Roosevelt

Mr. Roosevelt, 63, was sitting in front of a fireplace in the little White House here atop Pine mountain when the attack struck him. Bruenn described it as a massive cerebral hemorrhage.

The President's negro valet, Arthur Prettyman, and a Filipino messboy carried him to his bedroom. He was unconscious at the end. It came without pain.

Mr. Roosevelt, in the third month of his fourth term as President, came down three weeks ago to rest. Mrs. Roosevelt planned to fly to warm springs. She left the White House at 7:15 after informing their four uniformed sons by wire of their father's death.

The death removed from world councils one of the big three—Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill—who worked together to win the war and laid joint plans for keeping the peace. Truman likewise has stressed the need for international co-operation.

Dr. Bruenn said he saw the President Thursday morning and he was in excellent spirits at 9:30 a. m.

"At one o'clock," Bruenn added, "he was sitting in a chair while sketches were being made of him by an artist. He suddenly complained of a very severe occipital headache (back of the head)."

"Within a very few minutes he lost consciousness. He was seen by me at 1:30 p. m., fifteen minutes after the episode had started. "He did not regain consciousness and he died at 3:35 p. m."

William Jordon Was Seeking To Aid Companion

Captain Of Missing Roxboro Soldier Has Praise For Him.

Miss Louise Jordan, of this City, sister of Pfc. William A. Jordan, 20, who has been listed as missing in action in Germany since January 13, has received a letter of commendation and praise from Pfc. Jordan's commanding officer, Capt. Del S. Perkins, who says that there is very little information that he can give concerning the missing Person man, a son of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Jordan and brother of William Jordan, now in the Navy in Hawaii.

Capt. Perkins, who writes that Pfc. Jordan was an excellent soldier, "who faced our enemy with utmost courage and was an inspiration to all who came in contact with him," says that if "he has given his life for his country, I can truthfully say he did not die in vain," adding, "one has to be over here only a short time to realize that we are fighting to keep things at home as they are now (and) I have thanked God many times that my family has not had to suffer the hardships that are so commonplace here."

Capt. Perkins also says that the last time Pfc. Jordan was seen by "members of my company, he was going to the aid of one of his friends who was wounded." Capt. Perkins adds that it is possible that Pfc. Jordan may be a prisoner of war and that notification may at some time be received from proper authorities. Pfc. Jordan, who went overseas at Christmas, entered the Army in June 1943, shortly after graduating from Roxboro high school.

Schools

The Principals, teachers and parent members are giving voluntarily of their time and efforts to get the fairest and best distribution of the war-short sugar supplies to make sure that those who actually do home canning get the sugar they need.

"Estimate your home canning needs carefully and apply only for as much sugar as you are sure you will need. The largest amount which can be given to any one family on their first application is 80 pounds. In view of the recent freeze, it is estimated that practically no family in Person County will need this amount. A second application may be filed with the Board later if necessary. The second application must be accompanied by a list of the quarts of fruits canned with the sugar already issued to the applicant this year."

Lively Query

will be the Orphanage negative team and Oxford high school affirmative team, will debate here.

All debates mentioned will be on Tuesday night, April 24, at 8:15. Coach for Roxboro high school teams is Mrs. A. F. Nichols of the English Department. District eliminations will take place shortly after the regular debates scheduled above. District session is to be at Meredith college, Raleigh, and it is reported that winning halves of teams as well as whole teams will be eligible to go on to the finals at Chapel Hill. This, too, where half teams are concerned, is regarded as an innovation.

Except for Roxboro high school, no other schools in the Person and Roxboro system have as yet announced that they will enter the contests.

Benefits Recited For Army Women By Patterson

Reinstatement in her old job or assistance in securing a new position is an important benefit awaiting the service woman after her release from the Army, according to Sgt. Charles Patterson, local Army recruiter. Although perhaps not as well known as the "GI bill of rights," this service is no less essential in helping her to re-establish herself in the postwar scheme of things.

All women who leave civilian jobs and enlist directly in the Women's Army Corps are authorized by the Service Extension Act of 1941 under the provisions of the Selective Service Training and Service Act of 1940 to avail themselves of this assistance through their local selective service boards.

Qualifications for a veteran's reinstatement in her former position or an equivalent position are as follows:

She must have been employed by the federal government or by a private employer. Her position must have been other than temporary. She must have left that position subsequent to May 1, 1940, and directly entered the armed forces. She must have been honorably discharged from the service. She must be qualified to perform the duties of the old job.

The benefits to the returned Wac when she gets her old job back are fourfold, Sgt. Patterson pointed out. She shall be considered as having been on leave of absence from her former position. There will be no loss of seniority. Her job shall be the former one or one similar in all respects. She shall be entitled to participate in all insurance and other benefits of her employer in effect at time she entered service. She shall not be discharged for one year without cause.

Sgt. Patterson pointed out that if any difficulty arises in obtaining her old job, provided she is qualified, the former Wac may go to a selective service board in her community and ask for assistance in reinstatement or advice and aid in securing a new job. All the facilities of the information center at the United States employment service, as well as those of local veteran counselors, are available to her.

Beulah

Stories. Mrs. L. V. Coggins, Superintendent of Young People's Work in Beulah Association, and former missionary to Porto Rico, will show Sunbeam leaders how to adapt the Junior books and other stewardship material to the teaching of very young children.

A missionary has been invited to lead a class for pastors, and give an inspirational address to the whole group in the afternoon. Pastors are asked to have a layman present from each church, to be trained for teaching a men's class in local church schools of missions, as service at another church on the same day sometimes makes it impossible for the pastor to take care of this very important class.

The program will begin at 10 A. M. Bring a copy of the textbook used in group, also note book and pencil, and lunch. To save time, each person is requested to have her name and name of her church pinned on before she arrives.

Beulah Association had its first Mission Study Institute last summer. As a result there has been a marked increase in mission study, the number of one-day Schools of Missions being trebled during the year. The Institute this year bids fair to be equally inspiring and helpful.

Farmers And War Bonds

"During 1945, American farmers should surpass their previous records in the amount of money they invest in War Bonds," says Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Kansas State College, Manhattan, Kansas. "Farm production and income promise to be exceptionally high this year." President Eisenhower points out, "Even after providing for additional debt retirement, farmers will have ample funds with which to buy bonds. Such investment now will help stabilize prices, will build the reserves needed by farmers for construction and repair when the war is over, and will provide the best possible general insurance against economic difficulty in postwar years."

"No economic group in America suffers more from wide economic fluctuations than do farmers. No group will benefit more from economic stability. The diversion of surplus wealth now into War Bonds will not only help each individual purchaser, but will help the entire farming industry by promoting stability. The greatest danger of inflation is still ahead. Hence, a rising volume of investment in War Bonds is sound business for the farmer and for all other groups."

No New Candidates

Thursday, April 19, at 8 o'clock at night at Person Court house, will be place and time for nominations for Mayor and City Commissioners of Roxboro, prior to election scheduled for next month. It is expected that all present City officials will again be candidates for nomination. No new names have so far been mentioned.

War Prisoners Aid Greatly In This State

Atlanta, Ga., April 15.—German prisoners of war accomplished 725,601 man days of work in North Carolina in the past six months that would have otherwise gone undone because of a shortage of civilian labor.

That was disclosed here today by Headquarters, Fourth Service Command in a report, as of March 1, showing what prisoners have done in the Tarheel state in a half year and in announcing the advanced schedule for PW labor which shows that before the end of summer 1,900 will be further relieving the state's manpower shortage in the emergency harvest of crops.

The report covers the activities of prisoners of war working on private or public contracts or at Army posts. On private contract work they gather crops, do general farm work, cut pulpwood, saw timber or engage in other activities in areas where there is an acute shortage of manpower. On public contract they labor for state, municipal or governmental agencies, other than the Army. At Army installations they work in shops, laundries, handle repairs or work on the grounds, accomplishing tasks that were formerly assigned labor details of American soldiers now sent to other duties, and which jobs would have to be accomplished by civilian employees—if any civilian labor could be found. The working prisoners receive 80 cents a day in canteen coupons. Private contractors, such as farmers, pay to the United States treasury the amount they would have paid civilian labor for tasks which the prisoners do.

Stressing the point that PW labor is never used to replace civilian workers the report sets out how the prisoners have relieved the labor shortage in North Carolina in three categories over the six-month period as well as the money value of their work to the government. On Army installations in the state they worked 492,148 man days which saved the government $1,367,026.01 in wages; on private contract they worked 228,988 man days and showed a "profit" to the government of $441,289.43—the difference between 80 cents a day and what was paid by the contractors to the government at the daily civilian wage rate while on public contract they worked 4,465 man days and showed a labor profit of $13,932.95.

A state-wide dairy cattle show for Negroes will be held on September 21 and a committee is now seeking a suitable place for the show.

Receive Badge
Sgt. John R. Burton Jr., of Roxboro, Negro soldier, son of Robert and Lizzie Burton, and in overseas duty in Europe, has received the Combat Infantry badge for outstanding performance of duty against the enemy, according to a message received here Saturday. His commanding officer is Col. James Notestein. Sgt. Burton has a brother, Clarence, also in service.
