some of the offices of the parks and recreation staff to the library. "The library would provide vastly improved office space as well as greatly improved public access," Meyer said. But some residents objected to the use of the building by the Department of Parks and Recreation. Roland Giduz, a member of the East Franklin Neighborhood Association, said, "I want to emphasize that (the

The working group considered the two sites according to four criteria: centrality, accessibility, design appropriateness and buildability. Appendixes to the report explain that students prefer the Wilson site. Chancellor Paul Hardin said would not give the proposal special treatment. After examining the report, Hardin will send it to the Buildings and Grounds Committee for its April 14 meeting.

Carolina Blues member, said the recruiting team's major responsibility was giving football recruits a tour of the Kenan Field House but added that the Carolina Blues had other obligations. "We go in once a week and work for an hour in the Kenan Field House - office work, clerical type things, shovel envelopes and helping get materials to coaches," McCauley said. "We're an extra pair of hands." McCauley said male Carolina Blues members wouldn't change the recruiting process. "I don't think (the recruiting) will change in a negative way," she said. "I don't think we won't get certain recruits because there are (male recruiters)." "We don't spend a lot of time with the (recruits) in private," McCauley said. "The biggest thing is to show the recruits that we have Carolina pride." McCauley said she believed the criticism the Sweet Carolines received last semester accusing the group of exploiting women to attract potential players to the UNC football program might have been one of reasons for the title change. Michael Thomas, a sophomore quarterback and punter for the varsity football team, said male Carolina Blues members would not affect the recruiting of high-school football players. "I don't think having (male recruiters) will change the (organization)," Thomas said. "The purpose of the (Carolina Blues) is to tell recruits the social and academic aspects of the University and football program."

After considering opinions from working group and a advisory board members, the committee will recommend a site and size for the BCC and return the report to Hardin. If Hardin then recommends the report, it will go before the Board of Trustees, who will make the final decision. "The site selection is the building and grounds' department," Hardin said. The report outlines programs and facilities to be included in the BCC, as well as costs, size and fund raising. The estimated cost for a 48,000-square-foot building is $6,877,000. The report suggests forming a campaign as part of the ongoing Bicentennial Campaign to raise the $7 million needed for construction.

McCormick said that with the completion of the report, one of the main functions of the working group was to encourage donations by educating the public about the BCC. He said at least one person tentatively had said he would donate a large amount of money. The BCC's programs will focus on cultural education, both entertainment and academic. The report calls for the BCC to house the Institute for Research on the Life and History of Blacks in America, which would serve a research and teaching center exploring the black experience. McCormick said the institute would connect programs that deal with black studies under one roof.

According to the proposal, the BCC also would house three classrooms, two conference rooms and offices. Space in the building also would be reserved for: ■ A 400-seat theater and multi-media center. ■ A multi-purpose room that could accommodate 400 people. ■ The BCC Cross-Cultural Communications Institute, a group that provides students with opportunities to come together and discuss cultural understanding. ■ Communiiversity, the BCC's Saturday school. ■ The Hall of Fame. ■ A library containing up to 15,000 print and nonprint volumes. ■ The Upward Bound Program.
