereby three to five bulls may be bought by 20 to 30 farmers and the bulls put in three to five communities-one for each community. At the end of every two years these bulls are exchanged,-the bull in community or block No. 1 going to block No. 2 and on down. If five bulls are used in five blocks there would be good bulls in these five communities for 10 years with no more additional cost unless the death of a bull should occur. These five bulls can be bought for $1000.00 or $200.00 each and each year they are worth five times $660.00 or $3300.00 on in ten years $33000.00 more than the value sion Service of the State College and as the most beautiful estate in the mountains, or in the state, with the possible exception of the Vanderbilt estate at Biltmore. It is thought in business circles that the development of High Hampton as a summer resort is one of the most important steps that has been taken in promoting the tourist industry in Western North Carolina in recent years. It is located on state highway 106, leading from Sylva to South Carolina, and on the mountain highway from Hendersonville, by Brevard, and Lake Toxaway, in Transylvania county, Lake producers are keeping only a few Fairfield, and Cashiers Valley in Jackson county, Highlands and Franklin, in Macon county, and on to Atlanta and the south. High Hampton is in Cashiers Valley, which isn't a valley at all, but a broad plateau, almost on top of the Blue Ridge, and with an average altitude of about 3500 feet above the sea level. Cashiers Valley has been known to the people of South Carolina as a summer resourt since before the War Between the States, in the days when they traveled by stage over the Sloan turnpike to the small hostelries and many summer homes in The Valley.

HendersonvilleNews,Oct. 25-"Balfour Mills" is the name given the cotton mill enterprise of Capt. Ellison A. Smyth of Greenville and Hendersonville and his associates.

The mill proper will be erected on the hillside to the southeast of the Balfour depot, occupying portions of the orphanage and Clement properties.

This exact location was decided upon last Friday when Capt. Smyth, his associates and J. E. Sirrine of J. E. Sirrine & Company, engineers of Greenville, reviewed the site.

Work on the mill, which will mean a village of about 1000 people around Rev. Wm. Pruitt, of Hazelwood, the Balfour railroad station, will go forward just as rapidly as preparations can be made.

Three engineers are now on the ground, having arrived Monday. They are making a detailed survey of the property, consisting of about 200 acres, and then will return to Greenville and make their plats. The engineers on the job are J.W.Marshall, J. P. Plowden and Ed-Rose.

A development costing about$650 .-000 is contemplated. In addition to the factory a village will be built. and the exact location of the principal structures aside from the mill will be determined after the engineers' maps are made, showing the streets, parks and general lay out of what is elieved will be a very modern and attractive mill village.
