Congressmen's Nerves Are Frayed By Heat And Strain

Washington, July 23.—About the only person in Washington who is not completely worn out by work and worry in the jungle heat of a capital summer is the President of the United States. That fact is not here to dispel rumors that the President's health is failing.

Washington's "silly season" always produces a crop of gossip and rumor about whoever happens to be occupying the White House. Sly wipers are exchanged, passed on and magnified in the passing, about the incumbent President's morals or his health. Those get circulated around the country, until a lot of people who ought to know better than to credit irresponsible gossip get to believe that there is something seriously wrong.

This year's gossip touches the President's health. Nobody is whispering about his morals, but you can hear in any bar or club, at almost any social gathering or even on the radio, comes "inside" but false information to the effect that Mr. Roosevelt is physically in a bad way.

The gossip mongers will tell you that the President is suffering from a nervous system ailment, which has deprived him of the use of his legs for the past fourteen years, is creeping upward, affecting his nervous system and his digestion and causing his doctors alarm, etc., etc.

That is not true, but the rumor has become so persistent that the President has had to take notice of it, and at a recent press conference called attention to his robust physical condition and the calmness of his nerves.

While he cannot take any form of exercise that involves the use of his legs, such as golf or tennis, he gives great attention to keeping fit by his exercise by swimming in White House pool for half an hour each day, and is probably now in better condition now than when he took office.

It has to be demonstrated the truth about his health to the whole nation as well as to those who will cross the ocean and make several speeches at various points.

The President has one advantage over anyone else in that he sleeps in the same building that he works in, and does not have to expose himself to 100-degree temperatures in passing from one air-conditioned room to another. Congressmen although their work quarters are air-cooled must expose themselves to the torrid heat and have to get such things as they can in hot rooms which are not conducive to rest.

It is not the greatest collection of nerves and hair-trigger tempers ever gathered together in the United States as a whole to physically fight to debate calmly and rationally over any legislative proposal.

Senator Paul S. Copeland of New York has just returned from a long vacation, and the indications are that Congress will take that prescription and go home around the middle of August, perhaps earlier, leaving the President's new tax program for cooler consideration, either at the next regular session in January or at a

40 YEARS AGO

Tuckaseige Democrat, July 25, 1896

Mrs. J. H. Wolf and Mr. E. A. Wolf returned home today.

Mr. E. A. Hill, of Augusta, Ga., spent several days with us, this week.

Mr. Fred Moore came out from Asheville, today, and went to Webster.

Mrs. F. J. Conroy and son, of Pittsburg, Pa., arrived here yesterday, to visit Mrs. Conroy's parents, Judge and Mrs. D. D. Davies, at Forest Hill.

Mr. Jas. Manahale and Master David Hall returned home from Evansville, Ind., today. They were accompanied by Miss Fay Collins, of Clyde.

Dr. Wolf has been at Webster all week, in attendance upon little Harry Moore, son of Hon. W. E. Moore, who we regret to know is very ill.

We are glad to note the well-deserved promotion of Capt. G. E. Knight to a larger field, with increased compensation. We learn that his headquarters will be in Asheville, and that he will remove his family there, which their large circle of friends here will sincerely regret.

Mr. R. H. Pender has resumed the editorial pen in the office of the Bryson City Times.

Gov. Carr has appointed forty-nine Justices of the Peace in this county, many of whom are to take the places of those elected by the Legislature who failed to qualify. It goes without saying that they are nearly all democrats.

State Treasurer Worth directs tax collectors to proceed in the collection of taxes under the Act of 1895. Whether tax-payers will willingly pay under an act not ratified and therefore, according to Supreme Court decisions, not a law, remains to be tested.

At Chicago, Justice Bail, this morning rendered his decision in the Civic Baseball Club case, which was tried two weeks ago. He fined Capt. Anson and his players $3 each and costs, for playing ball on Sunday.

A very interesting part of the exhibit to be made by the Department of Household Economics of the Woman's Board at the Cotton states and International Exposition, will be exhibited by electricity. Electric stoves will be shown in operation, and the process fully explained. Aladdin's Oven, an invention of Mr. Edward Atkinson, the famous statistician, will also be shown. By means of this oven, the heat from an ordinary kerosene lamp will cook a dinner.

NORTON REUNION, SUNDAY

The annual reunion of the Norton family will be held in Whiteside Cove, Sunday. Relatives and friends from a number of states will gather and a picnic dinner will be spread.

BIDS RECEIVED ON HIGHWAY 106

Bids were received by the State Highway and Public Works Commission for construction on a link of Highway 106, from Tuckaseige to Trout Creek, at the office of the commission, in Raleigh, Tuesday.

E. W. Grannis, of Fayetteville was low bidder for crusher run stone surfacing, at $67,774. Hobbs-Peabody Construction Company of Charlotte submitted the low bid of $19,772.58 on the structure. The total amount of money to be expended on 106 at this time, according to the low bids submitted, is $87,546.58.

At the same time bids totaling $181,627.50 were received for surfacing and construction of structures on Highway 284 in Transylvania. The same surface as 106 is to have is planned for 284; but it appears, on the basis of the bids, that almost three times as much money is to be spent on 284 as on 106.

The people of this county are very much gratified, of course, that work on a small portion of 106 is to begin in the near future; but they are hopeful that other lettings on this, their most important highway, will be included in the program to be inaugurated in the near future.

At any rate the people feel so keenly that the future of Sylva and Jackson County are so linked up with 106 that they will never be satisfied until it is completed in its entirety, from Sylva to the South Carolina line; and they trust that the Commission will give it the consideration that its importance merits, and let nothing, not even high water, stand in the way of its completion in its entirety.

Candidates Are Striving To Get Campaign Votes

TODAY and TOMORROW

CONSTITUTION . . . explained

I hear many people expressing surprise at the unanimous decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, to the effect that Congress and the President cannot do anything they want to do. I have been surprised at the number of my educated and intelligent friends who seem to have forgotten, if they ever knew, that there are very definite limits to the power of the Federal Government.

"This is a democracy, isn't it?" said one of them. "Then why can't the elected representatives of the people carry out the desires of the people?"

My friend fell into a fundamental fallacy. The United States of America is not and never has been a democracy. It is a Federal Republic, which is quite a different thing. In a democracy every citizen has an equal vote. The nearest thing to a democracy that we have in America is the New England town meeting.

Under our Federal form of government, citizens vote by States, and it is the States and not the mass of voters that are represented in the two Houses of Congress. The president is elected by States. He may be and sometimes has been elected without a majority of the popular vote.

FEDERATION . . . of states

What the Supreme Court re-emphasized is the fact that the United States is a Federation of independent states, each of them supreme in its own government except where it has surrendered certain powers to the Federal Government.

"The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States are reserved to the States respectively or to the people." That is the way the Constitution reads.

What the Supreme Court pointed out in its decision invalidating the NRA is that no state has delegated to the Federal Government the right to fix wages or hours of labor, or otherwise regulate any business which is conducted entirely within a single state.

The whole NRA was built up on the theory that almost any business might possibly affect interstate commerce. The Supreme Court said that that was an unsound assumption; that before the Federal Government could interfere with any business it must be able to show positively that it was interstate business.

LAWMAKING . . . Congress job

Even more important than its reiteration of the distinction between interstate commerce and intrastate business was the Supreme Court's reminder that Article One, Section One of the Constitution reads thus: "All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States."

Congress has no authority to delegate lawmaking power to the Executive. Not only NRA, but many of the other new bureaus set up in the last two years, contained delegations of the lawmaking power. It has been estimated that under executive orders, having the force of law, there were more than 5,000 new ways in which a man could be fined or sentenced to jail.

That does not deny to Congress the power to enact regulatory legislation for the Executive to enforce, but it re-affirms the duty of Congress to place explicit limits upon the power of the Executive. Without such limits it would not be difficult for a President to become a Dictator.

SOCIALISM . . . and dictators

The tendency of the times is definitely toward State Socialism. Three great nations, Russia, Italy, and Germany, now function under socialistic forms of government.

Candidates are out working, for the thrifty person realizes that the Jackson County Journal offer is no joke.

They fully realize that on August 24, at the doors of the Jackson County Bank, some one will have his or her name called out and a bill of sale presented for a brand new Chevrolet. Another will be given a Kelvinator, and so on down the line.

ARE YOU GOING TO BE ONE?

Just a little effort on your part will be the means of your winning one of these gorgeous prizes—a Chevrolet, a Kelvinator, a living room suite, a radio.
