FRANKLIN PASTOR SCORES BISHOP

Rev. F. Moeck, pastor of the Franklin Methodist church, and well known throughout this section of North Carolina, created no little sensation last Sunday morning among members of his flock when he scathingly denounced Bishop James Cannon, Jr., for meddling in politics and for gambling in Wall street. The pastor claimed that the bishop by so doing has broken his ministerial vows and that, consequently; he is no longer fit to be a minister of the Methodist church. The vows each Methodist minister is required to subscribe to are taken before a bishop and read as follows:

The bishop, Will you deny all ungodliness and worldly lusts, and live soberly, righteously, and godly in the present world, that you may show yourself in all things an example of good work to others, that the adversary may be ashamed, having nothing to say against you? The answer is: I will do so, the Lord being my helper.

This vow, said the local pastor, was taken by Bishop Cannon when he became a minister of the Methodist church and this vow has been broken by his nefarious activities in Wall street and in politics. "Any minister who will gamble in Wall street has no interest in the church nor in the Kingdom of God and is merely using the cloak of the church as a smoke screen and is bringing shame and dishonor upon the church," said Mr. Moeck.

The pastor took as his subject, "The Relations of the Church to Man and God." His discourse was based upon the story of the Good Samaritan. He stressed the fact that the thieves were determined to have the possessions of the wayfarer regardless of the methods used to attain their ends. At this point Mr. Moeck referred to the gambling of Bishop Cannon in Wall street as a means of a determination on the part of the bishop to attain worldly riches regardless of right or wrong.

The congregation Sunday morning was small, but those present heard one of the most powerful sermons ever delivered in a local church. It was evident to the audience that the pastor is deeply concerned about the church of today and about its future. He stated that the church is losing its influence and referred to the actions of Bishop Cannon as a contributing cause. His earnest plea that the church follow the basic principles laid down by the Savior made a deep impression on his hearers. Not only is it important that the laymen bear this in mind, but the ministers in particular should be especially careful to hew to the line and to bring no disgrace upon the church.

Calling upon Bishop Cannon "to get out," Mr. Moeck made the following statement: "Any minister of the church, be he bishop or whatnot, who so far forgets his relations to the church and to God as to go off after false gods, who breaks his ministerial vows by mixing in politics and by using the money given him by Methodists to gamble in Wall Street, is totally unfit to be a minister of the Methodist church and should get out voluntarily." The sole business of the church is saving souls, said the minister. "It rightly has no place in politics," said the pastor, who then went on to state that "the Baptist church had its Carnes and now the Methodist church is burdened with its Cannon."

During the course of his sermon, Mr. Moeck stated that he had no objections to a minister's association with gamblers, thieves and drunkards provided such association was for the purpose of lifting up fallen humanity. "But when a minister of the gospel walks into a gambling den and throws his cards on the table with gamblers, such minister should immediately quit the ministry."

The local pastor intimated that he might be disciplined for his utterances concerning Bishop Cannon. "I was called to the ministry of Jesus Christ and not to the ministry of any particular church," said he. The Rev. Mr. Moeck stated his readiness to leave the ministry of the Methodist church and to take up similar work in other fields before he would sacrifice his convictions of right and wrong. In fact he stands, ready to

Creamery Begins To Distribute Product

One of the latest Jackson county enterprises, the Smoky Mountain Creamery, recently incorporated with its home in Dillsboro, is now operating and is putting on the market one of the best ice cream products ever put before the local public.

The company has installed the latest improved machinery for the manufacture of ice cream; and has placed an expert, Mr. N. D. Riddle, formerly manager of the Talledega Creamery, Talladega, Ala., in charge of the production. Mr. Riddle has had years of experience in the production of the highest grade of commercial ice cream and the officials of the company have instructed him to produce a cream that will be the equal in texture, food value, flavor and smoothness, of any on the market.

Officials of the company state that it is their purpose to use, as far as is possible, the raw material from local farms. The business is owned and financed by local men, and is in all respects a home enterprise.

The incorporators of the creamery company are M. Y. Jarrett, A. H. Weaver and C. N. Gillette. Mr. Jarrett is president of the company, Mr. Weaver vice-president, and Mr. Gillette secretary-treasurer.

In addition to the regular commercial cream for distribution through the usual channels, the Smoky Mountain Creamery will manufacture brick cream and all kinds of specialties for luncheons parties, and other occasions.

The Smoky Mountain Creamery expects to engage in the manufacture and distribution of butter, within a short time. Inquiries for this product have already been received from large Eastern cities, and the company expects to have a splendid market for Western North Carolina butter.

It is believed that the establishment of the creamery here will greatly stimulate the interest in dairying in Jackson and the adjoining counties. The milk and cream is now being delivered at the Dillsboro plant of the company.
