The Montgomerian contest list is growing, but there is still room for a great many more. Send in your name at once if you desire to get in the contest, and get out and see everybody in your community.

In most counties yesterday, the people voted their convictions independent of their political views which was right. The little fellows who tried to make politics out of it were rebuked.—News and Observer.

The election passed off quietly Tuesday. Montgomery county gives a majority of about 100 for prohibition. Prohibition carried in Troy township by 211; Hill 93; Hollingsworth 34; all the rest of the county went wet. The majority for prohibition in N. C. is about 50,000.

Here's what Mr. Bryan thinks of advertising: 'The fellow who tries to attract business without advertising is like the fellow who throws his sweet-heart a silent kiss in the dark. He knows what he is doing, but nobody else does.'

Don't think any less of your friend or neighbor for differing with you in politics or as to candidates for office. If he has convictions and opinions of his own and stands by them he is all the more deserving of your respect, even though you may hold contrary views and prefer the opposing candidate.

In the death of John W. Bostain the town suffers a distinct loss. He has been identified with the growth and business development of the place almost from the town's infancy, and possibly no other man has contributed to the moral tone, order and civic welfare of the place so much as he. He will be missed by every one who knew him. He was authority on law, and had those peculiar faculties that equipped him so well for the office of mayor or justice. He was capable of higher honors than he received. He would have done honor to the superior court bench as a judge. But he was modest in his ambitions. He loved his family, and no one was every more devoted to family ties than he. He was the friend of every man, and those who had cause to fear him most in life will respect his memory. The family—mother and two sons, two married daughters, and six bright, pretty and promising young daughters—have the profound sympathy of the entire community and of the many friends in the county who knew Mr. Bostain so well. Peace to his ashes.—Stanley Enterprise.

Mrs. G. W. Morris has been quite sick for several days.

Call D. M. McDonald and have your eyes examined, also watches and clocks repaired.

The gubernatorial vote now stands Craig 236, kitchin 174, Horne 73.

Mr. W. B. Hicks and Miss C. Hanna of Milledgeville were married a few days ago.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hursey was buried here last Friday afternoon.

We are glad to welcome Mr. Scott and family from Fayetteville to our town.

We were pleased to have Rev. K. C. Horner of Wilksboro with us a short while last week on his way from Elise where he had been called to preach two special sermons on prohibition.

We were glad to see so many people from Troy over for the funeral Sunday.

MORATOCK.

(Deferred from last week.)

Several of our people attended the Baptizing and Preaching at Liberty Hill last Sunday.

Mrs. Carolina Tucker is visiting her sister Mrs. A. R. Morris of Jackson Springs.

The job in last week paper from Uwharrie concerning Moratock was carefully read. I certainly am grateful unto you Uwharrie chaps for thinking I'm an old "maid", if it be true I understand that a girl has to reach the age of 87 so I guess I've slept 20 long summers. That's all right boys it doesn't make me feel one bit older by calling me that. But by-the-way it's "Leap year" you know and all of the old maids are going to make a strike for berries on higher bushes you would certainly be left old bachelors for I'm sure we old maids are not coming that way. About the Moratock boys I suppose you will hear from them later. Please write again for I would, and all the rest of the readers of The Montgomerian will be glad to receive the county news.

There were in attendance at the wedding the following:

Mr. A. S. White, Miss Blanche Barnes, Mr. Clifford Guley, Miss Neely Ellis, Mr. John T. Taltom, Miss Iona Guley, Prof. J. L. Williams, Miss Mattie Pulliam, all of Clayton; Mr. Malcolm McKinne, Princeton, and Miss Cora Pulliam, of Clayton.—News and Observer, 21st.

WEDDING IN RALEIGH.

Mr. Robert T. Poole, of Troy, and Miss Bessie Pulliam, of Leesburg.

There was celebrated at half past nine o'clock yesterday morning in the parlors of the Yarrowborough House the wedding of Mr. Robert Poole, of Troy, and Miss Bessie Greene Pulliam, of Leesburg.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. N. Ivey, editor of the Raleigh Christian Advocate. Mr. Poole is a prominent attorney of Troy and has a number of friends. His bride is a charming and attractive young woman, who has been teaching at Clayton, and is the daughter of A. R. W. J. Pulliam, of Leesburg. It was decided that as Miss Pulliam had to come to Raleigh from Clayton that the wedding would take place here.

There were in attendance at the wedding the following:

Mr. A. S. White, Miss Blanche Barnes, Mr. Clifford Guley, Miss Neely Ellis, Mr. John T. Taltom, Miss Iona Guley, Prof. J. L. Williams, Miss Mattie Pulliam, all of Clayton; Mr. Malcolm McKinne, Princeton, and Miss Cora Pulliam, of Clayton.—News and Observer, 21st.

Married.

There was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Allen, on May 20, at 2.30 o'clock, a quiet and beautiful wedding, in which their daughter Verne was united in marriage to Mr. J. C. McIntosh.

To the strains of Mendelssohn wedding march, the bride, gowned in a traveling suit of gray, entered the parlor on the arm of the groom, preceded by Misses Lily Coggin, Pearl Allen, Janie McIntosh and Ethel Allen.

In a few short, impressive sentences they were made one by Rev. J. E. M. Davenport and left immediately for Washington and other points.

HE STOPPED HIS PAPER

Because Something That Was in it Didn't Please Him.

Some time ago a cranky sort of an old man came into this office and stopped his paper because something in it did not just suit his fancy. We have met him several times since on the street and it is interesting to see the surprised look on the old fellow's face that we are still in existence regardless of the fact that he stopped his paper. Some day—and that will not be long either—that old gentleman will turn up his toes. Neighbors and friends will follow his lifeless clay to the silent city and lay it among the flowers. An obituary will be published in these columns telling what a good neighbor and beloved citizen he was, which the recording angel will overlook for charity's sake, and in a short time he will be forgotten. As he lies out there in the cold, cold ground wrapped in the silent shroud of death, he will never know the last kind word spoken of him by the editor of the paper which in life he so spitefully "stopped". Did you ever pause, reader, just for a moment and think that the editor of your paper, whoever he may be, will write your obituary some day? If the writing of the obituaries of that class who never have a kind word to say, nor the price of a subscription for their home paper, was all, many editors would feel that the burdens of life were light.—Snow Hill Lacleto-Standard.

Thomasville's Gain.

We regret exceedingly to lose as a citizen of Asheboro Mr. O. R. Cox, one of the county's leading and most prominent citizens. He has been identified with the industrial, moral and educational development of the county. He has moved to Thomasville where he has bought considerable property. He goes to one of the best towns in N. C. and among as good people as every lived. While his conditions and surroundings may be more congenial for the lines of development along which he is devoting his time and energies yet we regret to lose a citizen whose lifetime has been spent so profitably and pleasantly with us.—Asheboro Courier.

Star N. C., May 26, 1908. Editor Montgomerian:

I want to congratulate you on the firm and decided stand you have taken in the cause of prohibition. The influence of your valuable paper has proved a great factor for good in the present fight for our homes and loved ones. I also admire your honesty and faithfulness to your convictions by refusing the offer of Mr. Boyden, who is one of the leaders in the anti-prohibition movement in North Carolina.

The people who stand for truth, honesty, and a better condition of morals love the man who is ready and willing to stand firm in his convictions and ever his enemies secretly admire his courage. The paper that takes the right side in every good cause and cannot be bribed by gold and flattering promises, ought to, and will succeed. Truly yours, John R. Jordan.

A Fish Story.

Once some men were fishing. A big fish came up to the boat and one of the men threw a stool at it. The fish swallowed the stool, went away and presently came back. This time they threw a bunch of bananas at it. He swallowed that, and after awhile came back. One man tried to catch it, but he pulled the man overboard, swallowed him, swam off and finally came back. The other men finally caught the fish out him open and found the man sitting on the stool selling bananas at ten cents a dozen.—Ex.

The Biggest Man Ever.

"I'll bet none of you folks know that the biggest man that ever lived was born and raised in North Carolina," said a Tar Heel at the Hoffman House the other night. "His existence and dimensions are vouched for in the American Encyclopedia," says the New York Press. "His name was Miles Darden. He was seven feet, six-inches high and in 1845 weighed 871 pounds; He was born in North Carolina in 1789 and died in Tennessee, January 23rd, 1859. Until 1853 he was able to go about his work in active manner, but his weight increased so fast that year when he wanted to move about he had to be hauled in a two-horse wagon. In 1839 it was chronicled that his coat was buttoned around three men each weighing more than 200 pounds, who walked together down the streets of Lexington, N. C. At his death he is said to have weighed not less than 1,000 pounds. His coffin was 8 feet long, 35 inches deep, 32 inches across the breast, 18 across the head, and 14 across the feet. The measurements were taken at the time are matters of historical record."—Washington Herald.

King Cotton.

The South is producing an average of about twelve million bales of cotton a year. The time is rapidly coming when this must be increased to twenty million bales or more to meet the world's requirements. The gain in consumption will require an average of half a million bales a year. At this gain it would require but ten years to make it necessary for the South to raise seventeen million or eighteen million bales annually. There is no reason why the world will not eventually need forty million or fifty million bales or more of Southern-grown cotton; and with good prices and an increase in the labor supply, even this would not be the limit of the South's ability.

The practical monopoly of cotton production is a potential power for the South as great as would be an equally strong domination of the world's iron-ore supply.

Sooner or later, when this section fully comprehends this great power, it will make the world pay tribute to its coffers, just as would England or any other country which owned the world's iron-ores. By reason of this condition cotton-growers ought to be the most prosperous farmers in the world, and in time they doubtless will be.—R. H. Edmonds, in The Youths' Companion.
