Kentucky Letter.

RICHMOND, KY., Nov. 14, 1891.

DEAR LEADER:—I have just returned from "up North," where the lizards lie low and the Michiganander sings his evening song to the crack of ice burgs. Made a flying trip through a part of Ontario, but didn't have money enough to bid a final adieu to Uncle Sam. The only thing that could keep me on British dirt would be a half million or more of another man's money, and only then, if it was impossible for me to hand it back to him with a satisfactory explanation. I think the man who takes his flight to Canada does so on the same ground upon which one joins the Masons, and if he could know as much before starting as after getting there, he would deliberate on this side of the mysterious. The great trouble is, when you get in, you can't get out, and I have always thought that I would hate to be tied up, tongue, hand and foot, and compelled to do just so. Yes sir, I had rather be in the pen, and the "bull pen" at that, and have for my comfort the happy thought that at some time I would be a free man again. Well, that is only an idea of my own, no charge for it.

I have just applied for an extra $10,000 accident policy, being prompted to do so by a fearful catastrophe which occurred in this ranch last evening. I am taking my corn bread and buttermilk at the Garnett House, this city, the boss of which is a man of deep thought and few words, and the boys keep a close watch upon "his nibs" to see what he will do or say next, so last evening while a lively conversation was being carried on in the Hotel office upon the all-interesting subject of traveling, the "boss" sat before a cheerful fire with bowed head and meditative demeanor, while at last a pint of Old Kentucky bourbon was animating his very soul and causing his brilliant mind to imagine Solomon an ordinary individual as compared with himself. A muffled sound like muttering thunder announced the fact that the old man was going to say something. Every eye turned towards the center of knowledge. He said: gentlemen, speaking of traveling, I have seen all the beauties of our great country in all their majestic splendor and sublimity. I have strode the decks of the Great Eastern, I have stood upon the mountain tops and viewed with eagle eye to ocean's depths. Why gentlemen I have—but the stove exploded under the awful strain, and they carried the old man out on a shutter. None of us boys were seriously hurt, but the accident insurance man is talking of locating here permanently.

ELCEPHILLIPS.

ASHEVILLE.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 16, '91.

On the night of the 9th inst., there was a wreck on the W. N. C. R. R. which was death to two negroes and two horses.

At Riverside M. E. Church South a protracted meeting is being held by the pastor in charge assisted by many other ministers of the gospel.

The Western North Carolina Conference is in session in Asheville now. Asheville is full of Ministers. There was made, for them, last Saturday, a free ride to and from the most noted places of the city. However, vehicles enough could not be provided to accommodate all, so only part of them received any advantage from it.

Capt. Little, of the U. S. Army, has organized a "crack" company for the purpose of visiting the most of the prize drills throughout the State.

Two students, ("Rats") have arrived at Bingham School from Texas this week. They are kindly treated.

Bishop Galloway preached at Central M. E. Church on Sunday 15th at 11 a.m. and also dedicated a church in North Asheville at 3 p.m. same day. Maj. R. Bingham is fast clearing away the rubbish, and will soon have a very pretty place, as Geo. T. Winston, L. L. D. says: "A diamond set in a mountain."

The largest Sabbath School in the State is said to be in this city. It is only about fifty yards from your humble writer's door. I counted 174 on Sunday Nov. 15th, as they came out of the Church. It is Missionary Baptist.

UNCLE LOGAN.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13, 1891.

No case argued before the Supreme Court for years has had such an important bearing upon the fundamental principles of this Government as the Sayward case, involving the jurisdiction of the U. S. over Behrings sea. The arguments were concluded this week, but it will probably be some time before a decision is announced, as the principles involved are of too much importance to be decided without the most careful consideration on the part of the eminent gentlemen who compose what has been most appropriately called "the greatest tribunal in the world." It involves nothing less than a construction of the constitutional authority conferred upon the three co-ordinate branches of our government—Executive, Legislative and Judicial. To the ordinary mind it appears that the position taken by the Attorney General, as the Representative of the executive branch of the Government, is the correct one. He argued that the question of the jurisdiction of the U. S. over Behrings sea was entirely political and as such it was proper and Constitutional that it should be determined by the President and that such decision on the part of the President being merely the performance of his Constitutional functions, cannot be reversed by the Supreme Court. Nevertheless it will be remembered that the position taken by the Government in the beginning of this case, that the Supreme Court had no authority to entertain the original motion for leave to file a petition for a writ of prohibition, was overruled. During the arguments the court room was daily crowded with eminent constitutional lawyers from all sections of this country.

November 30th has been set by the Supreme Court as the day to argue the case involving the constitutionality of the McKinley tariff act, and the case involving the right of the Speaker of the House of Representatives to count a quorum. These cases, although brought in the name of business firms, are regarded as political; but that does not lessen the importance of the decisions, in fact it rather adds to it. If the Supreme Court shall hold that Speaker Reed had the authority to count a quorum whenever enough members were in the House, whether they answered to their names or not, it will be a death-blow to that style of filibustering.

Representatives Mills, McMillan, Springer and Bynum, all candidates for Speaker are on the ground, ready to convert the unpledged Congressmen as they arrive, but as yet none of them are overworked. For some reason, probably because they know of the presence of the candidates and their friends, the Representatives are very slow in arriving. This state of affairs makes it impossible to say whether any one of the candidates is making more headway than his competitors. All of them continue to express confidence of election, and to hear the friends of any one of them you would suppose that everything was already settled and that only one name would be mentioned in the caucus. Mr. Mills' statement that he has made no plea and that he should make none, is calculated to make him new friends.

The first week in Oct., 1892, is the time set for the National encampment of the G. A. R. in this city. Nearly 40 Posts have already engaged quarters for the encampment.

The administration certainly adopted a queer way of informing the public that an agreement had been reached as to the questions to be arbitrated growing out of our dispute with Great Britain about our rights in Behrings' sea, for it is certain that the statement that such an agreement had been made and only awaited the ratification of the Senate to go into effect, would not have been made by Solicitor General Taft in his argument before the Supreme Court in the Sayward case, and confirmed by Atty. General Miller, if it had not been previously decided upon by the administration. The nature of the agreement or rather treaty, is still a State secret, but is dollars to ginger cakes that it will be found out before the Senate acts upon it.

The rumors from Brazil continue to be extremely disquieting to those who are in any way interested in the commerce with that country under the reciprocity agreement. Official news there is next to none, and the little that is received is unimportant, which only adds to the anxiety, as it shows that the powers that be, in that country, are in some way preventing the sending out of news covering the real situation.

The struggle for the national republican convention next year, which will be decided by the National republican committee in this city on the 23rd inst. is growing decidedly interesting. Among the cities contesting are Chicago, Omaha, Minneapolis, Cincinnati, Tacoma, San Francisco, New York and Philadelphia, and the friends of each, now in this city, express confidence of securing the convention. Mr. Harrison is said to favor Minneapolis or Omaha.

Drove Judge Bynum from the Bench.

A most disgraceful and daring occurrence took place at Burnsville, Yancey county, last week, of which the facts are these. One of the best citizens of that county, Solomon Carter, had died very suddenly, and was being buried. Garret D. Ray, another leading citizen of the same town, had had not lived on good terms with Mr. Carter during the latter's lifetime; but, as death had removed one of the two, Mr. Ray thought he would aid in paying the last tribute of respect to his departed neighbor, and attended the burial. This so enraged the son of Mr. Ray that he shot at his father several times, whereupon Judge Bynum ordered the arrest of the young Ray. He defied the sheriff, but walked into the court-house, and with his double-barrelled gun drove the judge from the bench; cleared out the assembly, and deliberately walked off.—Asheville Morning Journal.

Surely, surely the intelligent negroes in N. C. are not so blind as to cherish the idea that the monstrosity of "social equality" between the white and black races will ever be brought about in the South. Individual cases of miscegenation have taken place, and will continue to take place, but it illustrates the bestiality and debasement of a white man or a white woman here and there. One NIXON, a somewhat prominent negro in New Hanover county, has been recently assuring the people of his color that they are "deprived of the rights guaranteed to them by the Constitution." If he and the likes of him are striving after anything more of the privileges of citizenship than are now accorded to them in this State their best plan is emigration—they've turned up on the wrong part of the globe.—Fayetteville Observer.
