

CLAIMS EASTERN CAROLINA
NEW DAIRY COUNTRY

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 24.—Because of the ease with which legume hays may be grown and harvested in eastern Carolina, this section is destined to become a great dairy country.

"When the folks of this section tire of the damage done to them by the boll weevil and the low prices for tobacco and become reconciled to milking cows, eastern Carolina will become a great dairy section," says John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist at State College. "Because of the ease with which legume hays may be grown, it should be possible to produce cream more economically here than in the piedmont or western part of the State. In the mountains, of course, there is much natural pasture and excellent climate conditions which makes the section unrivalled for milk and cream production but the ease with which crops may be produced in eastern Carolina, will make this a place where dairy products may be produced more economically."

Mr. Arey states that eastern Carolina is already preparing for the dairy cow. There has been an increase in the land devoted to pasture; more winter legume crops, are being planted; there is an abundance of summer legumes such as the soybean and pure bred cows are being purchased by the carlot. Only recently 30 head of high grade Guernsey heifers were bought by farmers of Bladen County as a start in the production of cream. During the past two years, many pure bred bulls and cows have been brought in as foundation stock for future herds.

Mr. Arey believes that a good market exists for all cream that can be produced. There is also a good market for surplus whole milk because much of this food is now being shipped into the territory from outside sources. He finds that the farmers of Pender are now supplying much of the milk used in Wilmington. The Benson Creamery has established cream routes in the surrounding territory and needs much more cream than it is now getting.

STATE RANKS SEVENTH IN VALUE OF CROPS

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 24.—Farmers of North Carolina produced during the year 1927, farm crops to the value of $361,605,000 and placed the State in seventh position among the other states of the Union.

"This shows that the men who till the soil in North Carolina are as efficient as those of any other section of the United States," says Dean I. O. Schaub of State College, who made the figures available from reports published by the United States Department of Agriculture. "North Carolina is exceeded by Texas, Iowa, California, Illinois, Nebraska and Kansas in the order named. When we consider the 22 most important crops, this State ranks sixth among the other states. These values are figured from the prices paid farmers for their produce as of December first last year."

Mr. Schaub states that North Carolina has the same rank this year as at the close of 1926 though the total value of the crops produced was higher than for 1926. The increase is about forty one million dollars and was largely due to the increased price of cotton and the increased acreage to tobacco.

The average yields were also better last year, finds Mr. Schaub. In fact acre yields for all crops were about four percent above the average for the past ten years. Corn yields were increased nearly one bushel per acre in 1927 on the 2,352,000 acres planted. There was an increase of three bushels with soybeans; eight bushels with Irish potatoes; twenty-four bushels with sweet potatoes; a substantial increase in the yield of hay per acre and 36 pounds increase in the average yield of tobacco. The acre yields for cotton and peanuts were less than those for last year.

On the whole, farmers of North Carolina made good progress in efficient crop production and also turned their attention to livestock with excellent results.

At a recent rooster exchange day held in Forsyth county 99 exchanges and sales were made by the farmers attending.

Recent cold weather did severe damage to small grains in North Carolina. The crop was especially poor in the mountains. Farmers will have to order to have a good crop of hay.

Look for plowing 1000 acres of land treated by Davidson county at a series of meetings recently held.

SAMUEL C. ALLISON

Whereas, on January 2, 1928, it pleased the Great Architect of the Universe, who doeth all things well, to call unto Himself our beloved Brother, Samuel C. Allison, from this transitory existence to that which endureth forever:

THEREFORE, be it resolved: 1st. That in the taking away of Brother Allison the community has lost an exemplary character whose absence we mourn, and whose place in our hearts can only be filled by the recollection of his kind nature, his many virtues and his nobility of character.

2nd. That in the death of Brother Allison, Unaka Lodge No. 268, A. F. & A. M. has lost one of its truest members, a good man and a true Mason.

3rd. That when we grieve over our great loss we submit to the will of Him who doeth all things well, and we commend his spirit to the God who gave it. We are confident that he is resting from his earthly labors here.

4th. That we extend to his bereaved family our sincere sympathy in this, their greatest hour of grief, with the assurance that we will ever be ready to extend to them sympathy and help when needed.

5th. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of this Lodge, a copy sent to the bereaved family, a copy sent to each of the local papers, the Orphan's Friend and the Masonic Journal, for publication.

STONE MOUNTAIN CONFEDERATE MEMORIAL

"On the muster roll of glory In my country's future story" I will consecrate their names.

The Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial, through its Children's Founders Roll and its Golden Book of Memory for the enrollment of living Confederate Veterans offer to the South a great opportunity to inscribe the names of the veterans of the sixties on an imperishable "muster-roll of glory."

Will you join in memorializing the South's grey heroes? Will you make it possible for every living soldier of the sixties to own the gold medal which means that his name is written in the South's great Book of Memory means that his name is written in the South's great Book of Memory?

More than fifty years ago, the remnant of Lee's army stood with him at Appomattox. Wearing with the stress of war, heart-broken with realization of the futility of their sacrifices, they watched with tear filled eyes, as their leader, stern, sad eyed but proudly humble tendered his sword in the final gesture of defeat. Gaunt, war-scarred, clothed in the tattered garments of a needy cause they wended their way homeward again. Their battleflags, shell torn and grimed, were furled at Lee's command; but they brought back with them the banners of their courage, the standards of their honor, unsullied by the stains of war. Wearing the hero-look of those who have faced death for honor's sake, they enlisted anew in the service of the South.

Patriots in war, patriots in peace, they salvaged the hopes and the heritage of a people.

These of whom I speak were our own men, our own patriots, our own heroes. Shall we forget what they have done for us? Shall we permit their names to fade away into the oblivion of the years?

Or shall we set their names where they will shine forever in the light of fame?

Time moves on. Only a few of them are left. The hero look upon their faces has yielded to the touch of age. Wrinkles crowd their cheeks; their eyes are dim and blurred; their shoulders stooped and feeble. Already death's shadow darkens across the horizon of their life. Soon the last gray soldier will have vanished in the mists that rise beyond the confines of Eternity. Too late then to let them know how much we loved them. Too late then to give happiness to their old hearts. Too late then to see them thrill once more at the sight of the South's gold token horizon of their lives. Soon the last them know that the South has not forgotten them and the cause for which they fought.

Enroll one or more veterans in the Golden Book of Memory. Send in your contribution of five dollars or more now. If everyone will aid in this way; every name can be enrolled. Will you help?

Mr. Rogers Winter
Volunteer Secretary for the Enrollment of Living Veterans.

ASBESTOS PLANT READY FOR WORK

Franklin Press

For more than a year Mr. Frank G. Jones of Cleveland, Georgia, has been quietly at work at Tryphosa, 12 miles south of Franklin, installing an asbestos grinding mill. This mill is now complete and the Georgia-Carolina Asbestos company, with Mr. Jones as one of the owners and general manager will be ready to begin operations this week, according to the announcement made here last Saturday.

The mill will have a capacity of about 40 tons daily stated Mr. Jones. Three asbestos properties have been bought by the company and one leased. About 16 or 18 men have been employed in building the plant and this number will be employed after operations begin. While no announcement was made as to the cost it is understood that several thousand dollars have been expended in building the plant.

Associated with Mr. Jones in this undertaking are T. G. Mauney, cashier of the White County Bank, and his brother, A. L. Mauney, both of Cleveland, Ga. An asbestos mine near Cleveland has been worked continuously for 30 years. Mr. Jones says that the asbestos here compares favorably with that mined at Cleveland.

Asbestos, like mica, is used as an ingredient in many manufactured products, such as wallboard, batteries, roofing and roofing shingles, plastering, paints, etc. After grinding at the mill the asbestos is shipped in 100 pound bags. Mr. Jones states that his mill will turn out one carload a day by working day and night shifts.

The plant at Tryphosa will run with power generated by a gasoline engine. The manager says that he would be delighted to install electric motors provided current was available. He estimates that his mill would use 50 horsepower of hydro-electric energy.

COUNTY HOME NEWS

(Written by An Inmate)
Please find space in your paper for a few words.

Last Sunday Rev. Aseue Queen preached an interesting sermon at the County Home. The large living room was filled with an attentive crowd. Some good old fashioned hymns were sung and each extended to another a good old handshake. Rev. Aseue Queen will preach at the County Home the 3rd Sunday evening in February. We had a glorious prayer meeting Thursday night. There was not a very large crowd present owing to such bad weather. When measles and colds are gone we hope to have more at prayer meeting. We want the prayers of every christian, that our meetings may be a gain to every lost soul.

Harbin Hayes of Lincoln county has increased his cows from three to twenty during the past year because of the demand for milk in his section.
