COMMUNICATIONS.

CAMERON.

Just washed a part of the sorghum off our hands, and again attempt, after a lull, to pen a few more of our lies for the LEADER; were told yesterday by several of your readers, that they were about half mad because we had failed to shell the woods and branches, but we can't please all, no more than the farmer and his son going to the fair with the old ass. It is true, many little things and some big ones have happened since we last wrote that we were pressed to send up, but was like our sweetie, "tendin our own business."

We learn that one of our neighbors recently prevailed on one of his kinsmen to furnish him with the spon to pay for a copper pot to preserve grape hulls, in connection with the Cranes Run factory, with instructions to keep it from Old Crutch. As it happened that night we were 'possum hunting. We didn't walk up and say it, but just thought "It is I, be not afraid." But old Sampson like, he was in love, and told Delilah where the pot sat, and while he slept, she sheared his locks and the Philistines came down upon it, and the pot departed into the land of Canaan, and he never saw his younger brother Benjamin, and he walked many nights without his coat of many colors, and would not be comforted, because the pot was not.

We shall not attempt to report the marriages, births or deaths since our last writing, as it is all generally known, but had a regular nip and tuck fight in Cameron yesterday, and there is a big wedding booked for the 12th.

John T. Cole and wife, of Georgia, are spending sometime at his old home. Charlie Shaw has returned to Florida.

Corn shucking, 'possum hunting and sorghum making is now the order of the day and night. The two former are fair crops.

John Richardson, Neill, and Old Crutch were out three nights and bagged seventeen slick tails.

As our mail carrier is in a hurry we must stop.

Where are all your correspondents? Stir them up and lets hear from them.

TRINITY COLLEGE.

Much has been said about the bright future of Trinity and the propitious circumstances under which she will labor when moved to Durham. But what has impressed me most since I came to Trinity is not her outward show, not the fine buildings which she will soon occupy nor the beautiful park which will adorn her; but the inward life of the student-body, their observance of that "one thing needful," and the respect and care they have for each other. I rather expected to find them so absorbed in the contest for medals and high grades that they would consider themselves too busy to have much regard for the spiritual welfare of each other, but I am glad to say I found it quite different. The general Christian atmosphere which pervades the whole student-body is manifested in their daily life and there is no better place to test this than on the athletic grounds. There was a certain young man, who, in time of a hotly contested game would use profane language. In a game a few days ago he used some of his base language and another young man stepped out and told the Capt. he would play no longer if such language was tolerated. This is only an example to show that if any are disposed to exhibit their lower nature it will not be allowed by the better class which constitutes nearly all the boys of the college. The rules of castare are unknown and the boy who does his best and reports himself as a gentleman is respected without regard to alliance or social position. A certain young man who had been here two years and was not able to come longer for lack of money was going home; this being found out by the students, enough of them promised to give him ten cents per month each, to pay his expenses. The students are divided into classes and a leader is appointed for about every eight or ten members, and each class meets once every week at the room, of some of its members for the purpose of aiding each other in the Christian life and discussing ways by which they may best promote the Master's kingdom. At a meeting of the Y. M. C. A. a few Sunday evenings ago a certain young man from your town asked for the prayers of the Christian members of the association. That night one of the members, who was a ministerial student had an appointment to preach at Archdale, a little village about two miles distant from the college. There were four of the students who went with him to hear him preach that night and as they were making their way to this little village about dark, one of the company suggested that they all go out a short distance from the road into the woods and spend a few moments in prayer for that young man. They went out and prayed, and he is now a Christian and leading a happy life. These are instances to prove the high standard of morality and Christianity which is practiced by the boys of Trinity College. I think the young man who contemplates going to college and desires to throw himself among boys who will edify him by their exemplary lives and kind treatment, cannot do better than to come to Trinity.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 30, 1891.

President Harrison expressed himself to a personal friend as feeling greatly relieved to turn over the foreign business of the Government to Secretary Blaine again. This is doubtless true, but as any one may judge from the expressions of opinion from persons of all shades of political belief, the dispatch instructing Minister Egan in relation to that of Chili regarding the mobbing of the U. S. sailors, which was made public this week, and which although signed by assistant Secretary of State Wharton, was written by Mr. Harrison, demonstrates that Mr. Harrison is an adept in the preparation of State papers. It would be difficult for anyone to put that dispatch in more appropriate language, and fortunately upon such questions as this all patriotic Americans, without regard to their political affiliations, occupy precisely the same position.

Secretary Blaine had a talk with Senator Montt, who has been appointed Chilean minister to the U. S. this week but as the new minister's credentials have not yet arrived the talk was entirely informal. Senator Montt professes the greatest friendship for the U. S., but he has a friend and associate who lives at the Chilean legation in this city, that loses no opportunity to express the contempt which he says the Chileans feel for this Government and its people. At one time this fellow, whose name is Foster, claimed to be Secretary of the legislation, but now he says he has no official connection therewith. It might be said of Foster, as Commodore Vanderbilt once said of one of his sons-in-law—"He is more kinds of blank fool than any man I ever saw."

It is regarded here as almost certain that the Farmers' Alliance of the Eighth Virginia district will nominate a candidate to succeed the late Representative Lee, the only question being whether the Alliance shall allow the candidate to be labeled a moderate or sail under their own flag. It is an agricultural district and can be controlled by the Alliance if no mistakes are made by them in the preliminary work of making the nomination.

Criticism of public men without just cause never helps anyone or anything. The best friends of temperance express regret that an attack, in the name of temperance, has been made upon President Harrison, not for anything that he has done or left undone, but because Mr. Andrew Carnegie, the Scotch American millionaire, has announced that he had sent a barrel of Scotch whiskey to the White House as a present to Mr. Harrison. It by no means follows that Mr. Harrison will drink this whiskey because it was given to him, indeed he would have to have an ostrich stomach if he drank all the liquids sent by cranks and friends to the White House. Few Presidents have occupied the White House whose personal habits were more temperate than those of Mr. Harrison, and no President has been a more sincere friend to those engaged in temperance work; therefore it is hard to understand why he should be subjected to harsh criticism for something that he had nothing whatever to do with.

On Nov. 11, the National Council of Administration of the G. A. R. will meet in this city for the purpose of deciding upon the date for holding the National encampment next year, and also for the examination of documentary evidence showing that the Washington executive committee has secured the required concessions from hotel-keepers and railroads and complied with other stipulated requirements. All these things and more have been done. Every hotel-keeper in Washington has bound himself in writing not to add one cent to his regular charge during the encampment.

A number of officials went over to Baltimore Wednesday afternoon to witness the launching of the steel cruiser Detroit, which was a success. It is thought that the twin vessel to the Detroit, which is also to be built at Baltimore, will be christened "Cobble." A naval court of inquiry is investigating the recent wrecking of the U. S. S. Dispatch. It seems that the accident was caused by the executive officer changing the sailing orders of the commander, owing to his mistaking one light for another, at least that's the way the testimony so far taken makes it look.

"This is no political headquarters," said an official at the Farmer's Alliance headquarters when asked for political news from Ohio: "whatever action individual members of the organization may take the National Alliance has not yet gone into politics." Hon. Jerry Simpson, who passed through Washington this week, says the Alliance Representatives will have their own candidate for Speaker and will not go into the caucus of either of the old parties.

A Wonder Worker.

Mr. Frank Huffman, a young man of Burlington, Ohio, states that he had been under the care of two prominent physicians, and used their treatment until he was not able to get around. They pronounced his case to be Consumption and incurable. He was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds and at that time was not able to walk across the street without resting. He found, before he had used half of a dollar bottle, that he was much better; he continued to use it and is to-day enjoying good health. If you have any Throat, Lung or Chest trouble, try it. We guarantee satisfaction. Trial bottle free at McIver and Dalrymple's, 5
