This business over at Big Bend has every appearance of being very crooked.

It is a bad year for castles in Spain.

After all is said and done, there is nothing new in revenue.

Tax, tax, who is to pay the tax? is the new game in North Carolina.

The equalizing fund might possibly be the solution, as a temporary and emergency measure, if it, itself were equalized.

Eleven nations have recognized the new Spanish republic. But the more serious question is as to whether, after passing through the period of reconstruction, she will be able to recognize herself.

The performances of the North Carolina General Assembly prove that a crew of big men can do some mighty small things, if there is not one who towers above the crowd.

The Ashevilleians have voted to be non-partisan in their governmental affairs. They should know that there are no such animals as non-partisan government.

This is for the older folks: What would you give to know half as much as you thought you knew when you received your diploma from high school?

A headline says that big business is optimistic. We'll believe it when big business begins turning loose the money for the payment of high wages in construction work and for manning mines and factories.

A man brought suit for $5,000 for injuries which his wife received and which he insisted placed the burden of milking the family cow, sweeping the floors, and other domestic duties upon him. The jury gave the husband $50 and his wife $1,000. Now, who says there isn't any justice in the courts in these days?

The North Carolina physicians don't want to go into the saloon business. The medical society, meeting in Durham, voted 35 to 30 against prescription whiskey. The druggists would probably oppose the measure, also.

Mitzi, the cat that recently was bequeathed the sum of $15,000 and a palatial hom for the rest of her days, is dead. Probably she died with disgust at the foolishness of humans.

The Junior Club of Sylva is to be congratulated upon having been awarded the first prize for the State on the report of work done during the last year. The club is a bunch of lively young women, who are very enthusiastic about their club, and interested in the welfare of the community.

Representative David Lewis avers that the soft coal industry has ruined itself by its own efficiency. The same may be said of other lines of endeavor. Any system that leaves out the human element, and works only for powerful material results, is bound to bring disaster in this world of humans; and the sooner America arrives at the truth of this, the better off will the whole world be.

Not to throw cold water on Asheville's apparent enthusiasm over her new charter and non-partisan elections; but from the names involved in recent disclosures of the late unpleasantness in Asheville and Buncombe, we had an idea that it was a sort of non-partisan, or bi-partisan, crowd that is being held responsible for the jam into which the mountain metropolis had gotten itself.

Rear Admiral Byrd canceled lecture engagements and rushed to Boston where his favorite dog and best friend is ill. The friendship, mutual admiration, and love that can grow up between a gentleman and a great dog, is one of the soft spots in a hard world. A man who can afford to cancel engagements and go to his best friend in distress though that friend is only a dog, has the earmarks of true greatness.

We wager that Magna Charta did not get a tenth as much publicity in the England of King John's day, as the new Asheville charter is getting in our mountain capital.

Azalea Week, adopted by the Macon County Woman's Clubs, is a splendid idea. Nothing is more beautiful than the mountains abuzz with the multitudinous and various colors of the flaming azalea. To designate a week when the shrub is flowering in its glory, and to invite the National Press Association to come up from Georgia and behold the wonders of the mountains is a decidedly worthwhile thought, and Western North Carolina is indebted to the women of Macon for it.

Senator J. Ham Lewis, of the pink whiskers fame, and generally classed as a wet, who last November overwhelmingly defeated Mrs. McCormick, daughter of Mark Hanna and widow of the McCormick millions, up in Illinois, has added his voice to the protest that is being made within the party again Chairman Raskob's little scheme of making prohibition the paramount issue in the 1932 campaign. Mr. Lewis joins the Democrats of the South in the matter, and it is probably that they, with the good sense of the party asserting itself, will be able to defeat the hopes of the wets. The National Convention will meet. The economic situation will be made the paramount. The candidate for president will be nominated. He will recommend a chairman, as is the custom. The National Committee will elect the man nominated by the presidential nominee. Then exit Mr. Raskob. So why all the pother about him?

QUALLA

FEED CHICKENS

SAYS PARRISH

(By E. V. Vestal, County Agent)
 Mr. C. F. Parrish, State Extension Poultry Specialist, has been with the County Agent this week helping hold meetings over the county. Mr. Parrish says that this is one of the most encouraging years at all to stay in the poultry business.

Mr. Parrish says he is not interested in every farmer being a commercial poultryman, but he is interested in seeing every farm have from 25 to 100 purebred birds on it that are handled so as to make money. "The way a pullet is fed and treated the first five months of her life determines the amount of profit she will make her owner," says Mr. Parrish. "It does not make any difference to me whether you keep 25 or 25000 chickens, but it does differ to me whether or not to feed and care for them well. A few chickens well managed will feed the family all the poultry and eggs they need and furnish a surplus to sell," Mr. Parrish states.

According to Mr. Parrish, farmers should preserve these 15c eggs now to eat next fall and winter when eggs are high. This can be done by buying a quart can of "Water Glass Solution" from the drug store, scalding out a five gallon crock, boiling enough water to have 9 quarts to put in the crock, then pour in the water glass solution and stir well, then pack 15 dozen eggs in it, leaving at least 2 inches of the solution above the eggs. When this is done, tie a piece of wax paper over the top of the crock and set it in a cool place and forget it until next fall. Then you can get the eggs and sell the fresh ones.

CROWDS JAM DEPT. STORE

At the opening of the Leaders' Sale, large crowds flocked to the store necessitating the employment of police to check the onrush.

Hundreds of people were here from far and near to avail themselves of the many genuine bargains offered for the opening of this big event.

Mr. Cooper, the sales manager in charge of the sale is highly pleased with the response and stated that the crowds were continuing to come in a steady stream and are buying very liberally.

"The big two page ad in the Journal brought results for greater than my expectations," said Mr. Cooper.

The Leader carries merchandise of the best quality and they believe in true value giving as the public demands the best and at bargain prices.

This sale will end a week from Saturday.

More prices will be quoted in next week's Journal and in their big circular.

AZALEA WEEK SET FOR JUNE

Highlands Maconian

The Macon Women's club has officially endorsed the plan for Azalea week to be held at Azalea time in June, according to Miss Elizabeth Kelley, the president.

Members of the National Editorial association, who will meet in Atlanta, April 1, 2, 3, 4 and four Georgia during the week following, disbanding June 12, will be invited to Macon for Azalea week.

Highlands and Franklin hotels it is hoped will offer free rooms to members of the association, in case the invitation is accepted, as the publicity that would result would be worth thousands of dollars to the county.

The Azalea week plan calls for tours to the Highlands vicinity, and various points where the flower blooms in abundance. Wide publicity is to be given beforehand, and Azalea week it is expected will be observed in June each year.
