Southern Pines Sanitarium.

[From the Southern Pines Free Press, June 21, 1901.]

After the most gratifying and successful season in its history, the Southern Pines Sanitarium has just closed to reopen on October 1. No more striking evidence can be found of the widespread and growing popularity of Southern Pines as a health resort than that furnished by the Sanitarium records. During the season just ended, begun October 1, 1900, a total of 238 patients were treated, hailing from 19 different states the District of Columbia, Mexico, Nova Scotia, Montreal and Toronto, and Cuba, indicating that this sand and sun warmed garden spot among the pines is rapidly reaching its destined place as the Mecca of the continent for the afflicted and discouraged. This season's sanitarium records show that New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey led in number of health-seekers, with the New England states, as usual, well represented. A large majority of patients this season took electric treatment and many cases of cure and improvement nothing short of marvelous, resulted. Dr. Gladmon, the superintendent of the sanitarium, has devoted more than ten years to the special study of this wonderful force as applied to chronic and nervous diseases and every known electrical appliance of approved value will be found in use in this institution. The value of electricity has long been recognized as a potent one among medical practitioners and Dr. Gladmon is one of the foremost authorities on the subject. In addition to making the sanitarium, as it is now admitted to be, the leading institution of the South for the treatment of chronic and nervous diseases, as well as favorably known throughout the United States, Dr. Gladmon has done as much as, if not more than, any other one person to secure national recognition of the marvelous climatic advantages of Southern Pines.

The ladies of the Congregational Missionary Society held their monthly meeting at the pleasant home of Mrs. Foster, on Bennet street, Tuesday P. M. The topic was one of great interest to all Missionary workers. Touching upon Japan and China, papers and extracts had been prepared with great care by Mesdames Foster, Barrows, Mente, Miller of Johnstown, Pa., Henry of Jersey, Carr of Mass., and others.

Washington's birthday was observed in the schools with appropriate exercises. The grades in the intermediate department under Mrs. Rockwell's care joined Mr. Van Camp's pupils in recitations, reading selections from the "Life of Washington" and in singing patriotic songs. The primary scholars were given an interesting talk about Mt. Vernon by their teacher, Miss Calhoun, illustrated by drawings on the blackboards, afterwards reproducing what they had heard in neatly written papers.
