Juries frequently receive more punishment than anybody else connected with a criminal law suit.

If the people of the world don't succeed in making a fool of Lindbergh it won't be their fault; but his unusual immunity.

The Salvation Army Band was in Sylva Saturday for a real concert. The people of the community and environs greatly enjoyed the treat by these men and women who represent the noble band to whom a man is never a bum, but always a man with a soul to be loved back to life, and hope, and immortality.

COOLIDGE AND JEFFERSON

Times have changed. There's no disputing that. It took a special train of nine cars to convey the president the United States, dogs, pet coon and all other impedimenta to the Black Hills for the presidential vacation. The papers tell us of moving picture shows, parlor cars, and "royal beds" for the president's occupancy. When Thomas Jefferson was inaugurated as president, he went to Washington astride his old white mare, alone, got off her back, tied her to a tree, went in and took the oath of office of president of the United States. Simplicity itself; but then, remember what a whale of a brain Jefferson had!

GRAHAM STEPS OUT

Graham county, until a few months ago, was one of the "lost provinces" of the people, while splendid folks, contributing much to the greatness of Western North Carolina, lived their lives placidly and in the good old-fashioned way. Then progress came. The state built a splendid highway from North Carolina's Main Street to Robbinsville. A railroad was built into the county; and a big band mill is being set up. Large power developments have been made, and others are being made in the county and things took on new life. Now Graham has forged, we trust, years ahead of the rest of Western North Carolina, and, the other day, staged a real, city-like up-to-date pay roll robbery, in which the hold up men netted some $6500.00. Even Chicago can't boast of anything better. The only difference is that in Graham, no blood was spilt in securing the cash.

THE PROGRESS OF CULLOWHEE

Cullowhee State Normal, as an institution, is spreading its influence and throwing its light of education to the corners of the state from the remote caves of the mountains to coves of the ocean. For years it has been as a light set upon a hill, spreading the gospel of education in the mountains. Today the building program allowed by the legislature by the grace of Mr. McLean and his budget commission, can't keep pace with the growth of the institution.

They are crowded to death at Cullowhee, for the summer school. The dormitories are full to overflowing and the people of the community are helping out, standing by the school, as they have always done, and have thrown open their homes giving every available room to the students, and increasing the capacity of the summer school. A practice school, for the benefit of the teachers, from all parts of the state, and to the great advantage of Jackson county children, is being conducted, at the high school building. In fact Cullowhee is doing a noble work, and is becoming a power in the educational life of the state.

The state cannot afford to allow it to be hampered by lack of sufficient dormitories to house the students that are demanding entrance to the institution.

DILLSBORO BASEBALL TEAM TO PLAY DOUBL-HEADER

Sylva baseball fans will have the opportunity of seeing two baseball games here Saturday, the first being played in the morning, at 9, between Dillsboro and Candler, and the second in the afternoon, at 3:30, between Dillsboro and Bryson City. Each of the games will be played on the High School's park.

SPEAKING OF THE TARIFF

Speak to a man on the iniquitous tariff that is driving the people from the farms of America, and that is forcing those who stick to the soil to the brink of financial ruin, and that man, nine times out of ten, will tell you that he doesn't know enough about the tariff to discuss it. Thus has the insidious propoganda been spread about in this country, the people lulled to sleep on this, the most vital economic problem with which the country has to deal, and the great problem of the tariff well-nigh eliminated as a political question. While the people sleep, the privileged classes hold high revel in the industrial centers of the East, demand and receive what they wish in the Nation's capital, and the people are in distress.

Oh, for the return of Sockless Jerry Simpson, to enlighten the people and open their eyes to the cause of their financial troubles!

Professor Dodd, a few days ago dispassionately, and not in a political speech, reviewed the tariff in the light of the history and proved to the satisfaction of any unbiased mind that the periods of low tariff have been the times of plenty and prosperity on the American farms; and that every time there has been a high tariff, the farmers have suffered acutely. The high tariff of 1828 almost ruined the farmer of the U. S. and drove thousands westward and ever westward in search of a decent living. The low tariff compromise of the thirties restored the farms to their prosperity, and American agriculture revived and thrived until the period following the War Between the States, when a high tariff was again enacted. Then history repeated itself and the farmers again suffered financial ruin.

Following the World War, America repudiated the idealism of Woodrow Wilson. We denied the doctrine that we are our brother's keeper. The Brotherhood of Man was thrown in to the discard; we enthroned materialism, refused to cooperate with the world in bringing about the reign of universal peace, held aloof from ratifying any treaties of peace, building the highest tariff wall in the history of this country, shut ourselves in our own shell and headed back to Normalcy. We have about arrived.

Our denial of the obligations as a world power alienated the affection and respect in which we were held by the rest of the world. Our tariff wall made it almost impossible for other nations to trade with us, even if, in the state of mind in which they found themselves, they had so desired. And, with these insurmountable obstacles in the way we set about to cultivate foreign trade, and to seek foreign markets for the products of our fields. Dollar diplomacy infuriated Latin America, and we the country that ten years ago was the idol of the World, were left practically friendless.

In the mean time, the tariff was taking every surplus dollar from the farmers and laborers and putting it into the pockets of the rich, privileged classes. The common people of America are paying the fiddler. They are becoming poorer day by day, as the tariff protected few become richer and richer. Such an economic monstrosity is bound to end in a system of peasantry throughout the United States, unless the people rise and spite it, while there is yet time.

The only hope is for the minority party, the Democratic Party, to stop this eternal quibbling and squabbling over issues that are settled, and over non-essentials and to wage a united battle against privileges.

"Equal rights to all and special privileges to none." That is a great doctrine, and the people, if properly led, will rally to the standard.

Homer Thraikell, aiding in escape, fined $25.00 and the costs.

Cecil Shular, carrying a concealed weapon. $50.00 and the costs.

The court was still in session, Tuesday afternoon, with a number of cases still on the docket to be disposed of.

On Wednesday the trouble from Cashier's Valley was aired in the court. Judge Sutton stated from the bench that there seemed to be two factions one favorable and the other unfavorable to the recently established incorporation of the Town of Cashiers; but that there is no court except the supreme court of North Carolina that can pass upon the legality of the act incorporating the town, and that all citizens must obey the officers; and if any of them wish to attack the legality of the incorporation, it must be done in a legal manner.

Roy McCall was found guilty of operating an automobile while intoxicated and given a three month's road sentence, suspended upon the payment of a fine of $50.00, complying with an order not to operate a motor vehicle upon the public highways for a period of six months and the filing of a bond in the sum of $500.00 to keep the peace.

Wesley Bryson was found guilty on three charges. For carrying a concealed weapon he was fined $50.00 and the costs. For operating an automobile while intoxicated he drew a $50.00 fine and an order not to operate a motor vehicle for six months. For resisting an officer he was sentenced to 4 months on the roads, with the sentence suspended for 12 months, upon the payment of a $50.00 fine and the filing of a peace bond in the sum of $500.00.

K. E. Bumgarner, charged with assault with intent to kill. At the conclusion of the evidence for the state, and before any defense testimony was introduced, the court ruled that probable cause had been found, and ordered him held to the superior court under a $500.00 bond.

D. A. Bumgarner, mayor of Cashiers and Julia Norris, were acquitted of a charge of fornication and adultery. It developed during the trial that Miss Norris, who lives with the mother-in-law of Mr. Bumgarner, had been seen frequently at his home and going into his room, last winter while Mr. Bumgarner was sick at his home, near the home of his mother-in-law where Miss Norris lives. A number of witnesses for the state testified to this, and to having seen the two in an automobile together; but no witness would say that he had seen Miss Norris entering Mr. Bumgarner's room except during his sickness, and at least one swore that she was helping to nurse him, and applying poultices and salves to his throat and chest. Each witness who testified to having seen the two in an automobile together, stated that it was when other persons were present, usually Miss Norris' mother or Mr. Bumgarner's mother-in-law. At the conclusion of the state's evidence, the defense demurred and the court ordered a verdict of not guilty. The defense offered no evidence.

The case came up from a warrant issued by a local justice of the peace, in Cashiers, and there were some 25 state's witnesses, only some half dozen of whom were placed on the stand, but most of whom proved their attendance, and will draw pay from the county per diem and 35 miles travel.

Lane Jones and Kimsey Long, the two young men who are said to have been occupants of the car, that ran over deputy sheriff Claude Green, Monday morning, were tried. Long was fined $25.00 when he entered a plea of guilty to being drunk. Jones was sentenced to the roads for 2 months, on a charge of being drunk and drew 3 additional months, after being convicted of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Claude Warren was fined $50.00 and the costs, after being convicted of possession and transporting. He drew another $50.00 fine on a charge of operating an automobile while intoxicated, and appealed to the superior court. He was acquitted of retailing.

George Smathers drew a 60 day's suspended sentence on drunkenness charge.

Homer Jones was found guilty of an assault; and not guilty of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Kelley Frady was convicted of abandonment of his wife and two children, and the court sentenced him to 18 months, either on the roads of some county or to be hired out to private individuals by the commissioners the pay for his labor to be turned to the clerk of the court for the support of his family.

CORNELIA-FRANKLIN ROUTE

Speaking once more of roads, Habersham county folks should not forget, nor should they allow the State Highway officials to forget that the shortest and most direct north and south highway east of the Mississippi is the one of which the Cornelia to Franklin section is the most direct link. We have no reason to be jealous of any other improving highway—each one will help the whole region and each one will eventually become a part of some great scenic loop, but mark this prophecy: some day not many years hence an almost inconceivable number of cars will be routed from Atlanta, the greatest southeastern metropolis, and from South Georgia by way of both Atlanta and more easterly routes to Cornelia and thence, to Franklin, Asheville, the Shennandoah and Cumberland valleys to all the cities of the East.

More and more also will Americans indulge in a seasonal north and south migrations.—S. C. Heindel in The Northeast Georgian.

EDWARDS-BUMGARNER

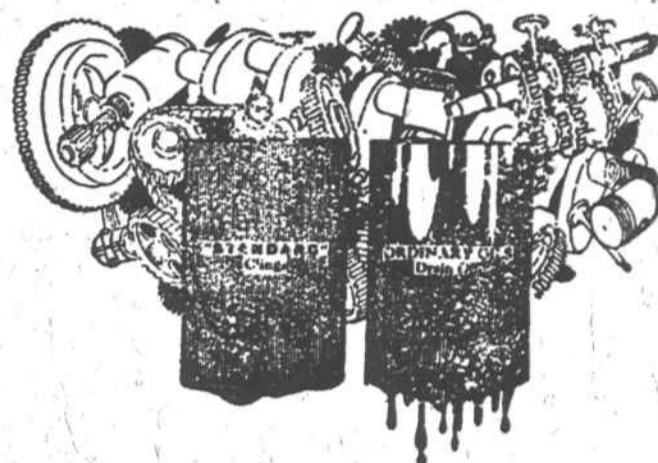

Tuesday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charley Edwards, of Cashiers, a wedding of interest to a large circle of friends occurred when their daughter, Miss Mabel, was united in marriage with Mr. Lewis Bumgarner of Sylva. The officiating minister was Rev. W. C. Reed and Mr. Frank Morrison was best man. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Bumgarner left by way of Asheville, for a wedding trip, after which they will be at home in Sylva, where Mr. Bumgarner is engaged in business, being connected with the J. S. Higdon Garage.

Among those from Sylva attending the wedding were Mr. Bumgarner's sister, Miss Lucy Bumgarner, his nieces, Misses Ila and Love Bumgarner, his brother, Mr. Osear Bumgarner, Miss Louise Parker and Mr. Don Davis.
