Food Prices Show Slight Gain In Month

Washington, June 24.—Rising food prices accounted largely for a seven-tenths of one per cent increase in the cost of living during the month ending May 15, Secretary of Labor Perkins reported today.

Average retail food costs moved up 1.6 per cent, the report said, principally because prices of fresh fruit and vegetables jumped 6.4 per cent.

Clothing costs advanced three-tenths of one per cent as shortages in lower priced lines continued, Miss Perkins reported.

Shoes Get Another Ration Holiday

Raleigh, June 24.—Approximately four and a half million rationed shoes will be sold without stamps during a week "odd lot" sale in Raleigh, July, OPA officials in Raleigh predicted today.

"The ration holiday," extending from July 9 through July 28, allows dealers to sell certain odds and ends and broken sizes, which accumulate after every selling season, without requiring ration stamps. Such odd-lot shoes must be sold at prices at least 25 per cent under the June 1, 1945, price, according to OPA.

"With our national supply of shoes in such a critical condition, we cannot afford to have wearable footwear gathering dust on dealers' shelves," Johnson explained. "This ration-free sale affords a chance to get these shoes where they're most needed—on the feet of Americans."

Fletcher Retains State Position

Raleigh, June 24.—Col. A. L. Fletcher a veteran of the present war, was reappointed chairman of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission for a four-year term today by Governor Cherry.

In accepting the appointment, Colonel Fletcher said he expected to retire under the State Employees Retirement Act when he reaches the age of 65 on July 7, 1946. "Unless the economic situation is such that you will need my services beyond that time, I shall place my resignation in your hands," he said in a letter to the Governor.

Asserting that he was "in entire sympathy with the aims and purposes of the State retirement act," Fletcher told the Governor that except under compelling circumstances "I do not believe that State employees should be retained on the State payrolls after they reach retirement age."

Sugar Rations To Continue At Present Levels

Drought Damages Cuban Cane Fields, Survey Discloses.

Havana, Cuba, June 22.—Sugar rations in the United States will continue at present levels for at least another year, Earl Wilson, director of the Commodity Credit Corporation's (CCC) Sugar section, said today.

Wilson made the disclosure in a press conference after a two weeks inspection of drought-devastated Cuban sugar cane fields. He was accompanied by Harold Rowe of the Foreign Economic Administration (FEA).

Wilson said the CCC had made an offer of 3.45 cents per pound (F. O. B. Cuban ports) for the 1946 Cuban sugar crop, an increase of .35 cents per pound over the price paid for the 1945 crop.

Describing "severe damage" to Cuban sugar production caused by the prolonged drought, Wilson said "the sugar picture for the United States is not good for another 12 months. The lack of rainfall throughout producing areas has delayed for at least a year any increase in sugar rations for American consumers."

He declined to predict whether sugar rations might be further cut but said both domestic and industrial consumers "will continue under present tight rationing at least until increased production is assured."

Colepaugh, an American citizen, and Gimpel were landed from a German submarine at Frenchman's Bay, Me., the night of Nov. 29, 1944, and were captured shortly thereafter. They were tried by a seven-member military commission at Governors Island, N. Y., on a charge of being Nazi spies and were sentenced to hang.

Colepaugh, Gimpel Get Life Terms

Washington, June 25.—President Truman has commuted to life in prison the death sentence of William Curtiss Colepaugh and Eric Gimpel who were convicted last February of spying, the War Department announced today.

The President, the announcement said acted upon the recommendation of the Secretary of War and the judge advocate general.

SHALL WE LIVE AGAIN?

By the Rev. Joe B. Currin, of Roxboro.

"If a man die shall he live again?" was asked by the patriarch Job. It is a question of the ages for men naturally believe in a future life. This is evidenced in the fact that the nations and races through the years have had some form of religion. We find this true of the ancient Egyptians, the cultured Greeks, and the uncivilized races. We have an instinct that we will live after death that we are not intended for this world only.

There is a felt need for a life elsewhere. This need seems apparent in the fact that there are those who have such limited opportunities to develop here. Many have had a very short stay on earth, while others have not enjoyed opportunities to develop, or really live.

There are also such marked inequalities in this life! It would appear that a future life is needed to even up matters. It would seem that such a God as we believe in and worship would have some perfect compensation. But at the grave we are unable to find it. There are those who have quite pleasant paths, and others who have known hardships, trials, persecutions, and distress. We know there are compensations in this life, but it would appear that further adjustment of matters certainly await on a future life.

Physical science has but little to say on the subject of a future life; in fact the subject does not lie within its field. It does, however, furnish us at least two important pointers. One is found in the teaching of the indestructibility of matter. We can melt a block of ice, but we do not destroy the matter. We have only changed the form; we still have it, then we may turn the water into hydrogen and oxygen, but again we have changed the form but have not destroyed. The other pointer we get from science is in the teaching of the conservation of energy. Heat energy may be changed to some other kind; but it is only changed. It is not destroyed. If we can believe that matter can not be destroyed and energy can not be lost—and why should we not? We should not stumble over the teaching that men shall live in another realm after death.

It is in the realm of religion that we come face to face with positive statements on the continued existence of people after death. This is set forth with exceeding emphasis in the records of the resurrection of Jesus. On the first day of the week Mary and others went early to the place of His burial with the intention of anointing His body. However, to their surprise and astonishment, they found He was not there, but had left the place of the dead and was alive. On reporting this to the disciples they found them unwilling to believe it. Especially was Thomas doubtful. He appears to have been of a practical turn of mind. But even he was convinced when he saw Jesus.

The historical fact of the resurrection of Jesus which was known to the disciples by three of the five senses; sight, hearing, and touch, answers and settles the question concerning life after death. I take it that we are incapable of receiving more satisfactory evidence than that given by the Lord's coming as a man, permitting Himself to be crucified, and rising from the dead. If we can see and know anything it should seem that we should rest assured about the life after death. If we can accept the reports of men on any subject we should be willing to accept the reports of what those early Christians saw, heard, and felt with their hands. Shall we, then, not set our feet on the solid rock of the best evidence and declare that the question as to life after death is answered with an unqualified affirmative?

Having, then, arrived at the answer of this question we find another equally important to each of us. That is: What of it? What use can we make of it? What bearing does it have on the present? This is an individual and personal matter. To some the calamity of calamities must surely be existence after death. Having gone out of this world wrong they will enter the next, the same. Such existence will not be eternal life but eternal death, which is separation or banishment from God. But for others it will be eternal life. Eternal life is life of a quality; it is life in harmony with eternal goodness, in harmony with a God of love, mercy, good will, and forgiveness. The Master said, "I am come that they may have life and have it more abundantly." "He that believeth on the Son hath life." That is he has this life of quality now. To such as have this life continued existence after death will be bliss indeed.

A personal question for each of us is that in regard to the way we are using life as an eternal possibility and opportunity. It is an unquestionable teaching of the Lord that we can use this stage of life so as to enrich that after death. He says, "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where moths doth not corrupt and where thieves do not break through nor steal." And again He says, "Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness that when you fail they may receive you into everlasting habitation."

The life after death is worth all we can put into it. We cannot afford to miss it for anything. It is worthy of being the one all inclusive aim and objective of each of us. Just as cutting, hauling, ploughing, harvesting and marketing go into the farmer's aim and purpose so all our activities should be included in our purpose for eternal life. What does not fit into the good life is not worthy of a being created in the likeness of God.

If we miss that life it can be said of us as Jesus said of Judas: "It were better for that man had he never been born." The Lord was emphasizing the worth of life after death when He said, "The kingdom of heaven is like unto a treasure hid in a field, the which when a man hath found, he hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field."
