The organ of the Republican administration, in a peck of trouble, and all because the Union veterans and the Confederate veterans are getting on good terms with each other. In its last Monday's edition under the heading "Draw the Line" it contains a column editorial inspired by the fact that an officer of a G. A. R. post had recently been seen marching in a Confederate parade.

Well now, that was a pity, wasn't it? After reading the editorial in the Press the Grand Army man will be sorry that he marched so naturally in the procession and the next time he takes a day off with the boys in gray he will probably stand on his head, or hop like a toad or skip like the festive grass-hopper. He will certainly not be guilty of acting "naturally" again and thus outraging the feelings of an editor of the Press, who thinks this thing of harmony has been carried a little too far for Republican purposes.

We fear the boys in blue and the boys in gray will not pay much attention to the scolding which the old graying who runs the Press has been giving them, but then "boys will be boys" they say.

It was a beautiful idea that the Davis monument should not be reared by some rich man or by a few rich men, but that the people of the entire South rich and poor alike should contribute to the cause of rearing a lasting monument to the memory of Jefferson Davis, the brave soldier, the wise statesman, who presided over the Confederacy in the days of its triumph and who drank with his stricken people the bitter dregs of degradation and defeat.

It will be a grand monument to a grand man, and every Confederate veteran and every son of a Confederate veteran should contribute in some measure to the fund which is to be raised on the 18th. Let the people of Burke turn out in force next Thursday and make a contribution to the monument fund that will be honor to the brave soldiers this county sent to the front in the sixties.

The Chilean insurgents have surrendered the steamer Itata and the five thousand stand of arms she obtained in San Diego, California, to the United States government, and she will be manned by an American crew and brought back to San Diego for trial for violating the neutrality laws and running away with a U. S. Marshal on board. It has been an expensive chase for the Government, and the Itata beat the Charleston to the Chilean ports after all, and was then voluntarily surrendered.

The interview published elsewhere with editor Cade, of the Progressive Farmer, by a reporter of the Richmond Dispatch will be found interesting reading. We heartily agree with him in the assertion that "as long as the Democrats stand by their present platform in this state, there is no need for independent action here."

JUSTICE CLARK'S suggestion that the government should take charge of the telephone and put up a line to every post-office is a
