The Republican county convention meets Saturday, Aug. 31st. The deliberations of the convention will be interesting indeed to those familiar with po litical matters in general.

In Greensboro some days ago, at a meeting of the Republican State Executive committe that called the State convention to meet in Charlotte early in Sep tember, a resolution was passed by the committee to the effect that no delegate shall have aseat in the State convention or participate in its proceedings who does not pledge his support to the regular old line Republican party organization, platform and

Indianapolis .-- Just about the time that thousands of friends of Governor Thomas Riley Marshall were anxiously wanting to shake his hand in congratulation on his acceptance as can-didate for vice president on the Damoeratic ticket, a smiling woman stepped before him, and if one could have heard what she whispered in his car it would have been something like "Now, hurry in, Tom, and change your elothes."

Mrs. Marshall believes in a home first, and the "home air" prevails. "If Governor Marshall ever occupied would have it a real home. People would feel comfortable even in the midst of the gold and glitter." But it is not only as a wife and the mistress of a home that Mrs. Marshall shows her ability. She is a politician and a clever one. She also has a remarkable memory. Governor Marshall has earned the eputation of being in a class of story tellers all by himself. He can rememher stories, but he forgets names. A name is something to be cast aside with Governor Marshall, and this is one of the regrets of his life, if he has any regrets. The governor is not a worrying man. He is somewhat a fatalist, but if he could he would like to remember names; but, not having that ability, he does not worry, for Mrs. Marshall is the name rememberer of the family. She has a peculiar ability along this line. Not only does she remember the last name, but any combination of names comes as second nature to her, and she carries this ability on down to the children and cousins of any one seeking the governor.

While the governor is shaking hands and trying to remember whether his saller is Jones or Smith, Mrs. Marshall is busy supplying the information and asking about all the relatives. IdeaL Partners.

Governor Marshall has no brothers or sisters, and his parents being dead leaves him somewhat barren of relatives.

Governor Marshall's friends are enthusiastic over his home life. When he has started on talking of his wife a new light in the Hoosier executive cames to the surface.

They come near being ideal married partners. "I was talking to Tom one day." explained one of his most intimate friends. "We were leaning back, and Tom had been telling some of his good stories to illustrate various topics of our conversation. We were waiting for Mrs. Marshall to come back from a shopping tour, and I happened to remark that I liked Mrs. Marshall bet ter every time I met her. " 'Well, now that's the way she strikes me, Jim,' he said, 'We have been married some sixteen years, and as time goes that is a long or short period, just as you think. To me it is but a fleeting day. Then I think back over my married life and find I have grown to know Mrs. Marshall better every day. A man must not only love but he must also respect his partner in this life-respect her in all things She must have wonderful qualities to make the love and respect grow deeper and better each day That's been my history.

Ses Girt, N. J .--- Weednow Wilson a the "Little White House" at Sea Girt is daily called upon to demonstrate his ability as a ready speaker.

There is not a day passes but what he meets various delegations who call to assure him of their support.

In speaking of political machines to the Brooklyn Democratic Club Governor Wilson said: "Machines are bad, but an organisation may be very essential. For instance, I have been surrounded by an organization here in New Jersey while doing my best work. A machine uses its political opportunities for the selfish ends of its members. No members of our organization would ever think of doing that. Publie opinion in New Jersey has drawn the distinction. It has killed the machines, and it is going to keep the organization going. "It seems to me that we are standing in the presence of something higher than allegiance to the Democratic party. The country has been disappointed in the Republican party, and it is turning to the Democratic party. That party is willing to show the way toward those things which must be realized.

"Some gentlemen seem to find it easy to make personalities out of politics, but it seems to me that whenever that is done politics is debased.

"Men who are in search of reform are now resorting to the Democratic party, because, for my own part, I do not know where else they will turn to expect the results. There is no discounting the strength and serviceability of a united party, and the splendid part is that the Democratic party is united.

"Speaking seriously, Bothing affords me more genuine pleasure than to receive such greetings from men in Jersey who have at least tested my qualities. Because you have known me at close range and if you will be kind enough to vouch for me perhaps the rest of the country will be credulous of your report.

"Now, these people are not bent on destroying anything, but they are bent on setting everything in order; they are bent upon justice; they are bent upon seeing to it that the people in general are partners of the government, as I was trying to show the other day. And the Democratic party is now placed under a peculiar responsibility. It has to prove that it is the worthy instrument of that seal on the part of the people of the United States. If it does not prove it now it will never be given another chance to prove it. No party that proves un-Candor. faithful to that ideal will ever again be trusted by the people of America. And therefore we are standing at a turning point in our politics. We must make good or go out of business: In the vernacular, it is a case of 'put up or shut up,' because words are going to be discounted. Meeting Mrs. Marshall.

After the death of his parents Gerernor Marshall dived deeper into his law practice, and one day an urgent case took him to Angola, Ind. His duties called him to the county clerk's office, and there he met Miss Lois Kimsey, daughter of the county clerk, who was assisting her father in the office. From that day Governor Marshell had more business around the country clerk's office in Angola than any lawyer in half a dosen nearby counties. Governor Marshall was forty-two years of age when he was married. Mrs. Marshall being nearly twenty years his junior. The Marshalls had been marries only a few weeks when the future vice president was called to an adjoining county on a case that would consume some five or six weeks of his time. "Now, I did not want to be starting off like that," Governor Marshall explained to a friend one day, "so I just told Mrs. Marshall that I thought she should go along. And she did." Since then Governor Marshell has never made a trip without Mrs. Marshall going along. They have traveled all over the country together; they go to banquets and political meetings together until the friends of the Indiana executive refer to him and his wife as

"Tom Marshall is not overstrong," explained one of his friends. "While not a delicate man, his constitution is not of the most vigorous type.
