Home Nursing Courses Offered By Red Cross

Farm families all the way from Ventura, California, to Rutland, Vermont, are benefitting from American Red Cross Home Nursing instruction given by professional nurses. Since Pearl Harbor, more than 250,000 rural women have completed home nursing classes. In many places the U. S. Department of Agriculture Extension Service is cooperating in promoting classes, and county health departments are furnishing nurses to teach.

Those wishing to enroll should call their Red Cross chapter. The standard course requires but 24 hours. It teaches how to care for communicable diseases, give bed baths, change the bed with the patient in it, take temperature and pulse, improve greater comfort treatments and by the doctor. It includes care of new baby and illness. A 6-lesson course on care of the sick able.

Your watch is more valuable than ever. Take care of it. Have it cleaned or repaired by Reliable Watchmakers.
