BURKE COUNTY HISTORY.

SKETCHES OF THE PIONEERS. Conrad Hildebrand, the Ancestor of the Hildebrands Now Living in Burke—Robert Caldwell, Sr., of Irish Descent, One of the Most Honest Men that Ever Lived.

BY COL. T. G. WALTON.

THEY ALL LIKED IT.

At this period of the history of Burke, when a neighbor visited him, a man was thought to be wanting in hospitality, unless he invited him to indulge in a "mint julep," "egg-nog," or some refreshment of which ardent spirits formed a part, and so also, when the ladies, elite of the land, called upon each other, wine and cake was invariably offered, and rarely refused, and the effect of the refreshment, was never known in any instance to diminish the natural volubility of their tongues.

CONRAD HILDEBRAND.

Conrad Hildebrand, the ancestor of the Hildebrands of Burke, was required by a committee of safety formed by the leading men of Rowan county, in 1774, to deliver to Christopher Beckman, all the powder and flints in his possession, and for the payment of the same to give a bond to the committee, which would be accepted by him.

ROBERT CALDWELL.

Robert Caldwell, Sr., was engaged in the Irish rebellion of 1798, and in consequence was banished and came to the United States the same year. One of his sons, Robert, at the time was serving an apprenticeship in some trade or business, the term not having expired, the rest of the family did not come to America until 1801.

MARY WHO MARRIED ALFRED PERKINS.

Mary who married Alfred Perkins, and Sydney, who married Elisha P. Miller. Robert Jr., at first a clerk, afterward a partner with a merchant in the city of Petersburg, Va., acquired a considerable fortune, having gained the confidence and esteem of his partner; he died a bachelor in the prime of life.

WARRIORS AT WORK.

SURVIVORS OF THE CONFEDERATE GENERALS AND WHAT THEY ARE DOING. Leaders of the Lost Cause Now Prominent Business Men. "What has become of the Confederate generals?" is a question very often asked but not easily answered.

DO YOU OWN KAOLIN PROPERTY?

Being in correspondence with the representatives of the Japanese government, who represented that empire at the Columbian Exposition last year, and who have become interested in the development of the vast deposits of kaolin in North Carolina, I beg to request that samples of the various deposits in this State, which are of such extent as to insure an ample supply for an unlimited term of years, be sent to me, express paid.
