GREAT MINERAL WEALTH AWAITS DEVELOPMENT

Raleigh, Jan. 31.—Inestimable millions of dollars in mineral resources await development to add materially to the income of North Carolina, declares that the outstanding need is thirty-third district, chairman of the senate committee on mines.

Since taking his seat this year in the Senate, Chairman Roane has been making a close study of the opportunity to the State through its mineral deposits. As a result of his efforts in this direction, Senator Roane declares that the outstanding need is for the State to take the lead in pointing out the value of her assets in this line.

Coming from the extreme southwest part of North Carolina, one of the richest mining districts in the State, Senator Roane is taking an acute interest in aiding the development of minerals of the State. He has expressed keen interest in the work of the Department of Conservation and Development toward this purpose, complimenting the Geology and Publicity Divisions on their efforts toward research and placing the facts before the public.

"Mining and Forestry," says Senator Roane, "are two of our most valuable assets, and with the decline in our forest area, renewed interest is placed on our mines. Wrapped within the folds of the ranges of the Appalachians are huge sources of wealth that have never been touched. It is true that North Carolina has been active in bringing the facts before the world of this great potential wealth, but the surface has scarcely been scratched. We need to provide better for the needs of the State Geologist to meet the demands which are made upon him in determining the quality, extent and value of various deposits."

"In my district alone, which includes Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Macon and Swain counties, there is research enough to occupy the entire time of the State Geologist for a considerable period."

"Some of our valuable minerals in this section includes asbestos, building stones, gold, silver, kaolins, and many others. Recent years have noted material strides in the production of most of these minerals and the future gives still brighter promise for a greatly increased output."

Senator Roane declares that the construction of highways in the mountains is one of the most valuable aids toward the exploitation of the minerals of the section. He pointed out that the experiences of rich mineral sections in greatly increased volume has proven this point. Swain, his home county, he continued, is now constructing a highway to extend to the Tennessee border which should be another stimulus to the development of the county. Copper mining in Swain county, the Senator declared, is increasing, with the Fontana mines now shipping two car loads daily and preparing to add to this.

The Senator enjoys the distinction of being the second democrat to be elected to the State Senate from his district in more than a quarter of a century.

His ability has already been recognized through his appointment as chairman of the committee on mines, and as a member of 13 senate committees.

For 21 years, Mr. Roane has operated a large mercantile establishment in Whittier; for four years he served as Sheriff of Swain County; and has served five years as a member of the school board of the county, resigning this office to assume that of State Senator. During the time that he was a member of the school board, the schools of the county recorded a most progressive period. He is a member of the Methodist church in Whittier and has served as superintendent of the Sunday school for a number of years.

Senator Roane declares that the establishment of the proposed Great Smoky Mountain National Park will add one of the most valuable features of interest to the State of North Carolina. "These Mountains are among the most beautiful in the country," he declared, "and it is most fitting that we should convert the area into a National Park to save to the nation unspoiled this wonderful area."

McKEE URGES BUYING AT HOME

The Journal is in receipt of the following letter from James W. McKee, assistant manager of the mail order department of Marshall Field and Company, Chicago, in which he points out the advantages of buying at home. Mr. McKee is a native Jackson county boy who has made good in Chicago, and his advance there has been watched with pleasure by his Jackson county friends.

Chicago, Jan. 28, 1928

Mr. Dan Tompkins,
Editor Jackson County Journal,
Sylva, North Carolina.

Dear Sir:—

I cannot and will not continue to exist further without the Jackson County Journal, you and the Postal Service willing. I am enclosing a money order herewith, for which please add me to your mailing list. Write the name prominently so that it will not be overlooked when the mail goes out.

Just a few words of appreciation for the fight which the Journal has always waged for Sylva, Jackson County and North Carolina in general. Heavens knows that it has never had the proper support from the people in anything that it has ever undertaken. I have always been for the Journal and with the Journal, as most everyone is but have just been contented to sit at the ringside with the rest of them and watch it do its stuff. I herewith decorate you and the Journal for the service which you have rendered in trying to keep the money in the old home town to nourish its growth.

There is absolutely no valid argument for spending your money away from your home community. It is only by the merest accidental chance that one can hope to secure even a slight temporary advantage and this is more than offset by the fact that the money has left the community never to return to the channels of trade in your locality. Of course a single small item sent away would not make much difference but when people send away so that it amounts into sums of hundreds of dollars in the aggregate, then it becomes a very serious matter for the community.

If everybody, for instance in Sylva, would make it a practice to send away for their merchandise, business enterprises of Sylva would vanish for they could not live without patronage. It is only due to the fact that all do not send away their money that the community is sure to survive and those who do business in their home town are the ones who should have credit for the schools, churches, and public conveniences. They are only possible through the public enterprises and business of your home town.

Of course there are sometimes inequalities that arise to discourage home trade. There may happen to be a short sighted business man who does not fully appreciate his opportunity for service to the people of his home community, but it is a sure thing that he will sooner or later be eliminated, for business especially in the smaller cities and towns, is based on service.

The value of the business done in the town is definitely reflected in real estate values throughout their entire county and neighboring territories and thus brings the question of the importance of home trade directly to the door of the farmer as well as anybody else, for it determines the value of his farm. There is also the social side, churches, schools and so forth, as well as many other things of a public measure, to be enjoyed by the general public.

The only reason I can offer for this outburst is that I am trying to show you that I am with you, although I am far away. Trusting that I will soon be in receipt of the Journal and with best wishes for the continuance of your success, I am

Very truly yours,

GOOD FARM TOOLS MAKE WORK LIGHT

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 2.—The well equipped farm shop that is warm and well lighted will pay for itself over and over again.

"Not only will the well equipped farm shop make the work of repairing and conditioning farm implements much lighter on the owner but the influence over the growing boy must not be overlooked," says David S. Weaver, agricultural engineer at State College. "Many of our present day inventions owe their beginning to the handling of tools in the farm shop. Many of our engineers and the heads of our gigantic industrial corporations had their first training and received their first practical knowledge of tools in the farm shop."

Prof. Weaver states that every boy and most men like to make things with their hands. There are any number of necessary labor saving devices for both the farm and the home that may be made easily and pleasantly in the farm shop. A good set of wood and metal working tools does not have to be purchased at one time. It is best to add such tools as they are needed and then keep them in good condition after they have been purchased. It never pays to buy cheap tools. They are always more expensive in the end.

Every progressive farm should be equipped with a good farm workshop. Machinery can be repaired during spare hours, many implements can be built at home at little cost and much time can be saved by the owner's ability to make small adjustments on the home place. There are other advantages which the owner will find after he has equipped his shop, states Prof. Weaver, and certainly the boy will be given his chance to develop any ability that he may have with tools.

COULD NOT MOVE NECK AN INCH

Relief was immediate and complete after one application

C. M. Ballantine of 85 Kilbowie Road, Clydebank, Glasgow, writes all the way from Scotland to tell of his remarkable experience in getting rid of an acute "crick in the neck."

"I couldn't move my neck an inch," he says. "I applied Sloan's Liniment, hoping that it might ease the pain somewhat. By the time my shaving water was heated, the stiffness had completely gone."

Sloan's Liniment gets these amazing results not by just deadening the nerves but by really helping the body to throw off the cause of the pain. It sends an increased flow of healing, revitalizing blood right to the affected spot, driving out poisons, relaxing tight muscles, restoring healthy muscle-tone.

Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

Marks of Distinction made possible by Volume Production

The Most Beautiful Chevrolet in Chevrolet History

In addition to masterly new bodies by Fisher—in addition to a host of mechanical improvements typified by AC oil filter and AC air cleaner—the Most Beautiful Chevrolet offers certain features heretofore regarded as marks of distinction on the costliest cars. These are made possible at Chevrolet's amazingly reduced prices only because volume production results in definite economies and because Chevrolet now, as always, passes these savings on to the buyer in the form of added value.

No other car, as low in price, offers such features as fish-tail modeling, full-crown one-piece fenders, bullet-type lamps and the like. Come in—and see for yourself!
