

Television First To Mark Truman Talk Tonight

Washington, Jan. 3.—President Truman returned to the White House yesterday from a river cruise ready to carry the fight for his stalled legislative program direct to the people by radio and television. Mr. Truman speaks at 10 P. M. (E. S. T.) Thursday night on all radio networks in his first straight-to-the-nation appeal to knock loose in 1946 the chunks a balky Congress placed in 1945 under his 21-point legislative wagon. And on Jan. 15 he will go before Congress in person to deliver the first televised Presidential message. This is expected to be an elaboration of his Thursday night speech which White House aides have described as an "over-all report to the nation." The Jan. 15 date, the day after Congress reconvenes, was announced last night in New York by the America Telephone and Telegraph Company. The White House had indicated Mr. Truman would deliver his message in person, but had not made it definite nor had any date been mentioned previously. The A. T. and T. said the images and sound of the event, including scenes both at the White House and the Capitol, will be telecast by three New York television stations and one Washington station. The President has spent the last four days and five nights writing his speeches and relaxing aboard the Yatch Williamsburg on the cold, rainy Potomac River. Because of ice and fog the yatch's skipper did not take her the 100 miles to Chesapeake Bay as originally planned. Except for the tax revision, limited government reorganization authority and single administrator for surplus property, Congress left Mr. Truman's domestic legislative program in various stages of frustration when it went home before Christmas. Mr. Truman is expected to go to the plate swinging tonight for most if not all of his remaining proposals.

FERTILIZER

of a board of agriculture and a North Carolina agriculture experiment station rule which permits a maximum of three per cent chlorine. The conference was called by D. S. Coltrane, assistant North Carolina agriculture commissioner, who said the Smith-Douglas company of Norfolk, had manufactured the fertilizer without consulting the state department of agriculture or the experiment station. He said experiments indicated a small quantity of chlorine to be helpful but a large amount to be injurious to tobacco, reducing its burning qualities and producing a thick, heavy, soggy leaf which did not lend itself to proper curing. He asserted that, since the experiments proved 3.5 per cent of chlorine would lower the quality of the leaf, correction of the 35,000 tons of fertilizer manufactured by Smith-Douglas lies within the province of the board of agriculture. Douglas promised that no additional quantities of fertilizer of this type would be manufactured this season if his company could secure permission to sell what it now has on hand.

Koreans Stop Demonstrations

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 3.—Kim Koo, leader of the Korean "provisional government," announced he had called off demonstrations and strikes against a Big Three agreement on a trusteeship for Korea. The announcement followed a two and a half hour conference with Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of U. S. forces in Korea, who previously had indicated he would take a "strong stand" against any assumption of power by the "provisional government." Earlier in the day Kim Koo's government made an unsuccessful attempt to take over the police force in what military sources described as the first move by Kim Koo's group to assume rule in defiance of the American military government.

How do they do it?

COULD you produce one-third more crops with 10% less manpower? The farmers of America did it during the last full year of the war.

How? Partly by working themselves and their machines longer, harder. Partly by assisting hired help with wired help.

Electricity has taken over more and more farm chores. It pumps water, grinds feed, cures hay, fills silos. It steps up milk and egg and pork production. It eases farm house-work, too.

Cheap, dependable electricity has done more than any other force to make farming efficient and farm life comfortable.

Who electrified the farms? Rural electric service didn't happen overnight. It started more than 25 years ago—with America's business-managed electric companies. These companies did the pioneering—the pick-and-shovel work.

The advantages of electricity on the farm were many. The problem was to get it to the farmer. Distance and weather called for new methods and materials. New farm machines suitable for electric drive had to be developed.

Each problem was licked in turn by American initiative and ingenuity. Service grew steadily better and cheaper. Farm by farm, area by area, the web of wire expanded.

What of tomorrow? Today, business-managed electric companies serve 1,850,000 farms (about two-thirds of all electrified farms) and more than 4,000,000 other rural customers outside of incorporated towns. That's real progress.

But the job isn't done. Right now, as fast as men and materials become available, these same companies are extending reliable, low-priced electric service to more than 1,000,000 additional farm and rural non-farm customers. These companies are investing $290,000,000 for construction alone.

This program—long planned—is under way right now.
