NO READER OF LOCALITIES

It seems incredible that it could happen in one of the peaceful, Western North Carolina towns, on the daylight hunting of the Man, Hill Bank, and consequent shooting down of a young college girl, as the recruits sprayed the streets with bullets, then made their escape in a fleeing car, emphasizes that no dots, crooks, criminals, gangsters, such as we have read of in Chicago, are no respectors of localities or of persons.

They are audacious, heartless, they want money, and it makes no difference to them who they injure or person, property or otherwise, or whose lives are snuffed out, as they try to save themselves.

They don't get away with it long, a time, State, federal or municipal officers get there sooner or later, and the end is always like prison or the grave. Yet, others are up to take their places, and the battle between decency and crook dress goes on.

Any person, in locality may be some the victim of the crooks any day, and it is well respects citizens are alert and conscious that the fall victim to these birds of prey.

POOR LOUISIANA!

Most Americans could not agree with most of the policies of Huey P. Long, though it is admitted that he accomplished some good things in and for his state.

He still can't abide the methods by which he perpetuated himself in power and made himself pastur dictator of Louisiana and all the political sub-division thereof.

But all true Americans can yet deplore the means by which this, the most colorful and dynamic figure of recent political history was removed from the scene.

Government by assassination, attempt of political enemies by bullet instead of bolts have no place in America.

The lynching of the assassin, Dr. Weiss, who was placed by some 61 bullets from the roaring guns of Long's guard, is also to be deplored. They made themselves judge, jury and executioner, on the spot.

This assassination of a United States Senator, and the lynching of his assassin, in the handsome new State House at Baton Rouge, must make interesting reading in foreign countries, that have come under criticism in recent months.

With the passing of Long will doubtless begin the disintegration of his political machine, which will, in all probability, break up into warring factions, leaving the state of the State of Louisiana worse than it was.
