News and Obs.

The New York Tribune of Tuesday had the following remarkable specimen of campaign bluster sent from this city.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 5.—This place was in an uproar tonight. A riot is eminent, and it promises to be one of the bloodiest character. Already shots have been exchanged and a number of Republicans have been wounded. The Democratic leaders are now openly declaring on the streets that they will carry the election and throw out Republican votes by the wholesale. Threats of killing are freely made against the negroes. Republican supervisors are warned that they will be lynched if they persist in trying to obtain their rights.

Arms were distributed throughout this city, and in other places, by the Bourbon bosses who are advising their followers to resist officers sent by the United States Commissioners to serve warrants for offences committed against the election law. In many instances those officers have been obliged to flee for their lives. Ballot boxes and registration books have been burned in several precincts of this city to prevent holding an election tomorrow.

The State militia are under arms ready to aid the disorderly element in executing the schemes against a fair ballot. Hundreds of South Carolina Democrats are coming across the border to assist in intimidating the black and white Republicans. These in many cases are standing up manfully in their own defence, but the other side are becoming desperate. If a Northern Republican should be found by the mob, his life would not be worth much. The Republicans will insist on voting and on having their votes counted, but the chairman of the Republican State Committee is fearful that serious trouble will occur tomorrow.

Dispatches indicating a bitter feeling in North Carolina were received by chairman Quay, of the National Committee, yesterday. Here is one that came in late in the afternoon from the chairman of the North Carolina State Republican Committee:

"The Democratic leaders are now boasting openly that they will count us out. They are threatening to kill our negroes and lynch our supervisors. They are arming their people and resisting arrest. Several have already been shot, and it is certain that blood will flow freely on election day. The South Carolina Democrats are coming across the border, and the militia has been ordered under arms."

In reply to this Mr. Quay directed the Committee to appeal to the Federal authorities, if necessary, and also sent the following telegram, a copy of one sent on Sunday night to the chairman of the party in all the Southern States:

"Information recently received by this committee convinces us that a conspiracy exists to perpetrate extensive frauds upon the ballot in different sections of the South. Under the present administration their occurrence cannot be prevented. But we have determined, as far as in us lies, to prevent their recurrence, and accordingly, at our final meeting yesterday, the sum of $50,000 was set apart to be paid in rewards which may lead to the arrest and conviction of persons so offending. Please direct your people in all districts where these frauds are likely to occur to be prepared to furnish the national committee at the proper time with the necessary evidence. A specific offer of rewards, distributing the amount appropriated, will be sent you within the next ten days."

Every effort will be made to protect the rights of the party in Raleigh, but the indications are that serious trouble is impending. There is a widespread revolt against Bourbon rule in the State, and the Democratic leaders are trying to crush it."

The above is a tissue of falsehoods. There was not even a fight in Raleigh on election day, nor the day before. But this is the kind of lies the Republicans use to consolidate the Northern vote against the South."

The Biter Bitten.

A letter from Raleigh to the Wilmington Messenger, dated November 3d, says:

Yesterday a United States Deputy Marshall named Upchurch sent to Richmond County by Sheriff, upon a warrant sworn out by a Radical Deputy Sheriff there, went to Gibson and attempted to arrest W. F. Gibson. The latter demanded Upchurch's authority. The latter could not show what was considered satisfactory authority and as a result was himself taken into custody. It was a clear case of "the biter bitten." The people there are angry to the last degree. If this sort of thing continues there will be some tar and feathering certainly.

Mr. Gibson is a Democrat, whose only offense has been his obedience to the law and his refusal to register men who are not bona fide citizens. There is a rush of negroes over the border from South Carolina and the desperate Republicans say they intend to move heaven and earth to get them registered.

As you were informed last night, more of Eaves' "detectives" arrived here last night. They were steadily watched. They made the Yarboro House their headquarters, and it is said that the head of Eaves' and Harris' system of spies is quartered there. Today the close watch upon them was maintained by both police and citizens. There were five of the men in all, including the resident spy above attended to, who it appears have been here off and on, for a month, very nearly.

Two of the suspected men who were at the Branson House, "jumped" it last night. They got away after midnight and disappeared.

An admirably close watch is kept here upon all sorts of "suspects." This plan is commended to people at other points in the State. It is more than probable that the indignant people will punish some of these spies, detectives and reliable before this matter is at an end. Any overt act will lead to such a result.

About a Mortgage.

The editor of the Santa Anna Standard, having just paid off a mortgage on his ranch in Orange-trope, rejoices in the full ownership of "61 acres of as fine land as California boasts." His experience with the "dead pledge"—now so happily past—moves him to wise reflections, as follows: "A mortgage is a queer institution. It makes a man hustle and always keep poor. It is a strong incentive to action, and a wholesome reminder of the fleeting months and years. It is fully as symbolical in its meetings as the hour glass and sythe, that represent death. A mortgage also represents industry, because it is never idle and never rests. It is like a bosom friend, because the greater the adversity the closer it sticks to a fellow. It is like a brave soldier—it never hesitates at a charge nor fears to close in on an enemy. It is like a bag of thug—silent in application but deadly in effect. It is like the hand of providence—it spreads all over creation, and its influence is every-where visible. It is like the grasp of a devil fish—the longer it holds, the greater its strength. It will exercise energies and lend activity to a sluggish brain, but no matter how hard the debtor works the mortgage works harder.

A mortgage is a good thing to have in the family—provided always it is in somebody else's family. It is like a boil—always a good thing on some other fellow. It makes one sour, cross, selfish and unbecomingly miserably, and rarely does him good, only to exercise him. In that respect it is equal to vigor of life or that latest patent medicine. We have had our last one as far as we know ourselves. We would rather, have an argue than have a mortgage. Adieu, old death pall, a fond adieu.

Lincoln and a Southern Heroine.

During the war Miss N., a beautiful and spirited Virginian, whose brother (a Confederate soldier) had been taken prisoner by the Union forces, was desirous of obtaining a pass which would enable her to visit him. Francis P. Blair agreed to secure an audience with the President, but warned his young and rather impulsive friend to be very prudent and not let a word escape her which would betray her Southern sympathies. They were ushered into the presence of Mr. Lincoln, and the object for which they had come stated. The tall, grave man bent down to the petite maiden, and, looking searchingly into her face, said: "You are loyal, of course?" Her bright eyes flashed. She hesitated a moment and then, with a face eloquent with emotion and honest as his own, she replied: "Yes, loyal to the heart's core—to Virginia!" Mr. Lincoln kept his intent gaze upon her for a moment longer and then went to his desk, wrote a line or two, and handed her the paper. With a bow the interview terminated. Once outside, the extreme vexation of Mr. Blair found vent in reproachful words. "Now, you have done it!" he said. "Didn't I warn you to be very careful! You have only yourself to blame." Miss N. made no reply, but opened the paper. It contained these words, with Lincoln's signature attached: "Pass Miss N.; she is an honest girl, and can be trusted."—Shoe and Leather Reporter.
