THE PRESIDENT COMES CLEAR

In line with some of the more serious thoughts expressed the other day by Cpl. W. C. Martin, Jr., whose letter was quoted in the Courier-Times, President Roosevelt in his message to Congress last week came out clearly in the statement that war effort must be more closely knit together on the home front. Nobody particularly likes the idea of a national service act for all people and many may regret that citizens of 4-F classification may have to be still further pushed around, just as numbers of citizens connected with the operation of home front hospitals cannot help but be concerned over the fact that still more nurses are to be called up for military duty, possibly under Selective Service.

It cannot be expected that all citizens will agree with the at last hard-fisted attitude the President has taken, but there must quite literally be millions who are saying amen, and who are perfectly willing to do more in order to get the war business over with. Locally, there are some folks who are confused and in doubt about total war effort: what such people need is a mental shot in the arm—such as can be furnished by any number of Person or Roxboro men now on furlough and leave from overseas duty—if and when they will talk.

For such men the war is deadly serious, even grim, and they don't like to talk much. There are some experiences which cannot be put into words.

THAT RED CROSS QUOTA

Finance chairman for the March drive for Red Cross funds here is O. B. McBroom, who on Monday announced the coming quota for the Person-Roxboro area. It was a modest figure, $7,000. Yesterday Mr. McBroom, who is a very conscientious man, had a conference with Mrs. Mary Pegram, of Greensboro, field representative for the Red Cross, who told him that the national quota is to be increased by about twenty million dollars and that consequently Roxboro's portion of that increase will run the local quota up around a thousand dollars, making the total to be raised in March come close to $9,000.

That revised quota here is not too large, in comparison with Red Cross funds raised here in other years, and although March is a good way off, this is as suitable a time as any to begin thinking about Red Cross obligations. Citizens owe much to the Red Cross that can never be paid in dollars and cents, but there is a quite definite place that money does take, just as it is an effective agent in the soon to come Polio drive and in the as yet incomplete Christmas Seal sales.

WHAT THE PREACHER SAID

Cherokee Council Scout leaders who on Tuesday night here heard Dr. Richard Ownbey, Reidsville minister, declare, that "What we do for boys we have to do now", will never forget the urgency which propelled his words, lifting them out of and above the commonplace. On the other hand, there is that picture of the Rev. Dr. Ownbey, delicately unwrapping a package and coming down to the final small paper containing a golf ball, gift of the council to him. The smile on his face as he grasped the ball and gave it a smacking kiss was indicative of his appreciation, but it evidenced also his capacity for the enjoyment of living, an enjoyment without which the leadership of boys (or girls) is difficult, if not impossible.

Dr. Ownbey in his talk here avoided the profound atmosphere, but he also shied away from unseemly levity, leaving instead some genuine thoughts on the good that boys do adults—and the other way around.

WHAT THE TEACHERS WANT

Some indication of needs in the profession which teachers themselves consider important is contained in a resume of topics to be discussed next Monday night at Bushy Fork at the January session of the Person Chapter of the N. C. E. A., under the heading, "Legislative Matters".

Person teachers are going to hear about the following: adequate salaries, compulsory attendance and needs for supervision of instructors, health and recreation, needs for and use of supplies, salaries for janitors and bus drivers, ten months of pay for principals, and guidance and vocational education. In addition, the teachers are expecting an as yet unnamed member of the Education committee in the General Assembly to be with them to discuss coming legislative acts in the field of education.

We mention this coming program by Person teachers because we think that the topics to be discussed pretty well cover weak spots in the present educational system. Teachers, it seems, are forever asking for more money, but they do need it, and although this is so, their minds are not exclusively upon cash. When teachers themselves become concerned about self-improvement and the improvement of their pupils, also, there is room for much hope that a zeal for higher goals is finding expression.

THE SILVER BEAVER

Presentation of the Silver Beaver, Scout leadership award, to two such leaders here Tuesday night was unusual. The distinction is usually reserved for one man each year. Roxboro interest attaches particularly to the giving of the award to C. A. Harris, long known hereabouts for a continuous and sustained interest in Scouting, in Masonic activities and in church and school affairs, although we can also appreciate the similar Silver Beaver recognition accorded to Burlington's William Colman.

Other Roxboro wearers of the Silver Beaver are, Dr. Clyde Swartz, Dr. Robert E. Long and George W. Kane. Mr. Harris joins the ranks of a distinguished company. Fact that the award came in absentia, while he had to be in New York on a business trip, will probably be a source of chagrin to him when he returns.

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEES

Person's Senator Flem D. Long and her Representative R. P. Burns, as by official announcement, have been placed on twelve and eight committees, respectively. Sen. Long has the chairmanship of the Banking Currency committee and Rep. Burns heads the Manufacturers and Labor group.

Folks back home, the constituency, do not as a rule pay much attention to committee posts landed by their State senators and representatives, but those who know the inner-workings of a General Assembly do not have to be told that much of the major work of an Assembly is accomplished in committee sessions. Such work is the solid timber of democratic processes, as opposed to the spoken words of oratory that get so much more into print and the public consciousness.

The committee posts that Person men are holding in the 1945 Assembly offer, too, an adequate justification for returning men of experience to legislative positions. Both Mr. Burns and Mr. Long are in the legislative sense veterans of a sort and are now beginning to reap the rewards of seniority, a seniority which will be of increasing benefit both here at home and throughout the State.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

THE THORNY ROSE

Baltimore Evening Sun
The Texas rose grower has named a new variety after Secretary Harold Ickes. It is described as an especially thorny rose.—News item.
Harold Ickes is a rose.

If the light-verse writers want to make something of it, that ought to be easy. Rose, blows, nose, goes, pose, toes, foes—plenty of rhymes available. Or the wags might work in Gertrude Stein. She wrote: "A rose is a rose is a rose." Period. (Mr. MacLeish said that a poem should not mean but be.) Mr. Ickes wrote "The Autobiography of a Curmudgeon." Webster defines curmudgeon as "a churl." And Ickes is a curmudgeon is a churl is a rose. . .

We resist the temptation to pursue the matter further, but we feel impelled to call it to the attention of wags, poetasters and race-track louts in their spare time off the assembly floor.

FOR THE SOUTH AS A WHOLE

Herford County Herald
It is not for the Herald to say what it was that first interested Irving D. Margulies in Ahoskie as the site for his projected pickle plant, but the possible chain of circumstances that may have led to Ahoskie is significant of the growing trend toward an industrial South.

The Herald's sole purpose in mentioning this subject is because your newspaper firmly believes that credit, as well as blame in some cases, rests upon some person or group of persons.

It is a fact that Mr. Margulies—without acquaintances in Ahoskie—first called on W. H. Harrell of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. Loath to claim any publicity in connection with the project, Mr. Harrell nevertheless admits that he spent several hours with Mr. Margulies looking over prospective sites.

Further following the chain of events that might or might not have had anything to do with this particular incident, a current advertisement of the ACL, invites those interested in industrial plant sites or distribution facilities in the Southeast to make use of the railroad's research staff in respect to pointing out the territory's possibilities.

So, here is the pattern to follow if we are to take the greatest advantage of "The South's Economic Opportunity" referred to by Donald M. Nelson, former chairman of the War Production Board.

Private enterprise, railroads, boat lines, civic organization,—yes, even farmers, must become individual chambers of commerce for the South as a whole.

Mrs. Catt's Birthday

Today, January 9, is the birthday of the Hon. Carrie Chapman Catt, the ablest champion of woman's rights and the recognized first woman constructive statesman in the world and for lasting peace. She received and wore the mantle of those illustrious pioneers for woman suffrage—Julia Ward Howe, Frances Willard, Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton. She and Anne Howard Shaw were not only leaders for suffrage but served as the Women Associates of the Council of National Defense in the World War.

In the chapter "The Woman Suffragists Bombard Wilson," Josephus Daniels in his "The Wilson Era" gives the following account of how Mrs. Catt made him a convert to woman suffrage:

"I had given little thought to woman suffrage prior to 1912. In North Carolina little or nothing was heard of the agitation that the great women leaders were making in other states. In the closing days of the Cleveland administration I chanced to be in Washington when Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt was billed to speak on woman suffrage.

Let's go and hear what the pussy cat will say," I remarked to a friend. "I don't like her name," he said, "and moreover, I do not care to hear a woman who wants to ape men."

"The hall was small and crowded, and I had to stand in the rear. I went out of curiosity, perhaps to scoff, and was converted and always remained a real convert. Mrs. Catt spoke so logically, so clearly, and was so free from emotion that I could neither answer nor resist her arguments. Some time afterward I witnessed a woman suffrage parade on Fifth Avenue. In a spirit of badinage I wrote my wife: "I am now on the side of woman suffrage. Reason: Every woman in the parade wore a hat that cost only 39 cents. If that sort of hat will come to be universally worn when women get the ballot, husbands will save a lot of money." Upon my return home my wife asked me how the women in the parade looked. I said: "Fine." She banteringly replied: "I'll bet they looked like 39 cents." It was a long time before she was a convert, and she never did declare for it until she heard Mrs. Anna Howard Shaw, whose eloquence and personal charm and reasoning power captivated her. "I got religion when she spoke," she often said afterwards. We were both converted to the suffrage for women by the eloquence of great women—she by Anna Howard Shaw and I by Carrie Chapman Catt.

"In 1920 my wife was appointed by President Wilson as the delegate to represent the United States at

Aid To Beauty

If the people of Ahoskie should make a collective resolution for the new year, we would suggest that this resolution be to make and keep the streets, sidewalks, alleys, and backyards clean and tidy. There is not much that can be done in these days in the way of buying new things to make improvements in property, public or private. But there could be made a great improvement in the looks of things about Ahoskie, notwithstanding wartime restrictions on buying new things, if what we have now were kept clean and tidy.

The job can not be done by the small force of street cleaners that the town authorities have employed for this work. It is a job that must be joined in by each householder, each property owner, each business establishment and each renter. It needs to become a matter of personal and civic pride, the cleanliness and tidiness of streets, alleys, and backyards, as these are regarded with pride by the housewife for the home.

The town and community can be kept cleaner and present a better appearance, if the people who live here will keep their own premises tidy. It can be done even if the trashman isn't able to get around every day. The place can be kept clean and tidy if the people who live here wish it so. So, we suggest again, that a good community resolution would be spruce up the appearance of Ahoskie through a collective effort at and pride in keeping the place clean and tidy.—Herford County Herald.
