One of the advantages enjoyed by the people of Sylva is access to a fine mineral spring just outside of town. It is the property of Mr. J. R. Love, who kindly allows the free use of the water to all who want it. It has never ocen analyzed nor tested as a remedy hists Ired Raby to Ina Jordan, in serious cases, but has been foundvery beneficial in minor disorders of the system. The water is cold and pleasant to the taste and the spring attracts a number of daily visitors.

WEEK By WEEK

Chinese and Japanese are clashing on the frontier between china and the Japanese-created state of Manchouchio. The world is tremendously interested in what goes on in the Orient. There may be a new world in the making, and Western civilization may be greatly affected.

While abandoning the plan of adding another mouth to the school term in Buncombe, the board is lending its energies to seeing that adult drivers are at the wheel, of all school busses. That is unusual wisdom. Every course in the North Carolina schools is mapped out for eight months, and any normal child can complete the course in that time. So, what's the use of the extra month? On the other

Col. Charles J. Harris, president of the Jackson County Bank, principal owner of the Dillsboro and Sylva Electric Light Company, the Bank of Spruce Pine, the Blue Ridge Locust Pin Company, the Harris Clay Company, the Harris Granite Quarries Company and various other industries and enterprises in Western North Carolina, suffered a fractured hip, at Grove Park Inn, last Friday evening, and is now a patient in Biltmore hospital.

Col. Harris was walking on the terrace at the hotel when he stumbled and fell. He had Dr. C. Z. Candler summoned, and he and Mr. Reginald Euloe went immediately to Asheville. Col. Harris was taken to the hospital, the next morning and an x-ray picture made, revealing the fracture.

Col. Harris, who is 82 years of age, has been most prominently identified with the business and political life of Wetern North Carolina, and the State, for many years. His home is in Dillsboro,, as are his offices, and he has successfully operated the enterprises which his capital and energy builded, over a long period of years. He was the Republican candidate for Governor against Governor Glenn, in 1904, and has been Republican National Committeeman from North Carolina, for many years, and has also attended the Republican National Conventions, as a delegate, on numerous occasions. His philanthropies have been of great benefit to many people in this section, and especially in this county. It was he who made possible the hospital in Sylva, which is a blessing to all this surrounding country, and which bears his name, C. J. Harris Community hospital. He has been a very active man and a great traveler, his business connections frequently calling him to New York, Washington, and other places, and he has also traveled extensively and frequently in Europe and other parts of the world. He organized the industries in Sylva that have grown into the Parson's fanning Company and the Sylva Paperboard Company. First operating as the Harris-Reese Tanning Company, the tannery was sold by Col. Harris to the Armour Leather Company. Latter the tannic seid plant was added and afterwards the process of manufacturing paperboard from the chips was evolved, and the Sylva Paperboard Company organized, all growing out of the enterprise started by Col. Harris.

O. L. Bachelder, 83 years of age died at Candler. He was a potter of attainments. During the years that he has operated the Omar Khayyan Pottery, beside Highway No. 10, thouands have visited his place to admirc, and to leave with admiration for the potter. The story of building a better mouse trap and the world beating : path to your door, has a lot of truth but, in these days it is necessary to ac vertise the mouse trap, or a great part of the world will never know that you built it.

Former Governor A. W. McLean died in Washington. Mr. McLean i another example of how a man in a small town, Lumberton it is in this case, can, by application to business, exercise of common sense, and expending a little energy, attract the attention of the nation. So it was with Mr. McLean., who was appointed as Chairman of the War Finance Board by Woodrow Wilson, and who was later Governor of North Carolina, and there used his ability to put the State on a firmer financial basis.

North Carolina is especially interested in the explosion of a bomb in the U. S. Embassy at Mexico City, as Josephus Daniels is the Ambassador. The event could have been a serious international incident, if handled by a man with less poise and common sense than Mr. Daniels. He didn't even enter a protest to the Mexican government, realizing that the bomb was probably planted by the enemies of that present government, with the hope that trouble would ensue. There was little damage done. Wise men take things calmly. Fools bluster and become bellicose. It pays to have wise and cool heads in high places.
