SETS RIVER AFIRE

All our lives we have heard about "setting the Thames afire." Well, it wasn't the Thames; but the river was set afire, at Williamston, North Carolina, the other evening. A fisherman, nearing the pier, lighted a cigarette and tossed the match into the water. Immediately, the Rolanoke river was a sheet of flame. Fire alarms were turned in, and the fire extinguished.

It was learned that a leaking pipe in one of the large gasoling storage tanks on the river's bank had covered the water with a liquid that will burn.

So, at last, North Carolina has produced a man who literally set the river afire.

The House of Representatives has passed the Revenue Bill on its third and final reading, and sent it over to the Senate, where the battle will An unusual, but not unprecedented be fought all over again. The bill happening in the mountains, was the reenacts the sales tax of three per cent, with the only change of taking Xadison county, leveling homes and from the taxable list, all the items that have heretofore been exempt. If the bill is passed by the Senate and ratified as it now stands, the items of milk, flour, coffee, lard, molasses, and the other staples, upon which there has been no tax, will be taxed along with everything else bought or sold in the State.

The Senate passed the House bill spell, thus lessening the immediate raising the alcoholic content of beer from Roy Francis' 3.2 to 5 per cent. and it has been ratified, making it nobody wants war, yet the world legal in North Carolina to sell beer with as great an acoholic content as and Germany and Japan are taking 5 per cent. At the time the House was enacting the revenue bill, imposing a sales tax on everything, the Senate was passing a bill to lower the license tax on automobile tags to 45 cents per hundred weight, with for the nations to disarm; but, we a minimum of $8.

papers by the Superintendents of the following departments, viz: Temperance Literature, Press Work, Mothers Meetings, R. R. Work, Unfermented Wine at Communion, and Scientific Temperance Instruction in Public Schoo's. All the papers were well prepared, and listened to by an ap preciative audience. The Union is in a flourishing condition and its members are well pleased with the progress they are continually making in the interest of temperance, home and humanity. One of the enjoyable features of the evening was the manner in which two young misses solicited contributions for temperance work.

Business and legal circles are exerched over the following law which was passed by the late Fusion Legislature and was ratified and went into effect on March 13: "An act to regulate assignments and other conveyances of like nature in North Carolina.
