Leyle Shows Fast Trading

Leyte.-Just off the airstrip here, where trucks meet the transports, some of the world's fastest trading is transacted daily, according to Sgt. O. W. Nelson, Jr., a Marine Corps combat correspondent.

The priority of war equipment has cut to a minimum the luxuries trought in for personnel stationed here. Cigarettes are rationed and cigars are worth their weight in Filipino money. There is a surplus of cash-and nothing to buy.

As most of the transient air crews and passengers are eager to obtain souvenirs, a brisk business starts as the cargo doors open and continues throughout the unloading. A carton of cigarettes can be exchanged for a Jap sun helmet, a flashlight for a Jap mess gear, or a pair of sunglasses for a complete set of Filipino notes. Sheath knives are scarce and can be traded for Filipino handmade jungle knives.

The strip is crowded and speed is important in unleading, to, clear the deck for the umbrella of planes overhead waiting to come in. This necessitates speedy barter and unloading crews make and accept bids between grunts as they strain at heavy cargo or hurry back and forth with less bulky packages.

The cargo doors drop and the roar of the motor drowns out a last frantic bid: "Make it five cigars and you can have it!"

So the city folks have done it! Well, watch our speed!

WORD comes from Washington that the fat-salvage problem has got to be licked in the small cities, the towns and on the farms.

We women have to save enough used fats in our kitchens to help make munitions, medicines, fabrics, soap for military and civilian use, and many other essentials. The job, to date, has been done largely by city people, because arrangements for collecting the fats were made in the cities first. Now we're called on. And will we meet our goal? Just watch our speed!

HOW TO DO IT: Scrape broiler and roasting pans, skim soups and gravies. Melt down meat trimmings and table scraps. Add the liquid fat to your salvage can. Take the can to your butcher when full. He will give you two red points and up to four cents for every pound. If you have any difficulty, call your County Agent. This message has been approved by WFA and OPA and paid for by Industry.
