Then came the organization of a this was followed by a master stroke by the enterprising Banner Cigar Co. While sitting in our sanctum early Monday morning, debating whether or not the surplus of the company would stand a draw of 21 cents for a cigar, we unexpectedly received the beautifully colored lithograph portraits of Grover Cleveland and Affen G. Thurman and a package of Cleveland and Thurman cigars, manufactured by the Banner Cigar Co. We immediately tested the cigar and pronounce it a good one. Mr. Marshall deserves credit for his thrift in placing before the public a cigar which will be so universally demanded. In tour days after the nominations he had the cigar manufactured, advertised and on
