

Probably the wealthiest of our totally uncivilized Indians are the Navajos, whose country is in the northeastern corner of Arizona. Their herds of animals and flocks of sheep are always in sight from the car windows of the Atlantic & Pacific Railway. They do not all follow pastoral occupations, but many chiefs own productive fruit and vegetable farms, the product of which finds a convenient market in Santa Fe and Albuquerque. For many years they have been quiet, and they are, in fact, too weal hy to go on the warpath and risk their fortunes. A short time after the rebellion they began raiding and pillaging, and troops were sent after them. The shrewd commander supplied his men with axes, and starting ut one end of their lands he moved forward, cutting down their orchards, destroying their crops and shooting any animals found in his path. This sort of waifare was too much for them, and after they had lost the result of years of labor they sued for peace and have since been quiet.

· Among this tribe are found the expert weavers of the noted Navajo blanket, so much prized in the East as a cur o-ity. The finer varieties , are valued at $50 or $60 in the Navajo country, while small saddle blankets sometimes sell for $10. Scattered through this country are the ruins of many "a obe" towns, which were undoubtedly the settlements of that strong tribe of which the Zuni and Moki Indians are the living representatives. Along the southern line of Utah are seven large cities, of course now in ruins, which were built by this almost extinct nation. Their style of architecture is found all over Arizona, and there is almost conclusive evidence that they were exterminated by the more ferocious Apaches. The Zunis were undoubtedly a peace-loving people, and the implements found in the ruins prove that they practised many of the ruder arts, such as making pottery and the weaving of wool for clothing. When the hordes of Apaches came from the North the Zunis defended their cities until they were forced up into the cliffs and mountains, where many deserted cl ff dwellings are found. Sometimes on the bare face of cliffs 200 feet high one finds these dweilings of three and four stories high. To cut into these rocky precipices the first workmen were lowered over the edge by ropes until sufficiently large cavities to serve as habitations were dug out. One member of each family was always left at home to lower a rope ladder for the absent ones to ascend on their return. These dwellings show that every precaution was taken to enable the occupants to withstand a siege, because in many are found stone cisterns to hold water and deeper recesses in the rear which probably served to store away provisions and firewood. With such advantages on the side of the ultimately defeated and exterminated nation, the Apache and Zuni war must have been a long and bitter one. It is with the greatest d fliculty that the Southwestern India's may be induced to speak of the dead, so if they have an interesting' tradition or history, their custom of being silent concerning dead comrades pregents any knowledge of their past from reachguage, though many can still commu-

ing and murder, while in return being continually chased through Mexico, New Mexico and Arizona, without an opportunity to rest or see his family. Before Mayor Tupper gave the warlike Chiricahuas their severe blow in the Hatchet Mountains in 1883, we lead no agreement with Mexico allowing us to cross the line in pursuit of hostiles, and every massacre was followed by nothing more . than -a' chase to the border, where, if the Indians arrived first, they raised their hands to their noses and smiled at the troops. The good effect of Tupper's fight induced the Mexicans to allow us to follow a hot trail, i. e., one not more than eight hours old, and as the age of the trail is a matter of opinion, it is evident that considerable latitude is al. lowed, and the pursuing party may push on after the hostiles should there be a chance of overtaking them, even though the trail be sixteen hours old. -[New York Tribune.

Cil on Troubled Waters.

The saving of the steamer Miranda by the use of oil a few days ago has brought up again for discussion among seamen the peculiar wave-stilling power of oil. The Miranda had put out from St. John's, N. F., and was caught in a terrible hurricane. The ship waa about to founder when the captain thought of oil. Thirty gallons saved the ship, worth thousands of dollars.

I heard Captain Santelli of La Gascogne explaining oil's action to some old salts not long ago. "Oil coes not subdue the huge swell by any means," he said, "but smooths and tones down its ripples, each of which gives the wind a point of purchase. The film of oil is like a membrane . floating on the surface of the water, hampering its motion. When the seawater is pure there is nothing to oppose its NATIONAL AIRS.

An Extensive Collection by the Marine Band Leader.

Many Curious Facts Brought Out in a Long Search.

One of the most remarkable works ever published under the autfority of the government is the book just out by Mr. John Philip Sousa, conductor of the United States Marine Band, which contains the national and patriotic songs of nearly every nation in the world. The preparation of this book occupied about two years of fairly close labor, although even before work was commenced in earnest Mr. Sousa had been gradually gathering material since 1876. It was then that the idea first suggested itself to him, when Lands from foreign countries came to Philadelphia at the Centennial Exposition.

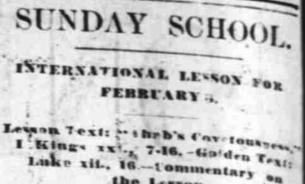

Some curious facts are brought to light by an examination of this collection, which includes about 250 airs. Turkey furnishes one which is full of minor chords of wild, discordant harmony, which is supposed to be characteristic of a people closed in from contact with more enlightened and cultured people, and also another song with a stirring theme and broad, full harmony, which indicates that the composer had had the advantage of a musical education in Germany. The airs of the Spanish Islands are dreamy and soft, as might be expected, while a surprise is found in Sequimo Indian air that is tender and sweet and would dø credit to any nation. * The beauty of this, however, is brought out in the harmony by Mr. Sousa.' The air which we know as "America," but which is the English "God Save the Queen," belongs to no less than seven different nations, and even the music of the "Star Spangled Banner," "Yankee Doodle" and "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," have been appropriated from airs sung in Europe long before the United States was a nation. After Mr. Sousa had commenced his work officially there were three nations that changed their national airs on account of change of government or ruler. Brazil overthrew the "emperor and became a republic, and the present national air was the result of a competitive contest made last June. Portugal adopted a new air. when the young King Carlos was proclaimed, and Nicaragua selected a new one when she elected a new president. Some of the airs from out-of-the-way places were whistled or sung to Mr. Sousa, and he noted them down and then harmonized them afterward. Austria's national hymn was written by Hayden, who was prompted to his task by hearing 'God Save the King" sung in England, while in New Zealand the national anthem was composed in an effort to secure a prize of ten guineas offered by a newspaper. Bohemia's national air forms a prominent part of Balfe's overture to "The Bohemian Girl," and Nicaragua's state hymn was written by a member of the governiment band. One singular fact is developed, namely, that the smallest republic in the world," that of San Marino, has the longest national song. It consists of twelve verses, each with the supper, as sumptuous as the dinner is simple, there must always be three or four soris of meat. Dr. Koch drinks during his meal large quantities of soda water. After his supper, and sometimes during his supper, he receives the visits of friends and acquaintances, with whom he remains in lively conversation till midnight. Then he goes to bed, but when there reads all sorts of political and scientific magazines and papers, as he has not sufficient leisure time during the day. He receives the visits, of physicians and other persons in the afternoon. He is said to complain bitterly to his intimate friends of the way he is disturbed and bothered by visits from persons who are perfect strangers to him.

Modern Views of Consumption. Two things are now believed to be necessary for the production of consumption-the tubercle bacillus and a disordered state of the boay, such as to favor its growth-in other words, seed and a fertile soil; and if either is wanting, the disease is not produced. We never know when we may take in the germs on our food or in the air, hence we should see to it that we do not give them a fertile soil. "It is of primal consequence," says Dr. S. S. Burt, in a paper recently published in the New York Medical Record, "to elevate the tone of the tissues and the fluids that bathe them to a sanitary pitch, where they themselves are the best of germicides. Bacteria do not thrive upon such nourishment."*

While it is almost certain that the disease itself is not inherited, it is well established that a deba-ed quality of blood and tissue, in which the germs of consumption find their proper food, is transmitted from parent to child. If both parents come from consumptive families their children have little chance of escaping the disease, but "a child with good blood for a legacy, even from one parent," says Dr. Bart, "has every reason to expect immunity from the disease, if he is reared intelligently. Such children must be properly clothed, very carefully fed, and encouraged to spend the greater part of their daily life in the open air."- the Lessor.

1. "And it came to pass after thise things The previous chapter gives a record of the remarkable victories of Arab and his army over the king of Syria and his army the army of Ahab being like two little docks of kids before the Syrians, who filled the country (xx., 37); but it was all the work of God, that Ahab might know that God was Jehovah (xx., 13, 28), and act accordingly Ahab is, however, so little in sympathy with God that he after all made friends with the king of Syria, and let him escape. For the he was rebuked by a prophet, and went to hi house heavy and displeased (xx., 42, 43, "Naboth the Jozreelite." We are now is troduced to a man who is mentioned only this chapter and in II Kings iz. His name is given here nineteen times, and six times it is Naboth the Jezreelite. Naboth sign fies "prominent," and Jezrsel "the seed of so that we find the seed of God prom God." ineht hard by the palace of ungodly Abah That a wicked person, hating God and His ways, should have such a contrast siclose to him is too much for wicked fiesh to stand and, like Cam, he is troubled by it.

2. "Give me thy vineyard cause it is near unto my house." A right cousness life is a constant rebute to unright cousness and cannot be tolerated, especially when the spirit of God is striving with the inpenitent as He was with Ahab.

"The Lord forbideth me that I should give the inheritence of my fathers use thee." Although Ahab offered him a better vineyard or tits full value in money, this his reply. Naboth fears Jehovah, but does not fear Ahab, and the inheritance of his fathers is more to him than money or thus any other , inheritance. had he blen Esau he would have sold it cheap.

4. "And Ahab came into his house heavy and displeased." In the last crapter we saw him in his house, heavy and displaced be cause the Lord by the prophet had rebuted him; and now he is in the same place and m the same state of mind because the Lord has again rebuked him through Naboth Had he frequented the house of the Lord and in his trouble gone like Elijah into the same tuary (Ps. Ixxiii, 17) he would have found a cure for his sadness; but he was not that kind of a man. He lived for Ahab and Ahab's will and Ahab's way, and whatever interfered with that cast him down.

5. "Why is thy spirit so sad?" "Sad" is just the same word as "heavy" in verse and xx., 43, and it is only tound these three times in the Bible. This is his wife's question to him. He will not find help in the right direction from her, for she incited him t sell himself to work wickedness in the sight of the Lord (verse 25). 6. "I will not give thee my vineyard." He rehearses to her, his request of Naboth and this, Naboth's reply. Thank God for all who say to the world, the flesh and the devi: I am the Lord's property, you cannot have me or anything belonging to me; and m money nor any other inducement can prsuade me to give to any but my last that which is truly and only His. "I will give thee the vineyard of Na both the Jezreelite." Thus speaks this woman of Satan, this defier of the trae God and Hs servants. She talks like the devil himself when he said to our Lord Jesus, "All this ⇒ * to whomsoever I will I give thee. will I give it" (Luke iv., 6) "So she wrote letters in Ahab's name, and sealed them with his seal." Thus did Haman, another adversary of the people d God (Esth. iii., 12). Thus will the beast and the false prophet act in the power of the dragon, that old serpent, the devil, in the last days before Jesus comes in His glory (Rev. xiji., 4, 7, 15, etc.). In all ages "he wicked watcheth the righteous and seekets to slay Him" (Ps. xxxvii., 32), and it shall continue so till Jesus comes 9. "Proclaim a fast, and set Naboth on high among the people." Or as in R.V. margin, "at the head of the people." A child of God may conclude that something is wrong when the enemies of God do him an honor or in any way set him on high. When God elevates a man as He did Jos ph and David and Daniel He is able to keep them: yct see how Satan shot at them and sought their ruin. 10. "And set two men, sons of Balial, be fore him to bear witness against him." "Sons of Belial" signify worthless, recites, lawless fellows. They abound everywhere, and are ready to every evil work. 11, 12 "And the men of his city" = * did as Jezebel had sent unto them." Were the servants of Christ only half as ready and obedient as the servants of the adversary how the name of Christ would be magnified. God glorified, the elect church called out and the kingdom hastened. These men did jus what Jezebel said-took her to mean what she said and went about it. So many of the professed followers of Jesus cannot believe that He means what He says, and will sat do as He says. 13. "Naboth did blaspheme God and the king." This is the lie which these false witnesses give utterance to. Naboth could ar with David and with Jesus: "False witness did rise up; they laid to my charge that that I knew not. They hats me without a cause" (Ps. xxxv., 11; Ixix., 4; Matt. xxn., 59-61; John zv., 25). "They stone i him with stones that he died It would seem from II Kings ix . 25, that is sons also were murdered. Thus in later dam they stoned Stephen and Paul (Acts vil., xiv., 19). - The same hatred of God and Ha seed murdered Jesus, and has in various eral ways put to death multitudes of those who believe in Him. And it seems to human set so strange; but we must wait. God is love & God of love can do no wrong. 14. "Naboth is stoned, and is detd." as in the next verse, "Naboth is not all but dead." Satan had done his sort Jesus taught His disciples not to feet those who could only kill the body. Spirit, through Paul, says that "to die # gain," "to depart and be with Christis of better." Jesus tells us that when Lanne died the angels carried him -not his ref. rupting body, but himself, apart from the frail tabernacle in which he had been so jours ing-to Abraham's bosom; and He sail B the thief on the cross: "To-day shalt that M contractions and extensions. Now cover the surface with oil and the contractions are not possible. This effect of oil on the small waves conduces to the breaking of the large waves, which are the sailor's special dread. It is the breaking waters which do the nischief and these are quieted by Captain Santelli made a suggestion that oil might be used with advantage at exposed lighthouses to break the force of the waves. This could be done, he thinks, by placing a couple of steel buoys at a distance of about one hundred and fifty feet from the lighthouse. A pully and light rope on the buoy would enable the bag of oil or other appliance to distribute the oil to be hauled in when desired. -[NewYork Star.

.... A Remarkable Quadruped.

A French periodical, the Monde Artiste, idtroduces to our notice a quadruped whose acquaintance is certainly worth making. The dog to which we refer belongs to a family residing in Darmstadt-a most musical family, for every member of it-and it reckons eight-plays some musical instrument or other from morning till night. Even the servants have been taught to play, much to the tor.ure of the neighbors; and hardly less at first was the infliction felt by the dog in question, who used to slink out of the house in order to escape the conflicting sounds of the various instruments. It was determined, however, that the

is no early riser; on the contray, he time a false note was played he reonly gets up at 9 o'clock, unless there ceived a cut from a whip, and thus be some particular reason for comhis ear was formed and his education mencing his day earlier. He takes a completed. Gradually, says the long time to dress, as he is very paring us. They have no written lan-Monde Artiste, the animal got to unticular, and makes his toilet at once derstand that each stroke of the whip for the day. Instead of drinking coffee nicate by means of signs and hierohe received signified that a false note for breakfast, Dr. Koch takes a thick glyphics. Association with whites had been played, and soon a look sufsoup made of flour, into which he divorces them from many aboriginal ficed to make him howl at the right breaks an enormous quantity of toastcustoms and prejudices, and this is moment. At the present time he ed black bread. After this simple especially the case with friendly Inrecognizes a note that is out of tune meal he repairs to his laboratory, dian scouts, many of whom, re-enlist without being touched or looked at; which he does not leave till 2 o'clock. year after year and live at the frontier and when taken to a concert or other [Aibany (Oregon) Democrat. At this hour dinner is served. It conposts on terms of equality with the musical entertainment, if a performer sists of soup, reast meat, and a light troops. The employment of Apaches makes a mistake he sets up a howl of A Pushing Agent. pudding. On the stroke of three a in the Government service has done disapproval, and can only be reduced white horse from the livery stable nuch toward their civilization. Thirto silence by the voice of his master, polish to clean silver. stands before his door. On this aniteen dollars per month, comfortable who sometimes has even to leave the mal the professor trots briskly off to quarters, a clothing allowance, and an ione. hall with the animal to avoid disturbthe Thiergarten. This ride, for whic's abundant ration would wean any saving the proceedings. he wears a rather pecular riding suit ige from a desire to live under preand an enormous slouch hat, lasts Professor :- Which teeth come eisely reverse conditions, with about an hour. last? Pupil: - The false one, sir. the only reward being that The rest of his time till 8 in the of following a career of raid-[Detroit Free Press. evening is devoted solely to study. At | boxes .- [New York Weekly.

Dr. Koch, says the Berlin correhim bark and whine as he might. spondent of the London Daily News, Further, to teach him music, every

To Obtain Oil from Flaxseed.

There are two processes used in making linseed oil from flax, the cold process and that in which heat is used-By the first the seed is ground . in its raw state, and the meal obtained is subjected to powerful hydraulic pressure, which extracts the oil that it contains. In the second process the seed is first roasted and then ground is a mill in the same manner, and is pressed at a steam Leat of 200 degrees. The resulting ous from these two processes have very different qualities. The cold-pressed oil is of a golden yellow color, almost tasteless, and quite sticky. It does not keep very well, but turns dark colored, and becomes rancid, even if exposed to the air. The roasting process destroys the gummy matter in the inner coating of the seeds, and the oil obtained is less mucilaginous, but it is darker colored and has a more acrid taste than the fresh cold-pressed oil. The heatprocess oil is the kind most generally used .- [Boston Cultivator.

A Conscientious Indian,

Indians sometimes display quite a a different time .- [Washington S:ar. animal should also receive a musical streak of conscience. The following education, and to this end he was made is told about Billy Chinook, who re-Dr. Koch's Daily Life. to stay beside his master's chair, let cently died at Warm Springs. When he joined the United Presbyterian Church a few years ago he had three wives. Of course that would not do for a church member, and he had to give two of them up. Which one he should keep was a serious matter. One had a child, one had no sense, and the third he loved best. She was childless. Out of a sense of duty he kept the one with the child, and the one he loved best was married to another man, which he said was pretty hard to bear. The one without any sense he kept and sopported for a help to his wife .--Peddler-Please, mum, I'm sellin' a Housekeeper (sharply)-Don't want Peddler-Very sorry, mam, but I see the neighbors was right. They said there was no use callin' here, cause you didn't have no silver. Housekeeper (wildly)-Gimme six with Me in Paradise."

15. "Arise, take possession of the vin of Naboth the Jerreelite which he refused b give thee for money." Thus speaks Jenni to her heavy and displeased husband. The prominent seel of God is no longer in way as a rebuke to him, and the cores vineyard is now his without moust 16. "Ahab rose up to go down to the new yard • • • to take possession of it." But he is not prepared to hear the fearful the which await him from the Lord by an mouth of him whom he is pleased to term is enemy. The Lord has seen it all "log-shall lick thy blood," "dogs shall eat Jerke (verses 19-23); fearful words, but fulfilled in due time most literally (xxii. 38; If King ix., 35, 36). Covetous and God-detying me and women may seem to necomplish the purposes and triumph over the rightees, but there is a God who sees and hear and will do right. - Lesson Helper.