Miners in Illinois strike, farmers in the bucolic west strike, textile workers in Rutherford strike. We must be striking back to normalcy.

Highway 112 will be let to contract on next Wednesday. That assures that there will be a main highway entering the Park by next summer, a highway that everybody can get to, and it also develops a great Jackson county township.

When cotton went down to 7c a pound, the South was ruined. Now that it has gone back up to 7c, folks are beginning to talk good times. Unless human labor on the plantations is pauperized, it costs as much now to raise a bale of cotton as it did then. Work out your own answer.

Dick Reynolds is of the opinion that his brother Smith was murdered. The Forsyth grand jury must have had somewhat the same idea. Now watch the fireworks start over Smith's part of the estate, if his so-called widow and her unborn child put in their claim.

President Hoover was so successful in the use of tear gas against the veterans, that the deputy sheriffs, out in the west, are trying it against the striking farmers. Don't know how gas will work on 'em; but the western farmers have been held in line with hot air, for a long number of years.

Plans to build State highways to the top of Mount Mitchell, around through Soco Gap and down through the Big Cove, out to Cabin Flats, and such scenic, semi-private, and private roads, are silly. That is the kind of expenditure of public funds that has contributed to the present taxation distress. Build the roads that the people need first, then, if the State has any money that it wants to find a place to spend, we will talk about the pleasure and tourist roads.

It develops that the home loan law of the federal government does not propose to lend money to the owners of homes; but to establish a system of banks that are to lend money to other banks and mortgage companies, who in turn will lend it to the home owners, when they get around to it. We thought there was a catch, somewhere. It seemed too good to be true that the middle man could be cut off from his rake-off, especially if he was a big middle man. The money of the people is loaned to companies to lend back to the people.

Have just been wondering what kind of a law they have, if any, or are supposed to have, up in New York State, that gives a governor the authority to fire a mayor of a city, who has been duly elected by the people. Strikes us that if the purpose of the present rumpus is really to nail Mayor Jimmy Walker's hide to the back door of city hall, and not to make a political issue that might injure Governor Roosevelt, who is also a presidential candidate, that the proper procedure would be to institute an impeachment proceeding in the courts, or, if New York has a recall provision in its laws, to try a recall election, and let the folks say what is what.

Chowan county commissioners have, with the backing of a large number of Chowan citizens, entered suit to compel the State Board of Equalization to furnish funds to support the schools in three districts in that county, where the people did not believe consolidation the proper thing to do, and the State educational authorities tried to force such action by withholding the school funds. Public opinion in the State will largely rally to the support of the Chowan folks, especially in those country districts where consolidation came before good roads. What is the matter with the little red school house, anyway. Our observation, and the opinion of some expert authorities is, that it and its one teacher did a pretty good job, back in the old days. But the question now is that the Chowan children are entitled to a school to go to, and their teachers are entitled to their pay. The thing was hanging fire all last winter, and we are entering on another school term with the situation still unclarified.

The farmers in the bucolic west are staging a strike, in an attempt to stop the movement and sale of products from the farm until such time as the producers can receive a fair price for the fruits of their land and their labors. Roads leading to the markets are being picketed, and general discontent is evident, as the prices of stocks and bonds continue to rise on the New York market. It was, you will remember, on the farm that the present panic began. The farmers were suffering, while the world was drunk on high stock market prices. This situation continued for several years, and finally the farm dragged the financial world down into the slough of despond with it. Make the farmers and the laborers prosperous, and the country will prosper. Allow the farmers to continue to get low prices for their products, and the vicious circle will begin all over again, sooner or later. But, our leaders in Washington can see no further than the Hamiltonian idea of beginning prosperity at the top, with the favored few, and letting it seep down to us common folk.

EDITORIAL

Nothing that has occurred in recent years is more emphatic of the eternal change and reversal of things in this world in which we live than the appointment of Al Smith as Editor in Chief of the New Outlook, which magazine itself is an outgrowth of a publication that was founded by Henry Ward Beecher.

Beecher was a militant Protestant. Smith, as everybody knows, is a devout Romanist. Beecher was a preacher of the Puritan type, who went forth with the "Sword of the Lord" and of Gideon, to do battle for his brand of religion, and whose conscience commanded that he always do and say what he thought, so long as it was politically expedient and did not offend the wealthy and influential flock of which he was the shepherd. Above all, Beecher was a leader of the Radicals, that group of Republicans, that upset the government and wrought the crucifixion of the South, during the period of so-called Reconstruction.

Smith is a Democrat, or rather he was until the Chicago convention nominated his one time chief lieutenant and his best personal and political friend, Franklin D. Roosevelt, in preference to himself. Since then he hasn't emphasized his Democracy.

Although he hasn't mentioned it, there is a possibility that, since the campaign of 1928, when the South deserted the Democratic party and wrote Smith hip and thigh, that there is one point of sympathy between the present editor of the New Outlook and its founder, that of contempt for the South and things Southern.

HOOVER AND CURTIS AS JANUS

The two heads of the Republican party, Hoover and Curtis now appear, so far as prohibition is concerned, in the role of Janus, the two-headed god, who looked both ways at once, and for whom the Romans named the month of January, because it looked both backward and forward.

Mr. Hoover, for whom the drys tore their proverbial shirts, four years ago, and overturned the policies of several States, North Carolina included, in an effort to save the nation for morality, and from the Pope and the devil, and to preserve the Eighteenth Amendment in all its glory, branded, in his acceptance speech, himself, as a States-rights Democrat, more died in the wool than Jeff Davis. When the committee got around to notifying Mr. Curtis that he had been nominated to succeed himself as vice president, he also accepted, but declared himself as a firm believer in the Eighteenth Amendment and all its works.

So we have Janus (Hoover and Curtis) looking to this year's votes and last year's, also, at one and the same time, so much so that the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, the political lobby that the Northern brethren maintain, is high in its praise of Curtis and lets forth the wail of "Absalom, my son, Absalom", over the wandering Hoover.

LAD KILLED BY AUTO

Henry Connor, 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Connor, was instantly killed, late this afternoon on highway 106, in front of his father's home, a mile South of Sylva, when he was struck by a coupe driven by A. M. Henson, a prominent citizen of the county.

After striking the lad, Mr. Henson's car ran into a ditch and bank beside the road. Mr. Henson was coming in direction of Sylva, and states that the lad was crossing the road from the house to the barn, with a load of corn on his back, and had passed the general of the road, when he looked up and saw the car, and turned in an attempt to go back to the side from which he came. Mr. Henson had thought that the boy was going to continue on across.

Funeral arrangements have not been made.

County license may be used by persons hunting in their resident counties only.

The district game warden states that we have more squirrel, quail, and ruffed grouse in North Carolina than at any time in the past two years; and that other game is plentiful.

GAY
