SHORT AND EASY SENTENCES

Said Finnegan to Flannagan: "You didn't get your man again. Completely failed to get him jailed. I want no more Shanamigan!"

Said Flannagan to Finnegan: "Tis true I didn't win again. But this guy's disguise deceives my eyes. But, if I'd run him in again, They'd turn him loose to sin again!"

GENTLEMEN MAY CRY PEACE

"Gentlemen may cry peace, peace, but there is no peace," shouted Patrick Henry.

There is no declared war in progress; yet there is no peace, despite the pacifism that pervades our country, the American people and the American government placed in a tough spot by the undeclared war that Japan is waging on China.

The Japanese warned foreign embassies to move out of Nanking, the capital of the Chinese government, and America and Italy were the only countries that took the warning.

This is an action without precedent, and it aroused a wave of resentment in China against America and Americans.

But, it is undoubtedly true that, at least for the time being, the prestige of America in the orient, built up through the years by diplomats, missionaries and merchants, suffered a terrific blow.

On the other hand, Secretary Hull solemnly warned Japan that the bombing of Nanking would seriously jeopardize the friendly relations between this country and Japan.

THE SLAUGHTER CONTINUES

To put down in cold type the number of human beings killed in the United States each year by automobiles makes little impression upon the average mind.

If all those thousands of broken bodies, the multitude of the maimed, the halt, the disfigured and the blinded could be seen at one time, it would perhaps so shock the sensibilities as to stupify them.

We are taught in Holy Writ that one human being is of more value than all the material wealth of the entire world.

Death and disaster await behind every curve and on the straightaways. There must be something terribly wrong with the machines, with the drivers, with the highways, with the laws and rules governing their use, or with the method of enforcing them.

Of course accidents are sometimes unavoidable, when certain situations arise; but people create those situations. Then it is often too late to avert tragedy.

The State of North Carolina established and is paying the bill of a highway patrol in an effort to stop the heavy toll of human life; but the slaughter grows worse.

TODAY and TOMORROW

those who do I'm glad to pass the good news along that frozen spinach and canned spinach are just as wholesome as the fresh vegetable.

The Massachusetts Agriculture Experiment Station found that out. It also has discovered that spinach contains the essential vitamins, "A" and "C" which ward off infections, strengthen the bones and prevent rheumatism.

WATER - chemical tricks In a big industrial laboratory lately I was shown a new chemical for waterproofing fabrics. It can be used on cotton, rayon, silk or wool and renders them absolutely impervious to water.

A chemist friend tells me of another new trick to make water wetter. The time and difficulty of getting some kinds of materials waterproof is one of industry's tough problems; wool, cotton, many other things have to be soaked for days.

It struck me this treatment of water ought to make it easier to wash clothes in "hard" water. I suggested that to my friend. He tried it out and said I had guessed right.

WASHINGTON NEWS

ning will have a chance by the Congress when it meets again.

Reports coming in to Washington from Senators and Representatives having farming constituencies indicate that, after talking with the folks "back home" the members are inclined to the idea that the present Soil Conservation Act pretty nearly meets all reasonable requirements of crop regulation.

There is growing strength, however, behind the movement for a two price standard for the major export crops, cotton and wheat, particularly. Something like the old "domestic allotment" plan is being talked about.

Secretary Hall is opposed to this plan. Its opponents say that it would prevent large foreign purchases of American farm products at any price.

Enough of the Administration's advisers are friendly to the two-price plan to suggest that when Congress gets back to work it will, at least, be well served on Capitol Hill.

The oft-repeated gossip that Postmaster-General Farley intends to resign has been revived lately, more insistently than ever.

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

Just Before the Shooting Started By IRVIN S. COBB

JUST before hostilities ended in 1918, a young lieutenant of my acquaintance was detailed to duty as a drill officer at camp of colored draft troops in Mississippi. When he got back home after the armistice he told this story:

He said that late one night he was returning from a nearby town to his quarters. As he neared the sentry lines, out of the darkness came a voice calling "Halt!" He halted, gave the countersign and started on. Immediately, in the gloom, there was a rattle as of a rifle being shifted in the sentry's hands and again the same voice cried: "Halt!"
