SHORT LOCAL MENTION.

Lady canvassers have been seen about town since the opening of spring.

Charles Smiley took quite a long trip through the country toward Fayetteville on Monday.

People from the country with farm produce for sale are coming in quite freely. Chickens and eggs are plentiful at moderate prices.

The inclosed garden just south of the railway station has received many loads of good soil in preparation for the planting of trees or shrubs.

The use of stone made from the sand of this region is becoming quite common for walls, underpinning and embankments in some parts of the town.

Dr. A. W. Curtis of Raleigh supplied the pulpit at the Congregational church on Sunday. He preached in the morning to a good audience and assisted in the Christian Endeavor meeting in the evening.

James Smith of Cambridge, Mass., who was here earlier in the season and who afterwards returned home, has come back again to Southern Pines and is a guest at the Prospect House.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Addor of Keyser, paid the FREE PRESS a pleasant call Tuesday; although Mr. A. is a former business citizen of this place, this was Mr. Addor's first visit.

We received a pleasant call Tuesday from Mr. Wm. H. Quirk, a very prominent business man from Boston. Mr. Quirk is here for a months rest and recreation and having previously spent his winters in Florida he will doubtless have an eye out for a comparison of the two places for healthfulness.

That splendid play "A Kings Daughter" was so well received that it will be repeated at the K. D. hall next Wednesday eve, April 11th; admission 35, 25 and 15c.

There is a change within our City, Great improvements in our day; The street's untidy litter with the dirt has passed away, We children pick up papers, even while we are at play.

Do not drop the Fruit you are eating, Neighbor mine. On the sidewalk, sewer, or grating, Neighbor mine! But lest you and I should quarrel, Listen to my little carol; Go, and toss it in the barrel, Neighbor mine!

Otto Korb, Grand Chancellor, K. P. Boonville, Ind., says, "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve soothes the most delicate skin and heals the most stubborn ulcer with certain and good results." Cures piles and skin diseases. Don't buy an imitation. Johnsons Pharmacy.

A most interesting announcement which we notice in the Commercial and Financial World, is that of the change relative to the business so long carried on under the style of Yates & Potterfield 19 William St. N. Y., shipping and commission merchants, importers and exporters. Feb. 14 the then existing co-partnership was dissolved and instead was incorporated a joint stock concern—the Yates & Potterfield Trading Co., the business being continued as heretofore. The officers are Jas. N. Brown, President; Charles T. Geyer, Vice-President and General Manager; Geo. S. Starbuck, Secretary and Hobart W. Geyer Treasurer. Edward B. Merrill is General Counsel.

Mr. Charles T. Geyer, who is Vice-President and General Manager has been with Yates & Potterfield since 1885 and the Commercial and Financial World says, "No man in his line of business is better known or more respected." Mr. Geyer is taking a short vacation and is now enjoying a few days' visit with his family in their pretty LaFleur cottage on Bennett street.

Last Saturday at Pinebluff Dr. Harry Redan presented a series of very interesting feats in magic, mirth and mystery, which was a rare treat to his large and appreciative audience.

Be sure and see a "Kings Daughter" at the Kings Daughters hall next Wednesday eve, April 11th.

Among the visitors during the past week at Pinebluff are Rev. Mr. Smith, of Chelsea, Mass., Dr. Walton, of New York, Mr. Chism, of Charlotte, N. C.; Mr. Monroe and family, of Mansfield, Mass.

Hold, Proud Britannia, Hold! For Shame
 E'en now doth swoop with Vulture maw, upon thy regal fame.
 With scorn disdaineth even school-boy band
 With twelve strong arms to maul one puny hand;—
 Yet thou, the Giant of all kingdom's serried hosts,
 Dost stoop to ravage a wee-baby nation's coasts.
 Weep, Haughty Albion, weep! For tears,
 Salt tears, from sou's deep tortures brewed, and direful fears
 Are thine:—and Justly thine. For greed of gold
 Thou hast with perfidy thine honor sold:—
 Thy lordly sons hath sent to stop defensive balls;
 And drape in black disgrace thine own ancestral halls.
 Pray, wicked England, pray! For need
 So great did not Belshazzar know, when, mad with fulsome meed
 Of thousand Lords, and wine from Cups of God,—
 He saw an armless hand, without a rod.
 A scroll write out on wall of ribald, festal room:—
 "Mene, Mene, Upharsin:" were his words of doom.
 Stop, frenzied people, Stop! For sake
 Of Him whose blessed name ye bear, whose cause a stench ye make
 To heathen souls who see, nor sense, nor right
 In Christian faith that Brother shells at sight.
 Be warned, and stop! For scroll of blasted empire tells
 From heights of Right, how hurt His lyddite shells.
 O, the saddest sight that the Age hath seen,
 Is the blinded eyes of your aged Queen:
 For her trusted Lords, by their Statecraft lies,
 Have been duping her, while the Boer dies.
 But a sadder thing will the Angel write,
 If ye stop not soon the infernal fight;
 For the cry of blood* from the African sod
 Will be lifted up to the Christian's God;
 And a voice will fall with withering blight
 As the Curse of God on your boasted might.
