The Carolinas' storehouses of valuable minerals have been almost overlooked. These states have the largest variety of minerals in the nation. Approximately 300 species and sub species have been identified in the Carolinas.

More thorough research to determine the extent and value of minerals is needed. Possibilities of utilization of these products in manufacturing enterprises in the two states are almost limitless. To fail to exploit these opportunities permits other states to reap the major benefits from our resources.

DEVELOPMENT POSSIBILITIES INCLUDE:

Clays: The United States imports from 200,000 to 300,000 tons annually. Recent tests reveal that Carolina Clay meet the highest standards. North Carolina has residual and South Carolina, sedimentary clays.

Mica: Now uses developed during last several years have created a greater demand for this mineral. The Carolinas have produced more than half of the nation's output for the last several years.

Chinaware, Refractories Electric Porcelain and Glass: Principal raw materials necessary for the manufacture of these products (clays, feldspar, kyanite and quartz or silica) are produced in great quantities in the Carolinas. With their large power developments and the development of a new type of heat unit, these States should become the center of these industries.

Alloys: Rare alloys present a new field of expansion for the Carolinas' mineral industry. Many of these, such as nickel, beryllium, titanium, tungsten, molybdenum, columbium and tantalum have not been prospected.
