NORTH CAROLINA.

The Week's News in the "Old North State."

Caldwell county is now nearly entirely under the stock law.

A Hebrew fair will be held at Goldsboro December 14th and continue for several days.

A new hotel will soon be begun at Asheville. It will be named "Buncombe Hall," and will cost $150,000.

Pitt county offers $600 reward for the apprehension of the incendiaries who have done such great damage there. This makes twelve hundred dollars, the Governor's reward being $600 also.

There was a strange and fatal railroad accident near Murphy, on the Ducktown road Tuesday night. A work train was running too fast on a curve, when a car broke loose, jumped the track and plunged through a stable standing near it. It demolished the stable and killed two horses and a dog in the stable and three colored men who were on the car.—Newton Enterprise, 13th.

The meeting of the Western North Carolina Conference at Asheville brought out the following facts: There are about 278 ministers on the conference roll, to whom are paid annually in the way of salaries about $80,000. The church membership of the conference is about 60,000. There were 38,000 Sunday school scholars in the bounds of the conference last year. The sum of $18,000 is contributed annually by the conference to the cause of home and foreign missions.

A Raleigh correspondent of the Wilmington Messenger says: There is certainly a great deal of talk among the Alliance men regarding the transfer of the purchasing department from the Raleigh Business Agency to the National Union Company of New York. Secretary Barnes says that the Alliance ordered the transfer and that no outsider has any business to meddle with it. But it is the Alliance people who are doing the talking. Secretary Barnes says that if it is known that a merchant or dealer in this State offers the Alliance special prices the Alliance special prices the merchant or dealer in this State offers the Alliance special prices the merchant or dealer in this State offers the Alliance special prices.

The Motz trial has ended in the acquittal of the three prisoners. This has cost Lincoln county about twenty-five hundred dollars, which the tax-payers have to pay. The jury for twelve days and cost of feeding same amounts to over $300 and the sheriff gets his pay for summing a special venire of 150 men. The defendant's father, Wade Hampton Motz, paid Judge Montgomery, Col. Ham C. Jones, Platt D. Walker, and McBrayer & Ryburn $250 each; also paid Gidney & Webb, D. W. Robinson and Beverly Cobb each $200, making a sum total of $1,600. This he paid cash on the night of acquittal. Motz and Michael and Will Motz, prosecutor, spent hundreds of dollars on their witnesses, attending court and their expenses. It is thought, exceed $1,500 more. So the cost and lawyers' fees will approximate at least $3,600.—Shelby Aurora.

A tradition of the existence of a marvellously rich silver mine worked by Indians and located somewhere on Kings or Crowders Mountains, or some of the smaller mountains around here, has been handed down from generation to generation for more than a hundred and fifty years. The secret of the location of the mine was religiously preserved by the Indians and the secret died with them. Many fortune hunters have spent days and weeks hunting for the mine, but all effort to locate it failed utterly until the last month, a prospecting prospector accidentally discovered it, and he is now as jealously guarding the secret, as the Indians did years ago. The entrance to the mine is in an obscure spot and is a round hole barely large enough for a man to crawl through. The explorer, after crawling a few feet through the tunnel finds that it suddenly expands into a large cave, the walls and roof of which are studded with nuggets of pure silver, while lying around the floor are the mouldering remains of the primitive tools used by the aborigines in digging the ore. We are told that when the discoverer succeeds in getting possession of the property on which the mine is located, he will let the secret of its location be known. Appropos of this tradition, we learn that many years ago, a prospector stumbled on a vein of almost pure silver in an adjoining county. In a negotiation for the land between the discoverer of the mine and the owner, a bitter quarrel arose. The prospector carefully obliterated all traces of his work and swore that the owner should never know where the mine was, a vow which he kept ever until death. The owner of the land searched diligently but never found the mine. Two weeks ago a well known miner in this vicinity and a miner who was with him, were prospecting on this land and found the mine. Ore taken from near the surface has been assayed at the Charlotte Mint and found to be 3 parts silver and 7 gold. The secret of the location of this discovery is also carefully guarded, until control of the property has been secured, and as in both cases the negotiations are progressing satisfactorily, we may expect some exciting revelations soon.—Kings Mountain News.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

THE CRISIS OF THE WEEK FOR THE PAST WEEK.

WINSTON, N. C., Nov. 17th, William Roberts, a merchant at Tyro shops, Davidson county, committed suicide last night. Failing health is conjectured as the cause. He was unmarried and forty years of age.

A CRUEL AND BRUTAL ACT.
WINSTON, N. C., 14.—A peculiar case comes from Blenox Creek township: Two brothers, R. N. and E. T. Adams, became angry with one another, and today, during the absence from home of the first named, some one visited his stable, and killed a fine colt by cutting the throat. Upon suspicion a warrant was taken out for the latter, charging him with committing the crime. At a preliminary hearing the evidence was such that the brother was bound over to the next term of Forsyth Superior Court. Much indignation is aroused at the brutal crime, committed for nothing more than spite.

TAKEN IN BY GREEN GOODS MEN.
NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Nathan Bayett, a well-to-do farmer and president of the local bank of Baylett, N. C., was swindled out of $1,000 by green goods men Wednesday.

A SON OF CONGRESSMAN BRICKENRIDGE IS A FIGHTER.
LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 14.—A tremendous sensation was caused in society circles about one o'clock this morning by a pitched battle between Robert Brickenridge, son of the silver-tongued Congressman, Col. W. C. P. Brickenridge, and Dault Arnold, a well known society young man of Frankfort. They both attended the Governor's ball and had a misunderstanding over one hand of a bluegrass beauty for a certain dance. On invitation of Brickenridge they stepped out of the ball-room to settle the affair. Brickenridge was pretty badly used up and it is rumored on the street that he has sent word to Arnold to arm himself as he intends killing on sight. The prominence of the parties throughout the State makes this the sensation of the hour.

SAN JUAN AT CHARLOTTE.

Some of the Snobs at the Morning Post Write.

Tell a judge and jury that the flesh made you kill a man and the judge will say: "Yes, and we'll hang the flesh the first Friday in December."

A dog always follows his master. If you go to the streets in stead of coming here to night you are the devil's dog.

Many a man don't know the difference between being white washed and washed white. You've got so many white washed church members and they scold off and have to have a new coat every big meeting.

I've got some respect for the fellow that the devil has to set a new trap for every time, in a new place, and with a new bait in order to catch him, but some of your fellows are caught every day in the same old trap, in the same place with the same old bait.

Some of you snobs say, "I can't hardly stand him, I liked to have left last night; I never found the like in my life, he just went it." Well, sister, stay away, there are a heap of folks standing who would like to get your snob, you won't be missed.

The trashy people and the biggers will give eight or ten thousand dollars to the cause tomorrow; now how much ought we nice people to give to the good meeting, that's the question. Good and well you'll be the one to give. Well you'll give 75 cents to the cause and a noble love, you live rascal.

They tell me that the collection yesterday morning was about some dollars—a third of a cent a head. If you get any lower than that you'll have to put in a tooth pick, or spit in the hat.

Some of you here follows with a lip full of good, won't show your stores during these services. While we are here trying to save your children you're chasing nickles. I can take a handful of nickles and sell half the church members to hell.

If Charlotte is cursed with anything it is some bold wicked men. A small working man, good people, his wife is clearing up a large debt on the Lord's side just for lack of organization of that society. Some of you will absolutely sell out your town if you think whiskey will help pay the taxes. They tell me you've put off the matter of whether you will sell or burn another month.

These are the men in sight, you of the help of God never shall be, and I wouldn't move here with my boy, but if you would do me the whole town and give me all the money in your banks, if these snobs had to stay here, I am convinced man could straighten that town out. I put snobbed above money; share ter above chatties; and God above gold.

Hear people talking about preachers preaching for money. I'm like all the rest, I only take what's given me—we are like Tom Shepherd about whiskey, got a mighty poor mouth for refusing.

The devil gets in his best looks on a poor man when he says, "I'm true, you ought to say it, but you'll do more harm than good if you do say it." The devil never interferes with a man preaching the Gospel, but when you get to serving to each man his portion, and rebuking it in and setting him on fire, it breaks into his arrangements.

When I was a pastor, if I thought that man wasn't trusting his soul for heaven, I had my own right on him. I had my own slavery, respectful looking Christian—who always took the amen corner. I prevailed repentance to him six months and could not move him; finally I snob, pointing my finger at him, "Yes, you're a saint going to heaven, and you snob a poor man when he says, 'I'm true, you ought to say it, but you'll do more harm than good if you do say it.'"

Some of you are going away and say, "Don't be give it to the preachers, though." Now, End, you just sit still, it's your turn next. I said I never saw a hand drest thoroughly consecrated lay members.

THE FIFTY THIRD CONGRESS.

which convenes in December next, will consist of 232 members of whom 127 are Democrats, 38 Republicans and 67 Farmers' Alliance.

In the Fifty-third Congress, to be elected next year, there will be 336 members, and the ratio of representation, upon the basis of Porter's census, according to the new reapportionment no State loses a Representative. The States which gain Congressional seats are: Alabama, 2; California, 2; Colorado, 2; Georgia, 2; Illinois, 2; Kansas, 2; Massachusetts, 2; Michigan, 2; Minnesota, 2; Missouri, 2; Nevada, 2; New Jersey, 2; Oregon, 2; Pennsylvania, 2; Texas, 2; Washington, 2; Wisconsin, 2.

Presidential Electors are chosen on the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November in the next year. That only settles the question and the President may be said to be chosen on that day. But legally the President is not elected until the Electors of each State have met and cast their ballots. The day set by Congress for this meeting of the Electors is the first Wednesday in December following, and that is the day on which traditionally, the President of the United States is elected.

The votes of the electors are counted in the presence of the two Houses of Congress on the second Wednesday in February. There have been eight Chief Justices of the United States Supreme Court, whose names, in the order of their succession, are as follows: John Jay, John Rutledge, Oliver Ellsworth, John Marshall, Roger B. Taney, Salmon P. Chase, William B. Waite and Melville W. Fuller.

The members of President Harrison's Cabinet at present are, as follows: John A. Logan, Secretary of State; Charles Foster of Ohio, Secretary of the Treasury; Redford Proctor of Vermont, Secretary of War; John W. Noble of Missouri, Secretary of the Interior; Benjamin F. Tracy of New York, Secretary of the Navy; Joseph M. Rankin of Wisconsin, Secretary of Agriculture; John W. Foster of Pennsylvania, Postmaster General; and William Henry Harrison Miller of Indiana, Attorney General. This is the Cabinet as appointed by Mr. Harrison shortly after his inauguration, except that Foster of Ohio succeeded Oliver Woodson, who was Harrison's first Secretary of the Treasury, and whose sudden death at a banquet in New York last winter is well remembered. Redfield Proctor, the present Secretary of War, has been appointed Senator from Vermont to succeed Edmunds, resigned but he still holds the office, and a new Secretary of the Interior has probably not yet chosen until Congress meets.

The President's house in Washington City is built of sandstone, and is painted white. This latter circumstance is partly generally given as the origin of its name of White House. But there may be other reasons. Among the many possessions of the Widow Cass, the late famous in history as Martha Washington, the wife of our first President, there was an estate on York River, Virginia, known as the White House, from the fact that the mansion on it was white. It is not altogether unlikely that the Executive Mansion was named after this estate.

The White House estate on York River became the property of General Robert Lee's wife, who was a great-granddaughter of Martha Washington by her first husband, and was among the first of the great Virginia houses to fall into the hands of the Federalists after the beginning of the war between the States. Of course President Washington never occupied the White House in Washington City. He was inaugurated in New York City in 1789, and Philadelphia was the National capital during the greater part of his two terms. Thomas Jefferson was the first President inaugurated (March 4, 1802) in Washington City.

A statement prepared at the Treasury Department shows that there was a net increase in circulation during the month of October of $2,200,000, and a net increase of $2,200,000 in money and bullion in the Treasury during the same period.

During a single year 200,000,000 mail packages passed through the Chicago postoffice, in addition to 25,000 tons of mail matter sent from Chicago to all parts of the country. The inspector in charge has under his jurisdiction 10,000 postmen and their employees.

The vote of a Riley county, Kan., man was challenged because he had probably not been sworn seven times. He was, however, equal to the emergency; he produced the postoffice papers for each office. A voter always goes loaded in Kansas; he takes to changes.

Everybody knows the poem, "The Old Order Buckled," but who knows the story of its author? It will be news to most that Samuel Woodworth, the writer of that piece of immortal verse, is buried under a stone in San Francisco or Oakland, Cal., probably the former; but such is the case.

In different parts of the country, have long existed a number of magic stones and to possess the most remarkable properties. Tradition tells how certain men would "speak" stones, or would out when a dead body was placed upon them, or contradicted a person who swore falsely by them.

Seven line by old writers have called the number of postoffice, and it is curious to note how often the idea seems to be heard of in its use. Thus, to quote some few representative examples out of many: "Basilisk, an old English name for the stone which has long been used as we use bank notes. Basilisk Pains found the kind of money there in its time, and they still have an enormous load of circulation."

In Russian Turkistan, on the right bank of the Amou Daria, in some rocky hills near the Bulduk town of Karak, a number of large stones have been explained, which were found to lead to an underground town built apparently before the Christian era. Effigies and inscriptions have been found, and also fragments of gold and silver money, which lead to the belief that the town dates back to some two centuries before the birth of Christ. There are a number of stones and signs surrounded by iron two and three stories high. Crabs, worms, cooking pots, and other vessels have been found in great abundance. The quantity of the objects and signs and metal articles, about the fact that the people had reached an advanced stage of civilization, it is supposed the town was concealed in the earth to save the population a refuge from the incursions of set-aps and robbers.
