Let's crank up the little plane and fly over to Paris for the week end!

The ships that pass in the night, fly so high we can only hear the hum of their motors.

With the trout season merging into the bass season, life is happy in our mountains, prosperity or no prosperity.

"High school graduates urged to carve careers." Let's not make surgeons of them all.

Mr. Coolidge took the advice of Horace Greely to young men, to "go West." We hope he grows up to the country.

Of course the price of grains is going up. They are now out of the hands of the producer, and haven't yet reached the consumer.

We notice that headline writers are also sometime facetious. Our favorite Sunday paper carried this one: "Coolidge Will Run Again If Prosperity Continues."

Great fear is also felt that the Mississippi flood will do great damage to Western North Carolina's tourist crop.

If it were a certainty that every man who writes or speaks of the "next war" would have to spend several months in the front line trenches as a buck private, the war would be no "next war" talk.

As is our way, in a few years Lindbergh will be a little, tin angel, with wings, and everything, who never had a human thought or a human impulse in his life. As a matter of fact, the best thing about him is that he is a real, live-blooded, human American, even as you and I.

"Knee deep in June!" We like it so well that we don't care if it gets so deep that we have to wear bathing suits. Western North Carolina is blist, in June, as well as the other eleven months of the year. While the lowlands swelter, we look down in comfort from our mountain strong hold, and invite them all to come up higher.

When is the state highway commission to fulfill the promise of Mr. Stikeleather, made last July, at High Hampton, in the presence of South Carolina officials, former governor Morrison, and a large crowd of interested North Carolinians, and place the Sloan Turnpike, from Cashier's Valley to the South Carolina line on the map as part of 106, and assume the maintenance? We wonder.

A COUNTY VETERINARIAN

Dr. I. R. Cooper is fast completing the difficult job of testing the cattle of the county, and by August First it is expected that the county will be officially free of tubercular cattle. This is a great stride, both in public health and in placing the dairying and beef cattle industries on a solid basis.

The county is free of tubercular cattle. It should be kept so, and it would be wise to employ Dr. Cooper as county veterinarian, to look after this important feature of the county's business and to be of general service to dairymen and farmers of the county.

It would also be wise to have inspection of milk and meats sold with in the town of Sylva. This is indeed, and would be a great forward step as a public health measure, and as a drawing card to tourists. Why couldn't the town and county co-operate in this work and put on a county veterinarian and town meat and milk inspector. It would be destined worth doing, and the cost would be negligible.
