Sylva Needs A New Hotel.

Sylva Is Going TO Have A New Hotel.

It now appears that this Dayton trial doth make monkeys of us all.

As to it, Chamber of Commerce, the folks are all with it.

The people of the unfavored lowlands are hieing to the highlands.

Really people who live where there are no mountain and no trout streams have our deepest sympathy.

The argument favoring the financial asset to this region of the proposed national park is that most of the nation's park near it.

The lumber men are opposing the national park in the Smokies; but one thing is sure: The timber can all be used, and the mineral removed from the ground, but the value of this comparatively small area, as a tourist drawing card, is inexhaustible.

The farmers' chautauqua next week: attend it.

NEVER CLAIMED COLE

Declares the Columbia Record: 'Caesar's Head is only the highest point in South Carolina but it is so wonderful in scenic potentialities that North Carolina usually tried to claim it, just like it tries to claim other South Carolina products.' There is one South Carolina product which North Carolina has never tried to claim. It is Cole Blease.—Asheville Times.

HENRY C. BRYSON—CITIZEN

On the death, last night, of Henry C. Bryson, of Cullowhee nay of Jackson county, nay of Western North Carolina, the county has lost heavily. Still a young man, Henry Bryson had, for years identified himself with every movement for the betterment of community, his county, and his state. He stood for things that would make his county a better place in which to live. His was the kind of citizenship of which every county needs above all else. In the church, in the Sunday School, in his fraternal order, in civic work wherever he found a place Henry Bryson, known affectionately to all of Jackson county as "Henry", was striving for the things that make life more worth living; and we could always count on Henry Bryson being ready to lend his counsel and his labor to help keep things moving in the direction of greater, better things.

He has done with his might what his hands found to do.

THE FARMERS' CHAUTAUQUA.

It is to be hoped that the farmers and farm women of this county, and that includes us all, will take advantage of the excellent program that has been arranged for the farmers' chautauqua, to be held in Sylva, beginning one week from tomorrow.

Some of the leaders of thought of the state will be here to present the possibilities of development of our beautiful region, along the various ramifications of agricultural endeavor, to stimulate interest in promoting these activities, with a view to making Jackson county a better place of putting money into the pockets of our people, and thus making this county a better place in which to live.

The program will be decidedly worth while. The high standing of the men and women who have part in it assures that. There will be something of interest, many things, of both interest and profit to all the people, both men and women, who will attend. There will be athletic events and other things to amuse.

The business men of Sylva and Dillboro working with the state extension service, have arranged the program. They have provided the money to finance it, so that there will be no admission charges. And they will be greatly disappointed if you are not all here.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE STARTS

Praise be!

The people of Sylva are wholeheartedly cooperating in building a town. We can expect to see young Sylva begin to hump herself.

When a large and representative crowd of the men of Sylva met, last Thursday evening, and organized the Chamber of Commerce, they meant business. They meant what they said when they endorsed the organization and planked down the cash to make the mare go.

There never was a little town, in all progressive North Carolina, that had a greater opportunity than has latterly thrust itself upon this same town of Sylva.

The county seat of one of the best counties in North Carolina, we have a climate that is superior throughout the year, and a thousand and one other natural advantages. Sylva is now the hub of the great highway system of Western North Carolina. Radiating from it, and passing through it are the Appalachian Scenic Highway, the Asheville Atlanta short route, North Carolina's great road, No. 10, running through the length of the state the great scenic route by Cullowhee, East La Porte and Tuckaseige to Cashiers' Valley. All these speak loudly for Sylva as the logical place for a great little city.

The only thing that has been needed is coordination of brain and of effort, through an organized body. That is now an actuality.

A live Chamber of Commerce, backed by the people of the town, should be able to accomplish much in making Sylva into the kind of a town we would all like to see it.

Another thing—The Sylva Chamber of Commerce is working, not only for Sylva, but for the entire county of Jackson. What is good for Jackson county is good for Sylva, and what is good for Sylva is good for Jackson county. It is impossible to make an improvement or better a condition in any part of the county without helping Sylva and transversely it is impossible to make an improvement in Sylva without helping the entire county.

Realizing this, the Sylva Chamber of Commerce stands for a greater Jackson county.

Let's go!

Never Before a Value Like This

The Super-Six principle exclusive to Hudson and Essex, is responsible for the largest selling 6-cylinder cars in the world, because it gives results in smooth, brilliant action, reliability and economy never attained by any other type. This Essex, in all ways, is the finest ever built. Easier riding and driving, more flexible in performance, handsomer in line and finish, it is also lower in price than ever before.

COL. OLDS AT CULLOWHEE

Cullowhee, July 15.—Colonel Fred A. Olds, member of the Historical Commission of North Carolina, was a visitor at the Cullowhee Summer School today. He stated that he was delighted with the progress the School is making. When he asked permission for his traveling companion to dance with one of the young ladies, he was refused. "But this is a co-ed school", he protested. Someone informed him, "Yes, but it is not co-educational in all its branches." Colonel Olds promised to return for a longer visit, after the completion of a tour he is making to High Hampton, Brevard, Asheville, Morganton, Lenoir and other points in the Western part of the State. At High Hampton he will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. McKee.

W. E. Bird, Dean of the Cullowhee Normal School has returned after a year's leave of absence spent at the University of North Carolina where he studied for a degree of doctor of philosophy. He made the opening address of welcome to the students of the second Summer School at the Auditorium this morning.

Having welcomed the students made a short talk upon a timely subject, considering the present in the Modernist-Fundamentalist controversy. He made a plea for interest in the things that matter rather than the unessential which sometimes cutthroat and number one's life. The things that touch one's daily life. Reading the 14th Psalm, Mr. Bird said the goal was not the Fundamentalist the Modernist but the man who unites the power, personality, and existence of God.
